SPIRITLESS ELECTION

Brazil Congress Picks Coup Head To Lead Country

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP)—The army general who led the successful military coup against Joao Goulart's government was named interim Brazilian president Saturday night in a drab, spiritless congressional election.

The nearly unanimous vote for Gen. Humberto Castello Branco was marred by a low-keyed, but nevertheless dramatic show of defiance by Goulart's Labor party which abstained from the roll-call vote in the Chamber of Deputies.

COMBINED VOTE

The combined Congress—Chamber and Senate — gave Castello Branco 361 votes out of 438 present. There were 72 abstentions and 37 congressmen were absent.

Christian Democrat Deputy Juarez Tavora received three votes and retired Marshal Eurico Gaspar Dutra two. Dutra is a former Brazilian president.

Castello Branco will serve out what was left of the ousted Goulart's term—until Jan. 31, 1966, when a full-term president to be elected in October 1965 will take over.

Senate President Auro Moura Andrade announced Castello Branco would be inaugurated Wednesday.

The congressional vote required 2½ hours. There was only polite applause from the packed galleries when the totals were announced. Most of the time was taken up by party leaders who restated their support for the military revolt and the interim government.

Deputy Boutel de Andrade of the Brazilian Labor party gave the deputies and the galleries their biggest surprise when he announced his group was abstaining from the voting.

He said his party's action was based on the lack of sufficient time during which the will of the people on the issues could be consulted "in a valid and legitimate manner."

This was interpreted to mean the Labor party favored a popular instead of a congressional vote with which to choose a new government.

Labor party Senate leader Arturo Virgilio also abstained from voting but the other two Labor senators went along with Castello Branco.

LBJ Lauds Khrushchev Peace Talks

'Peaceful Terms' Catch U.S. Ear, President Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Saturday Soviet Premier Khrushchev is "seeking to preserve peace in the world." Johnson said that, so long as Khrushchev "talks in peaceful terms, he will always have our ear."

This was Johnson's response, at another unannounced Saturday news conference, to a request for comment on Khrushchev's recent kind words about the American president and Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

"I am glad to see," said Johnson, "that Mr. Khrushchev is playing the role of peace and seeking to preserve peace in the world. That certainly is the desire of this country. When he talks in peaceful terms, he will always have our ear."

SUMMIT MEET

At the same time, the President gave scant encouragement to any who would call for an early summit meeting.

Johnson said that because of the forthcoming election, his newness in office, the absence of a vice president, and a multitude of foreign policy problems he does not plan to leave the continental United States this year.

The only things that could take him abroad, he said, would be an unforeseen emergency or "some feeling that great advances could be made."

This did, however, leave the door slightly ajar for a possible 1964 summit session.

Aides said that in his response about Khrushchev, Johnson was not trying to get into the Sino-Soviet dispute on Moscow's side. The Kremlin accuses the Chinese of advocating nuclear war instead of Khrushchev's "peaceful coexistence."

Johnson was here referring to "complimentary" remarks—as the questioner put it—which Khrushchev made during his Hungarian tour, the U.S. sources said.

Khrushchev said in an April 6 speech that, "The United States is an imperialist country but its government judges the world situation soberly."

LESS CANCEROUS

Moist Filters Aid Cigarettes

CHICAGO (AP)—Cancer researchers came up with a wee bit of comforting news for cigarette smokers Saturday.

And they offered some tips for making cigarettes still "safer."

A majority of American filter tip cigarettes now contain less "cancer-inducing properties" than cigarettes formerly did, said Drs. Ernest L. Wynder and Dietrich Hoffman of Sloan-Kettering Institute, New York City.

CUTS PROPERTIES

In fact, the person smoking a filtered cigarette is exposed on the average to about half as much "tar" and nicotine as the smoker of a regular cigarette ten years ago, they said.

And there is less of the cancer - inducing materials in the remaining tar, if the tobacco has been homogenized, and air-cured rather than flue-cured or sun-cured, they added.

As for tips for further improvement:

A moistened filter is more effective than a dry one in protecting the cilia, the fine hair-like projections on linings of bronchial tubes. Destruction of cilia is thought by some experts to be a first step toward inducing lung cancer.

They discovered this in drawing smoke through water in the manner of a Turkish water-pipe.

For smoking without need of carrying a glass of water, a filtertip might be developed which becomes moist with the first puff of smoke through it, Dr. Wynder said.

Drawing smoke through compressed charcoal cut down on the cilia-injuring gasses more than drawing it through a filter of granulated activated charcoal, the researchers found.

Senators To Shun Amendment Plans For Total Defeat

WASHINGTON (AP)—Southern opponents were reported solidifying their opposition Saturday to any early softening amendments to the House-passed civil rights bill.

A cross-section check of the measure's foes indicates a majority believes there is enough national dissatisfaction with the terms of the legislation to open the possibility of defeating it or forcing extensive modifications to remove aspects they most object to.

WALLACE SHOWING

This belief is built in part on the surprising showing of Alabama's segregationist Gov. George C. Wallace when he took 25 per cent of the vote in last Tuesday's Wisconsin primary. Wallace said he ran to demonstrate opposition to the civil rights program.

Privately most of the Southern senators deplore that their cause was represented by a governor who dramatized his opposition to school integration by standing in the doorway as Wallace did. They think a less spectacular civil rights opponent might have done even better.

But they will be watching Wallace's performance in the May 5 Indiana and May 19 Maryland Democratic presidential primaries for further signs of what they hope is a strong undercurrent of opposition to the pending bill. Its sponsors describe the measure as mild and moderate but the Southerners characterize it as drastic and vicious.

ALONG 'GREEN LINE'

Cyprus Struggle Kills Turk Youth

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — A Turkish special constable was killed Saturday by Greek Cypriot fire along the "Green Line," dividing the Turk and Greek sectors of the old walled city of Nicosia. It was the second day in a row a Turk was shot dead near the line.

Turkish sources said the constable, aged 19, was killed while on patrol. The Turks said he was shot from a Greek advance post, not from where U.N. troops were patrolling.

SHOTS EXCHANGED

No fatalities were reported elsewhere on Cyprus, but in the strategic Kyrenia Pass area, Greek and Turkish Cypriots exchanged shots for four hours. The Turks said it may be the curtain-raiser of an all out Greek Cypriot push for control of the pass.

At least one Greek Cypriot was wounded in the fighting, which broke out at dawn and again later in the afternoon.

Mortar and machine gun fire echoed throughout the hills for four hours in the morning and for half an hour in the afternoon.

Canadian troops attached to the U.N. peace force were dropped into the area by helicopter twice during the day in an effort to get a ceasefire.

Action Could Bar Johnson From Ballot

By SAM HANNA
World Political Editor

BATON ROUGE—Democratic party loyalists failed by a single vote Saturday to stop a free elector movement on the State Central Democratic Committee that may keep President Johnson's name off the Louisiana ballot.

Leander H. Perez Sr., a strong segregationist from Plaquemines Parish, out-maneuvered opponents of the free elector plan after they came confident of rescinding a motion to rob the Democrats of the party Rooster.

MOVES SWIFTLY

Perez, catching his foes off guard, moved swiftly for adjournment moments after the committee voted 51-50 against tabling his motion to postpone a showdown battle on free electors.

His motion to adjourn carried, 52-49, as a throng of Citizens Council members cheered loudly.

Chief free elector opponents, Bennett Voorhies Jr. of Lafayette and J. D. DeBlieux of Baton Rouge, had predicted they had enough votes to kill a resolution adopted last September by the committee to place electors unpledged to the Democratic party on the presidential ballot.

But they lost out when the skillful Perez seized on the opportunity to adjourn as quickly as he saw that he had the votes to back him.

"Now Lyndon Johnson will have to come to Louisiana," Perez said, "and tell the voters what he's going to do to them — and then they'll give him a kick in the pants."

Voorhies, at the outset of the meeting, offered a resolution to rescind the Perez resolution adopted September 7, 1963, but Perez countered with a substitute motion to delay any action on the free elector plan.

"We've had so much confusion with our election set-up in Louisiana," Voorhies argued. "I think it would be a mistake to postpone the action."

But Perez replied, "As the situation is developing our freedoms will be deprived by an all-powerful federal government. As practical members, we know that the party emblem is worth 100,000 votes in a general election. As it is now, two votes will take the place of more than a million votes by the people."

He was referring to the practice of Southern Democrats stamping the Rooster for party candidates.

Under his proposal, Louisiana voters will select from two slates of presidential electors in the July 25th presidential primary. One slate would be pledged to an independent while the other would be pledged to the party nominee, presumably President Johnson.

But the plan drew heavy fire from its South Louisiana opponents while North Louisiana delegates supported it almost to the man. Glen W. Drewett of Jena was the only North Louisiana member who voted to table Perez's substitute motion to delay a fight, but he voted with Perez to adjourn.

Beckwith Prints On Ambush Rifle

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Byron De La Beckwith's fingerprint was on the rifle the state claims was used in the ambush slaying of Negro civil rights leader Medgar Evers, two fingerprint experts testified Saturday.

Capt. Ralph Hargrove of the Jackson police department and George Edward Goodrow of the FBI laboratory in Washington told the all-white jury trying Beckwith their identifications were positive.

Hargrove said the print was not over 12 hours old when he found it the day of the slaying.

Beckwith, 43, a Greenwood, Miss., segregationist and salesman, is charged with murder in Evers' death. A first trial ended with a deadlocked jury Feb. 7.

Evers, a state field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was gunned down just after midnight last June 12.

Testimony has shown he was shot with a 1917 Enfield rifle. A rifle of this type was found the day of the slaying hidden in a vacant lot across the street from the Evers' home.

Hargrove, who decided to become a fingerprint expert after suffering polio as a youngster, said he found a fingerprint on the rifle's telescopic sight. He said he compared this print with ones taken at the time of Beckwith's arrest.

'It was the right index finger of Mr. Beckwith," he said. "The two prints were identical."

Goodrow testified he, too, studied the two prints and found them to be identical. In addition, he said the print from the telescopic sight was identical to ones taken from Beckwith's Marine service record.

LBJ Asks End Of Rail Threat By Bargaining

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson underscored anew Saturday his deep desire that railroad and union negotiators end by collective bargaining the recurring threat of a national rail shutdown.

He sat in again with the negotiators and federal mediators who are striving in White House sessions to reach by April 24 a settlement that has been sought futilely for more than four years.

He said "Success in this case can be an enormous step in strengthening the foundations of collective bargaining. I know this is in the heart and minds of those around the (bargaining) table."

Then he concluded:

"I do not know what our result will be. But I do know that this thought will be the basic element in reaching a successful conclusion."

Plaintive Taps Signal Farewell To 'Old Soldier'

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Taps sounded in Norfolk Saturday for General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, and his widow wept when the plaintive notes of the bugle signaled farewell.

MacArthur's body will rest in a sunken marble crypt beneath the battle flags he followed in three major wars of this country.

The last rites fell on the 13th anniversary of a supremely bitter moment for MacArthur.

On Apr. 11, 1951, President Harry S. Truman removed MacArthur from all his commands in the Far East. Truman dismissed him because of a dispute growing out of his strategy for fighting the Korean War after the Chinese Reds entered the conflict.

Two Area Men Lose Lives In Road Mishaps

Felton Thomas Donald, 27, of Rayville, was killed instantly about 2:45 a. m. Saturday when the pickup truck he was driving crashed into a tree about one mile east of Holly Ridge.

Investigating state police said Donald, who was traveling alone, apparently went to sleep at the wheel causing the vehicle to go out of control.

A Swartz man, Benjamin F. O'Neal, 81, was fatally injured about noon Saturday when he was struck by a car driven by Mrs. Alice F. Patton of Swartz.

State police said O'Neal apparently stepped into the path of the oncoming car and termed the accident unavoidable.

The accident occurred about eight miles north of Monroe on highway 139.

Funeral services for Mr. O'Neal are incomplete but will be under direction of Mulhearn Funeral Home of Monroe.

Services for Mr. Donald will be Monday at 10 a. m. in Bethel Baptist Church with the Rev. R. A. Holloway officiating.

Burial will be in McKnight Cemetery under direction of Kidder - Cox Funeral Home of Delhi.

Survivors include his widow, the former Patricia Albritton, Rayville; two sons, Charles Kenneth and Rory Donald and a daughter, Sherry Donald, all of Rayville; parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Donald, Rayville; three sisters, Mrs. Ozie Adcock, Monroe, Mrs. Milton Jowers, Houston, Tex,, and Mrs. Richard Fallin, Bastrop; four brothers, G. O. Donald and Jimmy Donald, Farmington, N. M., F. L. Pallbearers will be J. C. Coller, Lamar Clack, Johnny Grigsby, O. C. Albritton, Andrew Stokes and Gerald Dowell.

WOULD GIVE UP CHILDREN

Man Feels Biblical Kinship

MENA, Ark. (AP) — Archie T. B. Cude Sr., 44, in going through the pages of his Bible reads Genesis 22:10, which says:

Archie Cude feels a certain kinship.

For Abraham was prepared to sacrifice a son, Isaac. Archie Cude says he is prepared to lose a son, Wayne, 12, and two daughters, Delia Marie, 11, and Linda May, 8.

Both men faced the sacrifice because of their religious beliefs.

Cude may lose his children to a foster home, or they may be vaccinated, which would make them unacceptable to him.

Cude says "religion is a seven days a week thing. If a person don't live it, he hasn't got real religion." He says he reads the Bible studiously, and has learned that "many things are not necessary in this world."

Among the things he finds unnecessary is a smallpox vaccination.

The Mena School Board disagrees. Chancellor Wesley Howard of Texarkana backs the board, and the Arkansas Supreme Court upholds Howard's ruling.

Cude says the case will go to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Cude keeps his children out of school, rather than have them vaccinated. Wayne attended two years. Neither Linda nor Delia have been to school. This violates the state's compulsory attendance law, which Cude says infringes on his freedom of religion.

The children were taken from Cude last Tuesday, and Gov. Orval E. Faubus took them into his mansion to keep them out of welfare home. If the state vaccinates the children, Cude says he won't take them back unless the state "dumps them like a passle of dogs on the farm."

Home is a 65-acre farm at Opal, near this western Arkansas city of less than 5,000 people, where Cude grows hay, bales it under contract, and does carpenter work.

Mr. and Mrs. Cude, Wayne, Linda, Delia and five other children live on the farm. Three are above school age, and had vaccinations before Cude's religious views jelled. Two are too young for school, and have not had vaccinations.

Cude's household is in the Abrahamic tradition. Ask Mrs. Cude about her views, and she says, "I believe whatever my husband believes."

Cude says he is "as determined as ever" to give up his children if they must be vaccinated. He says it would make them spiritually impure.

The children are not so eager to give him up.

"Staying in the governor's mansion was pretty fair," Wayne says. "But it's good to be home. We missed home cooking. And mostly momma and daddy."

Wayne admits that he wants to go back to school, and he won't say anything else about it.

Mild Forecast For Area Today

A cool front moving in from Oklahoma brought the showers forecast for the area this morning and tonight but skies are expected to begin clearing around noon and remain sunny through this afternoon.

CLEARING

Temperatures will climb to the high 70s today and drop back to 56 or 60 tonight. Light sprinklings of precipitation fell in some parts of the area Saturday, but the mercury climbed to a high of 80. Saturday's low was recorded early in the morning at 43 degrees.

Winds will be southerly today, 8 to 18 mph and shift northerly tonight and Monday. Monday will also bring scattered thunderstorms and cooler temperatures.

NO SELF-PITY WAILS

Wave Wrecked City Bravely Cleans Up

CRESCENT CITY, Calif. (AP) — With not a pause for hand-wringing or self-pity, this little logging and fishing community on California's north coast is turning the horror of a killer tidal wave into a brave new world.

"We have no time to feel sorry for ourselves," they say. "We have work to do—a new life."

When they take the time to think about it, Crescent City's 3,000 residents can scarcely believe it was only 14 days ago that a seismic wave from Alaska's earthquake destroyed a quarter of the city.

The wave came out of a night-blackened sea and smashed with battering ram force 29 blocks of businesses and homes. It left some 150 families homeless—and killed 11 persons.

After the wave drained away, you couldn't buy a handkerchief, a sandwich or a loaf of bread, see your dentist, or get a haircut.

"It looks like 85 per cent of the people who were wiped out will be able to get back in business," said Pat Hanratty, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

The entire downtown area, wholly devastated along a quarter-mile front four blocks away, is just about cleaned up. A great fire burns on the beach day and night, consuming debris.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, brought into action when President Johnson declared the town a disaster area, is at work everywhere demolishing wrecked buildings. All roads around the city have been cleared and traffic is normal.

Soon to be rebuilt is Citizen's Dock, which served the fishing fleet. It was Crescent City's pride. It will be that again.

Mild Forecast For Area Today

A cool front moving in from Oklahoma brought the showers forecast for the area this morning and tonight but skies are expected to begin clearing around noon and remain sunny through this afternoon.

CLEARING

Temperatures will climb to the high 70s today and drop back to 56 or 60 tonight. Light sprinklings of precipitation fell in some parts of the area Saturday, but the mercury climbed to a high of 80. Saturday's low was recorded early in the morning at 43 degrees.

Winds will be southerly today, 8 to 18 mph and shift northerly tonight and Monday. Monday will also bring scattered thunderstorms and cooler temperatures.

ALONG 'GREEN LINE'

Cyprus Struggle Kills Turk Youth

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — A Turkish special constable was killed Saturday by Greek Cypriot fire along the "Green Line," dividing the Turk and Greek sectors of the old walled city of Nicosia. It was the second day in a row a Turk was shot dead near the line.

Turkish sources said the constable, aged 19, was killed while on patrol. The Turks said he was shot from a Greek advance post, not from where U.N. troops were patrolling.

SHOTS EXCHANGED

No fatalities were reported elsewhere on Cyprus, but in the strategic Kyrenia Pass area, Greek and Turkish Cypriots exchanged shots for four hours. The Turks said it may be the curtain-raiser of an all out Greek Cypriot push for control of the pass.

At least one Greek Cypriot was wounded in the fighting, which broke out at dawn and again later in the afternoon.

Mortar and machine gun fire echoed throughout the hills for four hours in the morning and for half an hour in the afternoon.

Canadian troops attached to the U.N. peace force were dropped into the area by helicopter twice during the day in an effort to get a ceasefire.

Plaintive Taps Signal Farewell To 'Old Soldier'

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Taps sounded in Norfolk Saturday for General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, and his widow wept when the plaintive notes of the bugle signaled farewell.

MacArthur's body will rest in a sunken marble crypt beneath the battle flags he followed in three major wars of this country.

The last rites fell on the 13th anniversary of a supremely bitter moment for MacArthur.

On Apr. 11, 1951, President Harry S. Truman removed MacArthur from all his commands in the Far East. Truman dismissed him because of a dispute growing out of his strategy for fighting the Korean War after the Chinese Reds entered the conflict.

Action Could Bar Johnson From Ballot

By SAM HANNA
World Political Editor

BATON ROUGE—Democratic party loyalists failed by a single vote Saturday to stop a free elector movement on the State Central Democratic Committee that may keep President Johnson's name off the Louisiana ballot.

Leander H. Perez Sr., a strong segregationist from Plaquemines Parish, out-maneuvered opponents of the free elector plan after they came confident of rescinding a motion to rob the Democrats of the party Rooster.

MOVES SWIFTLY

Perez, catching his foes off guard, moved swiftly for adjournment moments after the committee voted 51-50 against tabling his motion to postpone a showdown battle on free electors.

His motion to adjourn carried, 52-49, as a throng of Citizens Council members cheered loudly.

Chief free elector opponents, Bennett Voorhies Jr. of Lafayette and J. D. DeBlieux of Baton Rouge, had predicted they had enough votes to kill a resolution adopted last September by the committee to place electors unpledged to the Democratic party on the presidential ballot.

But they lost out when the skillful Perez seized on the opportunity to adjourn as quickly as he saw that he had the votes to back him.

"Now Lyndon Johnson will have to come to Louisiana," Perez said, "and tell the voters what he's going to do to them — and then they'll give him a kick in the pants."

Voorhies, at the outset of the meeting, offered a resolution to rescind the Perez resolution adopted September 7, 1963, but Perez countered with a substitute motion to delay any action on the free elector plan.

"We've had so much confusion with our election set-up in Louisiana," Voorhies argued. "I think it would be a mistake to postpone the action."

But Perez replied, "As the situation is developing our freedoms will be deprived by an all-powerful federal government. As practical members, we know that the party emblem is worth 100,000 votes in a general election. As it is now, two votes will take the place of more than a million votes by the people."

He was referring to the practice of Southern Democrats stamping the Rooster for party candidates.

Under his proposal, Louisiana voters will select from two slates of presidential electors in the July 25th presidential primary. One slate would be pledged to an independent while the other would be pledged to the party nominee, presumably President Johnson.

But the plan drew heavy fire from its South Louisiana opponnets while North Louisiana delegates supported it almost to the man. Glen W. Drewett of Jena was the only North Louisiana member who voted to table Perez's substitute motion to delay a fight, but he voted with Perez to adjourn.

WOULD GIVE UP CHILDREN

Man Feels Biblical Kinship

MENA, Ark. (AP) — Archie T. B. Cude Sr., 44, in going through the pages of his Bible reads Genesis 22:10, which says:

Archie Cude feels a certain kinship.

For Abraham was prepared to sacrifice a son, Isaac. Archie Cude says he is prepared to lose a son, Wayne, 12, and two daughters, Delia Marie, 11, and Linda May, 8.

Both men faced the sacrifice because of their religious beliefs.

Cude may lose his children to a foster home, or they may be vaccinated, which would make them unacceptable to him.

Cude says "religion is a seven days a week thing. If a person don't live it, he hasn't got real religion." He says he reads the Bible studiously, and has learned that "many things are not necessary in this world."

Among the things he finds unnecessary is a smallpox vaccination.

The Mena School Board disagrees. Chancellor Wesley Howard of Texarkana backs the board, and the Arkansas Supreme Court upholds Howard's ruling.

Cude says the case will go to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Cude keeps his children out of school, rather than have them vaccinated. Wayne attended two years. Neither Linda nor Delia have been to school. This violates the state's compulsory attendance law, which Cude says infringes on his freedom of religion.

The children were taken from Cude last Tuesday, and Gov. Orval E. Faubus took them into his mansion to keep them out of welfare home. If the state vaccinates the children, Cude says he won't take them back unless the state "dumps them like a passle of dogs on the farm."

Home is a 65-acre farm at Opal, near this western Arkansas city of less than 5,000 people, where Cude grows hay, bales it under contract, and does carpenter work.

Mr. and Mrs. Cude, Wayne, Linda, Delia and five other children live on the farm. Three are above school age, and had vaccinations before Cude's religious views jelled. Two are too young for school, and have not had vaccinations.

Cude's household is in the Abrahamic tradition. Ask Mrs. Cude about her views, and she says, "I believe whatever my husband believes."

Cude says he is "as determined as ever" to give up his children if they must be vaccinated. He says it would make them spiritually impure.

The children are not so eager to give him up.

"Staying in the governor's mansion was pretty fair," Wayne says. "But it's good to be home. We missed home cooking. And mostly momma and daddy."

Wayne admits that he wants to go back to school, and he won't say anything else about it.

NO SELF-PITY WAILS

Wave Wrecked City Bravely Cleans Up

CRESCENT CITY, Calif. (AP) — With not a pause for hand-wringing or self-pity, this little logging and fishing community on California's north coast is turning the horror of a killer tidal wave into a brave new world.

"We have no time to feel sorry for ourselves," they say. "We have work to do—a new life."

When they take the time to think about it, Crescent City's 3,000 residents can scarcely believe it was only 14 days ago that a seismic wave from Alaska's earthquake destroyed a quarter of the city.

The wave came out of a night-blackened sea and smashed with battering ram force 29 blocks of businesses and homes. It left some 150 families homeless—and killed 11 persons.

After the wave drained away, you couldn't buy a handkerchief, a sandwich or a loaf of bread, see your dentist, or get a haircut.

"It looks like 85 per cent of the people who were wiped out will be able to get back in business," said Pat Hanratty, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

The entire downtown area, wholly devastated along a quarter-mile front four blocks away, is just about cleaned up. A great fire burns on the beach day and night, consuming debris.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, brought into action when President Johnson declared the town a disaster area, is at work everywhere demolishing wrecked buildings. All roads around the city have been cleared and traffic is normal.

Soon to be rebuilt is Citizen's Dock, which served the fishing fleet. It was Crescent City's pride. It will be that again.

Reds' Struggle Breaks At Meet Of Afro-Asians

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI)— The bitter struggle between the Soviet Union and Communist China for support in their ideological dispute burst into the open Saturday at a ministerial meeting of Afro-Asian nations.

The meeting opened Friday night with a keynote speech by President Sukarno of Indonesia in which he attacked military intervention in South Viet Nam an obvious slap at the United States.

Hout Sambath, Cambodia's foreign minister, accused the United States of "intervening in the affairs of South Viet Nam" and praised Communist China for showing understanding in Cambodia's attempts to remain neutral.

The banner of the Soviets, who are not represented in the talks, was carried by Sardar chief Indian delegate and that country's food and agriculture minister. He proposed that the Soviet Union be invited to attend the main Afro-Asia conference for which ministers here are planning.

Singh's move, apparently made after consultation with the Kremlin and encouraged by the Soviets, followed days of behind-the-scenes maneuvering by the Chinese to win support from Asian and African delegations in the Moscow-Peking dispute.

Rights Group To Stage Mass GMC Protests

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)— The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People announced Saturday members will stage mass demonstrations at General Motors Corp. plants across the nation protesting what it termed "discriminatory practices in employment."

Herbert Hill, national labor secretary for the civil rights organization, announced the action here in conjunction with the NAACP Midwest leadership training conference. Hill would not give the date, but said it will be very soon and a public announcement would be given "a couple of days in advance."

"This is an effort to dramatize to the nation and to the President Committee on Fair Employment Practices that General Motors is violating the antidiscrimination clause in its government contracts," he said.

At Detroit, a GM spokesman denied any discrimination on the corporation's part. He said GM employs 45,000 nonwhites in the United States and that their average annual wage is in excess of $6,000, putting them in the top third of the nation's income group.

Rights Group To Stage Mass GMC Protests

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)— The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People announced Saturday members will stage mass demonstrations at General Motors Corp. plants across the nation protesting what it termed "discriminatory practices in employment."

Herbert Hill, national labor secretary for the civil rights organization, announced the action here in conjunction with the NAACP Midwest leadership training conference. Hill would not give the date, but said it will be very soon and a public announcement would be given "a couple of days in advance."

"This is an effort to dramatize to the nation and to the President Committee on Fair Employment Practices that General Motors is violating the antidiscrimination clause in its government contracts," he said.

At Detroit, a GM spokesman denied any discrimination on the corporation's part. He said GM employs 45,000 nonwhites in the United States and that their average annual wage is in excess of $6,000, putting them in the top third of the nation's income group.

Running the Scales

By JOHN CALE

The comedy, "Breath of Spring," playing tonight and throughout the upcoming four-day weekend at Strauss Playhouse, has a title that fits more than the season.

This time of year sees the calendar of special events thinning out somewhat so that those of us who feel the compulsion to attend may draw a few breaths. It's been a terrific season, all the way 'round.

The next - to - last Little Theatre production named above resumes its seven-night run Thursday and will run through Sunday, all curtain times set for 8:15 p.m.

Tryouts for the big cast to be featured in "Take Her, She's Mine," will be held Monday and Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., also at Strauss Playhouse.

Next Monday, April 20, the popular two-piano team, Ferrante and Teicher, will play a concert of popular music on the La. Tech series in the Memorial gymnasium, closing that organization's regularly scheduled bill of fare. There will be a bonus attraction to be announced later, according to chairman L. V. E. Irvine.

Also now in rehearsal is the Twin City Symphony Orchestra for its final concert of the year set for April 28 at Brown Hall auditorium on the Northeast campus.

LOVE AND LUCK

When a student in dramatics and directing can bring himself to spend more than four hours a day over a period of two weeks plus to set a television script for the stage, that's a labor of love. When he can get hold of the play directly from the author and find some actors to perform it, that's luck.

Stan Wyatt, student at Northeast, got the two rarified elements to jell, however, and the target date for performance of "The Stranger" is April 21 in the Student Union auditorium.

How did he do it? Well, it seems Stan saw "The Stranger" by Dale Wasserman on the now-discontinued Richard Boone show. He liked it, thought the television version might be an adapted stage version, and he wrote and asked for the stage version.

This proved to be the wrong route. The Boone people answered several months later with the word that Stan should write directly to playwright Dale Wasserman. This he did, and the letter was forwarded all the way from Warner Brothers in California to Wasserman's New York address.

This time, the writer came through. He sent along a letter and his own copy of the script for "The Stranger." It was a television script with 36 short scenes. But the author sent along permission for re-adaptation to the stage.

SPACE STAGING

The local treatment cut the number of scenes in half, which still makes for a tricky situation on the sets. As a solution, the play will feature "space staging," which sounds at first like Wernher von Braun's proposed space platform.

Actually, the actors in the stage version of "The Stranger" will lay their parts on lighted platforms about the darkened stage to produce suggested locations.

What's it about? Well, the play seems to have a philosophical message.

It deals with the shortcomings of society in this modern age. It seems the seven characters making up the cast cannot face up to their own shortcomings so they set about to destroy the force that brought them to understand that they had shortcomings in the first place.

This really isn't so involved as it may at first appear. Most of us realize when we've made a blooper — social or otherwise —but — social or otherwise — but — social or otherwise — but we don't like anyone to tell us they noticed it. Which may explain why there are few laurels for critics or parents with an eye for good breeding.

Visiting Drama Professor Will Speak At Tech

RUSTON (Special) — As part of a Festival of Arts being planned at Louisiana Tech by its School of Arts and Sciences, a talk on Shakespeare will be given in Howard Auditorium at 9:40 a.m. April 23, by Dr. George R. Kernodle, professor of drama at the University of Arkansas.

The festival will consist of a series of events beginning April 20, and continuing through April 26. Tech departments collaborating in the week's program include art, music, speech and English.

The events will commemorate the 400th anniversary of the birth of William Shakespeare.

TAILS FOR ILLIA

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Argentine protocol officers are trying to convince President Arturo Illia he should wear white tie and tails at a formal reception for West Germany's President Heinrich Luebke May 4. Illia broke precedent by wearing a gray business suit to his own inauguration.

Kashmir Lion Roars Again

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Lion of Kashmir is roaring again for independence of that mountain state and creating consternation among Indian authorities who uncaged him Wednesday.

The Lion is Sheik Mohammed Abdullah, a Moslem nationalist leader jailed by Prime Minister Nehru's government in 1953 because of his militant advocacy of freedom for Kashmir's 86,000 square miles and 4.5 million people—80 per cent of them Moslems.

Abdullah's release was ordered in hopes it would quiet the agitation of his supporters and help create a favorable atmosphere for a ministerial conference on religious and frontier conflicts between India and Pakistan, rival claimants to Kashmir.

The ministerial negotiations here ended Saturday in an impasse. Sources said the home ministers of the two nations agreed in five days of talks on only one substantial point—that another conference should be held later this month in Pakistan.

And violence persisted within Kashmir.

Indians and Pakistanis exchanged fire for two hours near Punch, on the western border of Kashmir and two Indians were reported wounded. Three bombs exploded at Punch, but no casualties were reported.

The Indian Defense Ministry said Pakistani troops and civilians shot from three directions at a small Indian patrol.

If Abdullah has his way, both India and Pakistan would surrender their claims to Kashmir for the sake of settling the bitter quarrel that erupted after division of the Indian subcontinent in 1947.

The sheik, now 59, feels granting of sovereignty to the border state is the only way to ease the tension. He wants the United Nations to guarantee the sovereignty.

Men close to Abdullah say he feels he has a better chance now of winning agreement than he did 11 years ago. He is said to feel India should look for a way out of it difficulties with both Red China and Pakistan.

But official opinion in New Delhi is cool toward Abdullah's thinking. Nehru is committed to integrating Kashmir into India and a retreat might be politically fatal.

If Abdullah has his way, both India and Pakistan would surrender their claims to Kashmir for the sake of settling the bitter quarrel that erupted after division of the Indian subcontinent in 1947.

The sheik, now 59, feels granting of sovereignty to the border state is the only way to ease the tension. He wants the United Nations to guarantee the sovereignty.

Men close to Abdullah say he feels he has a better chance now of winning agreement than he did 11 years ago. He is said to feel India should look for a way out of it difficulties with both Red China and Pakistan.

Drivers License Spot Checks Due By State Police

BATON ROUGE (Special)—Col. Thomas D. Burbank, director of the Department of Public Safety, said Saturday that an estimated 125,000 Louisiana drivers have expired drivers licenses and in several days State Police will begin using road blocks throughout the state to check licenses.

"We have just completed a spot check of drivers' records using the automatic filing equipment of our new Central Records Bureau and have estimated that approximately 100,000 to 125,000 drivers have not renewed their licenses on time," Col. Burbank said.

"In the past we have never been able to accurately keep track of drivers license expirations because of lack of up-to-date and easily handled records.

"I think it is time that Louisiana drivers start paying more attention to the expiration dates on their licenses," Col. Burbank said.

If a drivers license is more than 30 days outdated, the driver must retake all tests, including the driving test, written examination and eye tests.

The Department of Public Safety has the authority to file charges for an expired license according to state laws.

U.S. FOREIGN POLICY

Sen. Tower Favors Fulbright Dispute

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., said Saturday he welcomed Sen. J. William Fulbriht's call for wide-ranging discussion of U.S. foreign policy but could not agree with the Arkansas Democrat's proposals.

Tower accused the Johnson administration of spreading a "new myth" that foreign policy problems cannot be solved. He said "this attitude is a convenient scapegoat for doing nothing."

The Texas Republican took specific issue with both Fulbright's recent Senate speech on foreign policy titled "Old Myths and New Realities" and another at Chapel Hill in which Fulbright said U.S. civilians do not have enough control over the military.

Fulbright has denied that he was speaking for the administration. So have the White House and the State Department.

Tower said the "new myth" spread by Fulbright and others "is an escape for people who do not wish to face realities, old or new."

A full discussion of foreign policy, Tower said, may cause a "change in directions" but "it won't be in the direction advocated by those who would have us accept Cuba as merely a nuisance and not a threat." Fulbright voiced that appraisal in his Senate speech.

Tower said Fulbright had "called for an even softer line toward international communism than we now have" and has "deplored the emphasis Americans have placed upon maintaining a strong military position in the face of armed threats from abroad."

Of the Chapel Hill speech, the Texas senator said "I do not believe our own cause is well served, or morale in our armed forces properly maintained, by incessant attacks upon the military forces which our citizens support for their own protection."

to nominate J. Marshall Brown of New Orleans as the state's new National Democratic Committeeman.

Brown, a member of the State Board of Education who served as city campaign manager for Gov.-Elect John J. McKeithen in New Orleans, was elected without objection. He succeeds Harry Booth of Shreveport, who resigned.

Later Brown said, "I think President Johnson will run well in Louisiana. We will have to see who the vice presidential candidate will be. I don't think the people of this state would feel very kindly toward Bobby Kennedy or Sen. Hubert Humphrey."

Mrs. Jimmie A. Davis is the national committeewoman.

After the committee adjourned, spokesman on both sides of the free elector issue said they didn't think McKeithen took part in the committee's decision.

"I am pleased to believe that Mr. McKeithen has not taken a position against free electors," said Sen. Harold Montgomery, a Doyline solon who serves as chairman of the Louisiana Committee for Free Electors.

But he added, "I don't think he (McKeithen) has taken a position for it either."

"I lost three or four votes I thought I had," DeBlieux said. "I don't know whether they were McKeithen people or not. From all indications, McKeithen didn't have a part in this"

McKeithen didn't attend, but his secretary, Gus Weill, watched the meeting before an applauding crowd of Citizens Council members carrying placards.

Voorhies, however, said in an interview that he planned to offer his motion to rescind the free elector plan when the committee meets again in May to call the July congressional elections.

"We got snarled up in procedure and never got off the ground," Voorhies said.

Actually, after the committee vote of 51-50 against tabling Perez's motion was announced, DeBlieux took the floor to call for a second vote, contending that the voting was in reverse.

But Perez, backed by Arthur Watson of Natchitoches, moved to adjourn. DeBlieux protested while Downs ruled that Perez's motion for adjournment was in order.

Before the committee voted on a motion by Ramon E. Billeaud of Broussard to table Perez attempts to put off a vote gero Jr. of New Orleans said, "I just as soon as have the vote on the Perez substitute motion. Mr. Perez attemptst o put off a vote on this, but we should clear the air for the Legislature to make changes in the election laws."

Later he added, "I just don't think we should disenfranchise the citizens of this state who might want to vote for Mr. Johnson or Mr. Goldwater or Mr. Nixon."

Under past election procedures, Louisiana voters voting for the Democratic nominee thus instructed the state's 10 electors to cast their ballots with the party nominee.

But Rep. John Rau of Jefferson Parish took an opposite view, asking Calogero, "Are you aware that the resolution you proposed would disenfranchise the voters and this committee by guaranteeing to the Democratic party a place for the nominee on the ballot?"

"I believe that's what it says," Calogero said. "We feel that the national nominee ought to be on the ballot in the general election."

"What coice would the voters have if the committee was bound to the nominees to the national convention?," Rau asked.

At the outset of the special session, Perez, taking the floor to stall a vote on the free elector plan, said, "We who have attended convention after convention know who controls the nomination. Is there any doubt that LBJ will be nominated? Is there any doubt that Robert Kennedy will be nominated if Walter Reuther has his way? Is there any doubt that Hubert Humphry will be nominated if Dave Dubinsky has his way?"

He added, "You can't continue to do that to the people of Louisiana and expect to maintain the constitutional government of this body."

Perez's victory was his second on the committee regarding free electors, but he lost on a movement to pass a free elector bill in the Legislature last June. He later took the issue to the committee.

Perez, former judge and district attorney who now served as president of the Plaquemines Parish Council, was instrumental in 1948 in taking the Rooster emblem away from the Democrats in Louisiana, giving it to the Dixiecrats.

That's when Louisiana went for Strom Thurmond in the presidential election.

Perez said he thought McKeithen favored a presidential primary. He said if the Legislature provided one he thought McKeithen would sign the bill.

Monroe area delegates voting against tabling the Perez motion in support of the free elector plan included A. Clayton James, Caldwell; Ted Husser, Catahoula; M. B. Gwin, Concordia; Capt. Jack Wyly, East Carroll; John T. O'Brien, Franklin; W. Elder Bond, Jackson; Robert Lane Fuller, Lincoln; Henry C. Sevier, Madison; Duke Shackelford, Morehouse; Lawrence Gibbs and W. L. Howard, Ouachita; E. G. Brown, Richland; Burton L. Wade, Tensas; T. T. Fields, Union; John Thomas Kelly, West Carroll; and S. L. Garrett, Winn.

After the meeting, Billeaud produced a telegram from five Louisiana congressmen voicing their opposition to the free elector plan. The telegram was signed by Hale Boggs, New Orleans, Edwin E. Willis, Third District, James H. Morrison, Sixth District, T. A. Thompson, Seventh District, and Gillis W. Long, Eighth District.

Billeaux said he had planned to read the telegram to the committee, but adjournment came sooner than he expected.

The telegram read as follows: "The September, 1963 resolution seeking to deprive the voters of Louisiana of voting for the president of their choice should be rescinded by the Democratic State Central Committee. This resolution, adopted prior to the assassination of President Kennedy, would deprive Louisiana of any voice in either the Democratic or Republican party.

"If the votes of the people of Louisiana are to be denied to the candidates of either of the great political parties, then obviously we will be ignored in both the Democratic and Republican conventions, as well as in the election campaign.

"Those who would oppose President Johnson and the Republican nominee — whoever he may be — have every right under present law to get the names of their electors on the ballot. Apparently they don't want to do that. They want to decieve the people of Louisiana into thinking that they are voting for President Johnson or his Republican opponent, but in fact they are trying to reserve to themselves the exclusive right to say for whom the electoral votes of over a million Louisiana voters shall be cast.

"The people of Louisiana are not going to give any group a blank check to cast our ten electoral votes for president. Our people are entitled to vote for the President of their choice and to have these votes properly recorded and counted in the electoral college. The September, 1963 resolution should be rescinded."

to nominate J. Marshall Brown of New Orleans as the state's new National Democratic Committeeman.

Brown, a member of the State Board of Education who served as city campaign manager for Gov.-Elect John J. McKeithen in New Orleans, was elected without objection. He succeeds Harry Booth of Shreveport, who resigned.

Later Brown said, "I think President Johnson will run well in Louisiana. We will have to see who the vice presidential candidate will be. I don't think the people of this state would feel very kindly toward Bobby Kennedy or Sen. Hubert Humphrey."

Mrs. Jimmie A. Davis is the national committeewoman.

After the committee adjourned, spokesman on both sides of the free elector issue said they didn't think McKeithen took part in the committee's decision.

"I am pleased to believe that Mr. McKeithen has not taken a position against free electors," said Sen. Harold Montgomery, a Doyline solon who serves as chairman of the Louisiana Committee for Free Electors.

But he added, "I don't think he (McKeithen) has taken a position for it either."

"I lost three or four votes I thought I had," DeBlieux said. "I don't know whether they were McKeithen people or not. From all indications, McKeithen didn't have a part in this"

McKeithen didn't attend, but his secretary, Gus Weill, watched the meeting before an applauding crowd of Citizens Council members carrying placards.

Voorhies, however, said in an interview that he planned to offer his motion to rescind the free elector plan when the committee meets again in May to call the July congressional elections.

"We got snarled up in procedure and never got off the ground," Voorhies said.

Actually, after the committee vote of 51-50 against tabling Perez's motion was announced, DeBlieux took the floor to call for a second vote, contending that the voting was in reverse.

But Perez, backed by Arthur Watson of Natchitoches, moved to adjourn. DeBlieux protested while Downs ruled that Perez's motion for adjournment was in order.

Before the committee voted on a motion by Ramon E. Billeaud of Broussard to table Perez attempts to put off a vote gero Jr. of New Orleans said, "I just as soon as have the vote on the Perez substitute motion. Mr. Perez attempstst o put off a vote on this, but we should clear the air for the Legislature to make changes in the election laws."

Later he added, "I just don't think we should disenfranchise the citizens of this state who might want to vote for Mr. Johnson or Mr. Goldwater or Mr. Nixon."

Under past election procedures, Louisiana voters voting for the Democratic nominee thus instructed the state's 10 electors to cast their ballots with the party nominee.

But Rep. John Rau of Jefferson Parish took an opposite view, asking Calogero, "Are you aware that the resolution you proposed would disenfranchise the voters and this committee by guaranteeing to the Democratic party a place for the nominee on the ballot?"

"I believe that's what it says," Calogero said. "We feel that the national nominee ought to be on the ballot in the general election."

"What coice would the voters have if the committee was bound to the nominees to the national convention?," Rau asked.

At the outset of the special session, Perez, taking the floor to stall a vote on the free elector plan, said, "We who have attended convention after convention know who controls the nomination. Is there any doubt that LBJ will be nominated? Is there any doubt that Robert Kennedy will be nominated if Walter Reuther has his way? Is there any doubt that Hubert Humphry will be nominated if Dave Dubinsky has his way?"

He added, "You can't continue to do that to the people of Louisiana and expect to maintain the constitutional government of this body."

Perez's victory was his second on the committee regarding free electors, but he lost on a movement to pass a free elector bill in the Legislature last June. He later took the issue to the committee.

Howard, Ouachita; E. G. Brown, Richland; Burton L. Wade, Tensas; T. T. Fields, Union; John Thomas Kelly, West Carroll; and S. L. Garrett, Winn.

After the meeting, Billeaud produced a telegram from five Louisiana congressmen voicing their opposition to the free elector plan. The telegram was signed by Hale Boggs, New Orleans, Edwin E. Willis, Third District, James H. Morrison, Sixth District, T. A. Thompson, Seventh District, and Gillis W. Long, Eighth District.

Mobs In Los Angeles Attack Police With Bricks, Bottles

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Hurling bottles, bricks and taunts of derision, mobs Friday night and Saturday attacked police in outbursts of violence on Los Angeles' teeming South Side.

The incidents occurred as a huge force of sheriff's vice officers were raiding a nearby section where citizens had called a mass meeting to discuss lawlessness they said was out of hand.

In the mob violence two officers were injured, four police vehicles damaged and six persons arrested.

Mobs In Los Angeles Attack Police With Bricks, Bottles

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Hurling bottles, bricks and taunts of derision, mobs Friday night and Saturday attacked police in outbursts of violence on Los Angeles' teeming South Side.

The incidents occurred as a huge force of sheriff's vice officers were raiding a nearby section where citizens had called a mass meeting to discuss lawlessness they said was out of hand.

In the mob violence two officers were injured, four police vehicles damaged and six persons arrested.

The action took place in the overcrowded sector running south of Los Angeles along Central Avenue, the overwhelmingly Negro district integration leaders call "the black ghetto."

The event will take place on the first evening of the two-day show, with cash prizes being awarded to the three top ranking contestants. Following the hootenany there will be an announcement of the selection of the 1964 Auto Show Queen from a field of 13 contestants representing the sponsoring auto and truck dealers. Last year's Auto Show Queen, Betty Varino, will crown her successor.

The show will be launched 10 a.m. Saturday with a parade through downtown Monroe and West Monroe, and at 1 p.m. displays of the latest models of new cars and trucks will be opened to the general public. F. N. (Sticky) Steele will serve as parade marshal. The displays will be open until 9 p.m. on Saturday, and from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

The Sunday schedule of concerts at the Auto Show is as follows: 1:30 p.m. Neville High School Band; 3 p.m. Ouachita Parish High School Band, and 4:15 p.m. West Monroe High School Band.

Several dealers will have special exhibits at the show in addition to displays of new cars and trucks.

Voting in the queen competition, featuring entries from local high schools and Northeast State College, will start Monday at Eastgate Shopping Center stores and will continue until 5 p. m. Saturday.

AT HOFFA'S TRIAL

Louisiana Teamster Mentioned RFK Plot

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) —Court records showed Saturday that a mysterious "assassination plot" mentioned during James R. Hoffa's jury-tampering trial involved an alleged threat to kill Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Chief Prosecutor James Neal, in a secret session of court Feb. 6, said the government's chief witness "reported (to the FBI) a threat by James Hoffa to kill the attorney general." Neal said he personally knew nothing about it.

At the time, it was revealed Saturday, U.S. Dist. Judge Frank Wilson ruled that the witness—Teamsters Union official Edward G. Partin of Baton Rouge, La.—could not be cross-examined in connection with the alleged threat, because it was not relevant to the trial.

Partin was secretary and business agent of the Baton Rouge local and the government's key witness in the Chattanooga trial. Testimony by Partin linked Hoffa to tampering efforts.

When the cryptic reference to the assassination plot came before the jury—without elaboration — on Feb. 28, Teamsters President Hoffa angrily told newsmen, "I deny it, it's a lie and it never happened."

Hoffa and three others were convicted March 4 of trying to fix a federal court jury. They are free on bond pending appeal of prison sentences.

When it came up in court, there was no explanation of the assassination plot except for assurance that it did not involve the death of the late President John F. Kennedy, the attorney general's brother.

The transcript of the secret session in which Neal mentioned the threat against Robert Kennedy's life was ordered sealed at the time. It became public during the past week when Judge Wilson filed a memorandum explaining why he had denied a new trial to Hoffa and the others convicted.

In Chicago, where he goes on trial April 27 on a charge of misusing $20 million in union pension funds, Hoffa accused both the government and Judge Wilson of seeking to prejudice that case.

"I think the federal government knows full well they have prejudiced the defendants' opportunity of getting a fair trial in Chicago by the publication of this secret hearing. This will just be more inflammatory matter, adding more fuel to the fire, by the attorney general and the court releasing this most prejudicial and unfair statement. I can't understand why a court would do such a thing."

Hoffa again repeated his earlier contention that the report of the alleged threat was false.

Those going include Archie D. Parker Jr., 2017 Park Ave., Monroe, Col. Howard P. Landry, 500 Cole Ave., Monroe, Renford C. Rodgers, 2509 N. 7th St., West Monroe, and Harold T. Scott, 813 S. 7th St., Monroe.

AT HOFFA'S TRIAL

Louisiana Teamster Mentioned RFK Plot

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) —Court records showed Saturday that a mysterious "assassination plot" mentioned during James R. Hoffa's jury-tampering trial involved an alleged threat to kill Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Chief Prosecutor James Neal, in a secret session of court Feb. 6, said the government's chief witness "reported (to the FBI) a threat by James Hoffa to kill the attorney general." Neal said he personally knew nothing about it.

At the time, it was revealed Saturday, U.S. Dist. Judge Frank Wilson ruled that the witness—Teamsters Union official Edward G. Partin of Baton Rouge, La.—could not be cross-examined in connection with the alleged threat, because it was not relevant to the trial.

Partin was secretary and business agent of the Baton Rouge local and the government's key witness in the Chattanooga trial. Testimony by Partin linked Hoffa to tampering efforts.

When the cryptic reference to the assassination plot came before the jury—without elaboration — on Feb. 28, Teamsters President Hoffa angrily told newsmen, "I deny it, it's a lie and it never happened."

Hoffa and three others were convicted March 4 of trying to fix a federal court jury. They are free on bond pending appeal of prison sentences.

When it came up in court, there was no explanation of the assassination plot except for assurance that it did not involve the death of the late President John F. Kennedy, the attorney general's brother.

The transcript of the secret session in which Neal mentioned the threat against Robert Kennedy's life was ordered sealed at the time. It became public during the past week when Judge Wilson filed a memorandum explaining why he had denied a new trial to Hoffa and the others convicted.

In Chicago, where he goes on trial April 27 on a charge of misusing $20 million in union pension funds, Hoffa accused both the government and Judge Wilson of seeking to prejudice that case.

"I think the federal government knows full well they have prejudiced the defendants' opportunity of getting a fair trial in Chicago by the publication of this secret hearing. This will just be more inflammatory matter, adding more fuel to the fire, by the attorney general and the court releasing this most prejudicial and unfair statement. I can't understand why a court would do such a thing."

Hoffa again repeated his earlier contention that the report of the alleged threat was false.

Soviets, Hungarian s Rebuff Chinese

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet and Hungarian Communist parties called in a communique published Saturday for "A resolute rebuff to the anti-Leninist conceptions and subversive activities" of Red China's leaders.

The joint statement, issued by Premier Khrushchev and Premier Janos Kadar as the respective party chiefs, was fresh ammunition for Khrushchev's 10-day visit to Hungary. Khrushchev returned by train from Budapest Saturday night.

He will speak over Soviet radio and television Sunday.

"The Communist party of the Soviet Union and the Hungarian Socialist Workers party denounce most emphatically the factional activities of the Chinese leaders," the communique said in calling for the rebuff.

"Both parties believe that the most important task of Marxist-Leninist parties in present day conditions is to work for strengthening the unity of the international Communist movement against splitting activities of the Chinese Communist leadership, which do great harm to the cause of the struggle for socialism and communism."

The phraseology reflected slashing attacks that Khrushchev made on the Chinese during his visit to Hungary. These were capped by his declaration in a speech Thursday that their malacious divisive efforts "will end in shameful failure."

While he was en route to Budapest, Peking had called on Communists of the world to "repudiate and liquidate Khrushchev's revisionism."

The Soviet Communist party responded last week by publishing a charge by its chief theoretician, Mikhail Suslov, that the Chinese are trying to split the Communist movement as a step toward installing Mao as a new Stalin to run the whole show.

The communique indicated Kadar is backing Khrushchev all the way in the clash between Moscow and Peking.

Belgians Strive To Settle Doctors' Strike

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)— Scattered outbreaks of scarlet fever, measles and mumps in three Belgian provinces goaded the government Saturday night to urgent new efforts to end an 11-day-old doctors' strike.

Strike leaders advised parents in Liege, Antwerp and Luxembourg provinces to keep their children home from school Monday to prevent spread of the infections.

A spokesman for the strikers said: "Emergency medical arrangements set up by the doctors are coping with the cases reported thus far. But there have been isolated cases in three provinces, and it would be impossible to deal with an epidemic in present circumstances."

Since the walkout began, all serious cases of any type have been taken to hospitals, where standby teams of doctors have provided treatment. This arrangement has packed hospitals throughout the country. There are no extra facilities available to take care of a major outbreak.

For the third time in as many days, Premier Theo Lefevre and several of his top ministers met with strike leaders.

Lefevre wants the doctors to end their strike before the two sides get down to bargaining about the new socialized medical law which Belgium's 12 000 physicians and dentists oppose. The strikers want the government to promise legislative revisions before they resume their normal round of house calls and the treatment of patients in their offices.

Lefevre was bitterly disappointed that a seven-hour meeting last night failed to produce a formula for ending the walkout.

While he was en route to Budapest, Peking had called on Communists of the world to "repudiate and liquidate Khrushchev's revisionism."

The Soviet Communist party responded last week by publishing a charge by its chief theoretician, Mikhail Suslov, that the Chinese are trying to split the Communist movement as a step toward installing Mao as a new Stalin to run the whole show.

The communique indicated Kadar is backing Khrushchev all the way in the clash between Moscow and Peking.

Belgians Strive To Settle Doctors' Strike

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)— Scattered outbreaks of scarlet fever, measles and mumps in three Belgian provinces goaded the government Saturday night to urgent new efforts to end an 11-day-old doctors' strike.

Strike leaders advised parents in Liege, Antwerp and Luxembourg provinces to keep their children home from school Monday to prevent spread of the infections.

A spokesman for the strikers said: "Emergency medical arrangements set up by the doctors are coping with the cases reported thus far. But there have been isolated cases in three provinces, and it would be impossible to deal with an epidemic in present circumstances."

Since the walkout began, all serious cases of any type have been taken to hospitals, where standby teams of doctors have provided treatment. This arrangement has packed hospitals throughout the country. There are no extra facilities available to take care of a major outbreak.

For the third time in as many days, Premier Theo Lefevre and several of his top ministers met with strike leaders.

Lefevre wants the doctors to end their strike before the two sides get down to bargaining about the new socialized medical law which Belgium's 12,000 physicians and dentists oppose. The strikers want the government to promise legislative revisions before they resume their normal round of house calls and the treatment of patients in their offices.

Lefevre was bitterly disappointed that a seven-hour meeting last night failed to produce a formula for ending the walkout.

Since the organization of the first public library in Ouachita Parish, many persons have gained enlightenment and enjoyment in reading books made available through the steadily increasing facilities.

"Reading is the Key," is the theme for National Library Week observance which begins in Ouachita Parish this week.

The growth of the public library in America since the first was founded in 1803 at Salisbury, Conn., has been tremendous.

And the growth of the public library system in Ouachita Parish since the first book for public lending came into existence in 1916 has matched the national growth in almost equal stride.

FIRST BOOK DONATED

Almost 48 years ago today, the first book for what was then known as the Monroe Public Library was donated for public lending. The first library in the parish was founded in a small building on Wood St. just opposite the courthouse April 18, 1916. The building had previously been used as a coal house.

This first library, which had no public money to support it, sold memberships for $2.50 per year to finance its services and opened its door to lend books to the public May 8, 1916. On that day, fifteen books were purchased for children, all of which have long since been worn out and discarded. Since that time when persons paid to have the privilege to check books out of the public library, many changes have taken place and some 28,000 books have been read and worn out.

MOST NOTABLE

Most notable of these changes is the "free" book lending service now offered by the libraries. These services have grown to include not only lending of books, but also the lending of record albums, microfilms copies and use of rooms for meetings, supplying of readers guides, attractive displays of new reading material and programs aimed at creating a love of reading among both the young and the old.

And not only has the public library system grown, but the book-lending process has spread to the city and parish school systems as well as churches.

The growth of the library facilities in Ouachita Parish is pointed up by a view of the records of just over the past 20 years.

During 1944, the parish had one public library located at 418 Jackson Street in Monroe with 24,704 volumes and a circulation of 302,839. The library staff consisted of one professional librarian and four clerical workers.

SCHOOL LIBRARIES

In the Ouachita Parish school system ,there were three central school libraries ,three central libraries in the city system and one central library in the parochial system. Northeast Louisiana State College, then still a junior college, boasted a library of 8,641 volumes with two professional librarians and one sub-professional. There were no church libraries.

Today, there are four public library structures plus two traveling libraries in the form of bookmobiles with 92,762 volumes total and a circulation for the first quarter of this year of 139,-441 and during 1963, the circulation hit 497,244.

The Ouachita Parish school system now has 37 libraries with approximately 90,000 volumes for lending and was the first parish school system in the state to have a library in every school. Two of these libraries have won the Modisette award for outstanding progress in recent years. They include Lakeshore Elementary and Ouachita Parish High. The Monroe city system has five libraries with around 55,000 books and the parochial schools have four libraries.

NEW FACILITIES

Northeast State College recently moved their library into a beautiful, modern building with 70,418 volumes and seven professional librarians to help serve the growing student body .

Church libraries now total around 12 in the Twin Cities with an unknown number of books in circulation. The church libraries include ones at the First Presbyterian, Covenant Presbyteran, First Baptist, Parkview Baptist, College Place Baptist, Lakeshore Baptist, First Methodist, St. Paul's Methodist, Grace Episcopal churches in Monroe, and the First Baptist, First Methodist and Ridge Avenue Baptist churches in West Monroe.

SUPPORT MEANS

The Ouachita Parish public library is now supported by a library tax plus a state fund and operates on a budget of $177,-924.24 annually. The library has four beautiful brick structures—one located at 1800 Stubbs Avenue, one at 418 Jackson St., one at 315 Cypress Street in West Monroe, and a Negro library, Carver Branch at 116 N. 10th St. There are two bookmobiles and a staff which includes eight professionals and 22 non-professionals. During the past year, books distributed among adult readers came to 217,607 and 487,244 among the juvenile set. Of these books read, in the adult readers, 58 per cent were of the fiction class, 37.5 per cent were non-fiction, and 45 per cent were magazines. In the juvenile bracket, 69 per cent of the total books read were fiction, 25.7 per cent were non-fiction and 5.3 er cent were magazines.

MANY ACTIVITIES

Saluting National Library Week are many activities planned throughout the parish. Kicking off the festivities will be an open house being held at the new NLSC Sandel Library on campus today from 3 to 5 p.m.

Interesting books will be displayed at the open house. The books on display are either by local or area authors, or of local interest. In many instances, the authors will be on hand today to discuss their books with callers. Books to be displayed whose authors will be present throughout the open house include "Think Spiritually," by Mike John; "Land of Evangeline,' by Ethel Green Russell; "Sketches," by May Smith White; "Audubon Trail," by Peggy Garnett; "Guide to Guatemala," by Bob Evans; "Biedenharn Heritage," by Emmy-Lou Biedenharn; "Kellogg Genealogy," by Walter Kellogg; and "Corn Pone And Pot Likker," by Blanche G. Literary Crawfish

The brain child of a state author is being used effectively as an educational aid. Here is a report on the case of Clovis Crawfish.

MRS. MARY ALICE FONTENOT

Clovis Crawfish is a mud dweller on Bayou Queue de la Grenouille which means "Bayou Tail of the Frog" in South Louisiana.

However, the important thing about "Clovis" (pronounced Klaw-VEES) is that he was the brain child of a Louisiana author and is helping Louisiana youngsters learn facts about nature, its creatures and the French Acadian section of our state through the easy medium of storybooks.

CLOVIS CRAWFISH

The creator of "Clovis" is not only an author but a competent newspaper woman — Mrs. Mary Alice Fontenot, from Opelousas. She is the area director for the Opelousas Daily World and writes children's books based on a "Clovis" series in her spare time.

RECOMMENDED READING

Mrs. Fontenot's first book about "Clovis Crawfish and His Friends" was released in 1962. Not only does she acquaint her young readers with creatures of the bayou country, but she uses French phrases and idioms throughout the book, accompanied by pronunciations and meanings guides. The series is recommended excellent reading for grades one through four by the Louisiana State Department of Education.

The stories are full of colorful creatures taken from nature and given typical French names such as "Rene' Rain Frog, Theodore Turtle, Fernand Frog, Maurice Mosquito Hawk, Christophe Cricket, Bertile Butterfly and Denis Dirt Dauber."

KNOWN AS GRANDMA

Mrs. Fontenot has been on the editorial staffs of Louisiana newspapers for the past 18 years and is a native of Eunice, La., in St. Landry Parish, and is of French Acadian descent. She is an intimate friend of the well known author, Frances Parkinson Keyes.

Mrs. Fontenot, affectionately known as "Grandma" to many, is in her middle 50s. Her authorship of the "Clovis" stories was an outgrowth of tales she improvised to entertain a young friend, the son of a U. S. Air Force captain in Japan. She also had plenty of practice at "story telling" prior to this, since she "made up" stories for her own two children, her grandchildren of which she has six, and for pupils at St. Edmund kindergarten in Eunice. Her unique books are illustrated by another Eunice resident, six-foot, four-inch Reginald Allen Keller, also of Acadian descent.

Mrs. Fontenot will be the guest of the West Monroe High School French Club on the morning of Monday, April 20, and will hold an autograph party that same afternoon in a downtown book and stationers store.

Prophets Of Bloodshed

In Cleveland, O., residents of a certain neighborhood, plus a few fanatics from the outside, staged a riot in an effort to prevent the construction of a fine, new school building that was being erected for them.

They didn't want the new school because it was being built in a Negro neighborhood and the Negroes knew that, under school district regulations, their children would be expected to attend it. That, they claimed, amounted to de facto segregation. No requirement of the Negroes was made that was not made of white people in white neighborhoods but the Negroes wanted to travel longer distances to school so they could mix with white people. They were not content with equal facilities and equal opportunities but insisted on the mixing.

When a tractor driver, excavating for the school, backed up to keep from running over several persons who had thrown themselves in front of his tractor, he ran over a white preacher who had thrown himself on the ground behind the vehicle and the preacher was killed.

The preacher was a martyr and for that we are willing to give him credit. But for what cause? People can become martyrs for any cause, no matter how unreasonable.

There was a time when Negroes protested because not enough schools were built for them. Now they protest, conduct violent demonstrations and fight police because an effort is being made to build a modern, first class school for them.

In Lexington, Ky., not long ago Negroes conducted a mass demonstration demanding that they be given their "rights." White people in that thriving, fast-growing, thoroughly modern city were perplexed by the demonstration and wanted to know what prompted it. Within the recollection of most of the people living in Lexington, there has been virtually no segregation. With a proportionately small Negro population, Negroes had been accepted in some white schools in that vicinity long before pro-Negro moves were started by the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Negroes were freely admitted to places of business.

In the little college town of Wilmore, some 17 miles from Lexington, where there are only a few Negro families, the Negroes have attended white schools and churches and have eaten where they chose as a matter of course since the days Negroes first arrived there many years ago. The same general atmosphere has prevailed in Lexington.

Negro demonstrations, even without cause, have become a sort of craze, with many of the white persons participating in them seeking publicity more than anything else. By senseless, useless demonstrations, Negroes are losing friends even among those who have supported them. In Lexington some people remarked, "It surely hasn't made us think any more of them or their cause."

The death of the preacher in Cleveland was a ghastly and unnecessary accident, precipitated by a mob demonstration that had no sensible cause. If what the man did was not legally suicide, it is still true that he invited death. Who would be foolish enough to throw himself under a truck that was backing up to keep from running over other demonstrators?

As one commentator pointed out, "This is the price that racial demonstrations demand. What purports to be non-violence brings violence and death. Violating laws and battling with police, as the demonstrators did in Cleveland, can scarcely be called non-violence.

"There remains the orderly course of law and the courts and the congress. The death in Cleveland is a warning — not a threat, but a warning.

"Men who try to use reason are beaten into resistance. Those who advocate fairness are drowned out by the tumult.

"It should not and must not be that way in America."

With congress and the supreme court virtually gone rampant in their behalf, the integrationists are still not content. They demand violence under the misnomer of "non-violence."

President's Fast Miles

President Johnson breezes down Texas highways at reported speeds of 85 or 90 miles an hour have been getting more proportionate attention across the nation than an old-fashioned medicine show used to get in a hick town.

One cartoon showed the president "fanning the breeze at 80 or 90" and showed other cars pulling off to the side of the road to get out of his way. One car, it was reported, actually did pull off the road.

On good four-lane highways such as many of those in Texas and some of those in Louisiana no one pulls over when a car goes by at 90 miles an hour. In fact, they scarcely notice it.

Recently, on Interstate 20 between Monroe and Arcadia a "law-abiding" citizen was cruising along about 75 miles an hour. Two cars passed him at a speed that might well have made him think he was going backward. They must have been making a good 85 or 90 but attracted little attention.

Shortly afterward a state police car showed up from the rear. It was traveling silently and no one paid much attention to it except to move to the right side of the road so it could pass on the left. Only the driver of the police car knew how fast he was traveling but it wasn't long before the "legal" drivers caught up with both him and the faster-traveling of the two speeding cars, parked at the side of the road. In a few minutes the police car had overtaken a car that could easily have been doing 90. The police car's speed may have been 100 or more. Yet, his car was moving as smoothly as velvet and there was no wavering and no noise. No one pulled off the road to escape and no one was much concerned, except that they laughed a little at the fate of the speeder.

The president's secretary, George Reedy, was "surprised" at reports that Johnson had been speeding and said he had never known the president to exceed the Texas speed limits. The president himself, at a press conference, denied driving too fast and couldn't recall going over 70.

A couple of reporters with Johnson were quoted as saying at that time that John McCormack, speaker of the house, who would succeed Johnson in case of the president's death, would make a good president. Apparently the newsmen did not comment on who would succeed them as reporters.

President Johnson was driving a high - powered car that can cruise at 90 and that could tear the chain off a 120-mile-an-hour speedometer.

Johnson was setting a bad example. People may think, "If the president doesn't care any more than that for his life, why should I care more than that for mine."

That kind of speed is bad but consider another kind that is worse. Figures show that under President Johnson, who said he was going to place the nation on an economy basis, federal spending is running:

Views Of Our Readers

Governor Wallace

Chatham, La.

To the Editor:

I wish to express my appreciation for those good editorials you have been writing lately, and I surely did appreciate your analysis and evaluation on the results of Governor Wallace's efforts in Wisconsin.

Of course, it is going to be made light of and belittled by those so-called civil rights pushers, but it was said before he ran that he couldn't poll over 10 per cent of the vote, regardless, and if he did so it would be a sure sign that people in the north and northwest aren't so strong for it, but now they say it was done through a form of trickery, therefore it is to be disregarded, but if I remember it was stated earlier that Wallace might poll about 100,000 votes if certain Republicans did cross party lines, and if the governor did draw all the conservative votes in the state. So now we see, according to this result, he must have drawn a few liberals.

I wish to emphasize again the part religion has played and is playing in this movement. We have many Christian leaders, so-called, who seem to believe if this bill is passed and enforced then the Millenium is bound to come and the church will have the praise and the glory. We have many preachers in all leading faiths who make light of the differences in the races and they twist the scriptures to teach the modern viewpoint. Isn't it strange that so many are now finding so much when the Bible itself teaches that in the latter days spiritual truths and the truths of the word of God shall be known less and less and give way to the so-called knowledge of man? The prophet Daniel said knowledge would be increased and men would run to and for, but he was not talking of Scriptural knowledge, but of worldly and material knowledge, now known as science.

One of the strongest teachings these so-called Godly men use today is found in the Old and New Testaments and taken alone it says, "For there is no respect of persons with God." Rom. 2:11. However, they fail to reach down to the bottom of this teaching and teach it completely. The word respect in our English has several meanings and one of those means to owe or be indebted to, another to pay respect and of course the Bible teaches in several places that man is so indebted and must honor and respect man, or men with whatever respect is due for a position, accomplishment etc., but since God is Divine, Eternal, Creator and etc., then all we have and all we are is not enough for him to owe us any respect since He made it possible.

Our modern preachers use this to teach that no person or race is above another, but the fact that God made differences proves the fallacy of this kind of reasoning. Deut. 10:15 says, "Only the Lord had a delight in thy fathers to love them, and he chose their seed after them, even you above all people, as it is this day." If this scripture doesn't teach a difference in people, then what does it teach: I know it also teaches that the children cannot rest on the good works of the fathers and that God upholds the true worshippers, but this proves there is a difference and God does respect or acknowledge such as worship him in Spirit and Truth. God has no respect of those who teach others to break laws and use violence and destruction, so doing in order to gain a point and the fact that it is being done proves the whole movement is of the Devil, for he is the father of the lie and confusion. Gen. 4, "And the Lord had respect unto Abel and to his offering." Now Cain did not receive this respect and he became violent and a murderer, so he was removing in his own way that which seemed to be between himself and the blessings of God. Isn't this happening again today? If so called equality cannot be won by and through love it cannot be won by lies and cheating and violence.

Rev. Cecil H. Venable

General MacArthur

To the Editor:

Monroe, La.

In a time such as we are experiencing, words do not seem to mean much, unless one knows, and has had at least some knowledge of what went on in the Korean scene when the general of the Army and Commander of the United Nations troops in that area was so ignominiously relieved of all command by the man in the white house, Harry Truman.

I was stationed at Atsugi Naval Air Station, 35 miles from Tokyo, when this happened at the same base where the general landed when he arrived to take over the control of Japan. I have read some of the articles sent by newspaper men at the scene when these things happened; I saw numerous holes in the ironwork of the hangars, made by U.S. planes strafing before the surrender. The outfit to which I was attached, MCB 2, did a great deal of the rebuilding of the runway, hangars and other facilities at this same base. We first heard of the firing by telephone from Tokyo. It was more than a shock — it was much more like some of the tremors we had felt at times, when the earth seemed to feel that men was taking too much for granted.

My work was running the unit security regimental guard under the security officer, who also ran personnel. As we had some native Japs doing guard duty outside the base peremiter, I had to use a young Jap from that office as my interpreter. About three weeks after the general was removed, Mogi was in my office for such a meeting. After the man was told about his duty, I asked Mogi to sit down for a little. I asked him how the average man in Japan felt on this thing of General MacArthur's being removed from his command, as I wished to know the reaction of the common man, not any of those high in office, of such tactics. Here was his reply:

"Chief, first let me tell you that we Japanese have a different code of ethics, a different standard of morals than you have in America. We admire a conqueror. He had beaten our best. We expected the worst, but we were very much surprised when he, instead of putting his foot on our necks and pushing us down, immediately began to show us how to rehabilitate and build back. We learned to respect and love him and we are going to miss him."

This young man was a university man, and spoke excellent English.

So, this was the man who, while trying to win a war, overrode the advice of the joint chiefs of staff, took the Seabees to Inchon, had the tides studied, as well as the mud flats, landed troops there with minutes to spare, in spite of plus 30 foot tides and many other difficulties. This was the man who wanted to bomb the bridges over the Yalu river, but was ordered not to do so. Only the approaches on the Korean side could be bombed. Our planes could not cross that river in pursuit of the Russian Migs and were handicapped by this order.

From that day to this, I have wondered who gave the man in the white house the order to remove the general. He was not only the leading officer of the United States, but was the United Nations commander, for whatever that meant. This would take the responsibility away from Truman as just his own jealousy, but might involve others in the UN. Such persons as Konstantine Zinchenko, undersecretary for political and security council affairs at that time was a Russian. I remember how the Russians insisted on talking during the time this was going on, accusing the United States of all sorts of aggression. I also remember a navy ventura plane, with 10 men aboard, two of whom were chiefs from my own chief's mess, shot down by Russian planes over the Japan sea. I remember of a chief telling of Russian mines, set adrift in the Yalu river to damage traffic in the Japan Sea, and numerous things which the people at home never had much knowledge about.

I think the fellows in Washington were either scared to try to win, or were persuaded to stalemate the deal. I have nothing but the utmost contempt for those who did engineer this dirty deal to a great man and officer, and I agree with him that, "There is no substitute for Victory."

Civil Rights Bill

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

There has been a lot said and written about the so-called civil rights bill now in the hands of the senate, and the integration question.

It seems a lot of high, exalted so-called do-gooders and a lot of so-called Bible scholars and high and mighty ministers that are fighting for integration should go back to the days of Noah and look real close at what God said about integration and why the flood destroyed all humanity except Noah and his family.

Too many people don't know that race trouble had more to do with the flood coming than anything else. Marriage and intermarriage of races was the main cause of God's sending the flood. Yet the highly self-exalted of this country and of the world are working tooth and toenail blindly to the same sad ending as in the days of Noah.

If our congressmen and senators and the president, along with these co-called do-gooders would do a lot of close research on what God said about these questions, before writing laws into our constitution, life would be more pleasant for all people, regardless of race, creed or color.

To the Editor:

There is much being said about this being a changing world. Those who are trying to change it are no asset to our nation.

Robert Kennedy once said, "We are a young group that is going to take this country over." Wonder if he will ever learn that this is God's country to run instead of his?

If Robert Kennedy had attended to his business and made the communists register, instead of trying to put a Negro in school in Mississippi, his brother might not have been assassinated by a communist.

Woe to the Americans if Bobby Kennedy ever gets back into harness.

MacArthur Tribute

To the Editor

This is a tribute to one of the greatest soldiers of all time, General Douglas MacArthur.

General of the Armies Douglas MacArthur was just an old soldier and not a politician. He did not know how to lose the peace but General MacArthur only knew how to win wars.

When the Foreign policy makers in Washington had President Truman remove General MacArthur from Korea, America lost not only the services of a great General in that "minor skirmish" which was killing many Americans, but also America formed a habit of appeasement which was followed again and again in Berlin and Cuba.

General MacArthur was a great man of vision and was almost true to his statement that old soldiers never die, they just fade away. This great soldier was almost victor even over death and General of The Armies Douglas MacArthur, victorious in wars and uncompromising, can never fade away.

The new frontier will probably not produce such a soldier but the spirit of FREEDOM which made America great might produce another great American!

Rights Bill Like Prohibition Law

IT'S DOLLARS to doughnuts not one person in 10,000 even remembers Minnesota Congressman Andrew J. Volstead. Who recalls the debates — and honest hopes — that fueled his Federal Prohibition Act?

Through the vast, complex civil rights bill will we again fail to see the difference between a salutary idea and a specific piece of legislation? At least the background for the liquor banishment law was promising. Today's enormous legislation, as presented, is not. We'd had state prohibition as early as 1851 (Maine), and Kansas was a model.

Prohibition laws worked well because they were based on the will of the region. When national prohibition was enacted (Jan., 1920) more than two-thirds of all the states — 33 — already had prohibition in effect, as did 85 percent of all the nation's counties.

President Wilson vetoed the Federal Prohibition Act. But the House had passed the bill, with its vast Federal machinery for enforcement, 287 to 100. Then both the House and Senate overrode President Wilson's warnings on the same day he vetoed the bill.

WILSON FORESAW what our country was to learn — that the difference between the fine objective and the bill was the difference between day and night. For all people everywhere did not feel the same and the collar of Federal control became admittedly America's darkest chapter in loss of respect for laws. The words "snooper" (enforcement sleuth), bootlegger, "Bayo" and bathtub gin and the hip flask became a part of our nation's language and equipment, as did Al Capone.

Within a few months our police agencies and courts alike were plunged into a tragic chaos that lasted 14 years; utterly unable to cope with violations, definitions, judications — and human nature.

The initial idealism was snowed under. Ultimately political fixers who could wipe out penalties for violations, gangsters who got too rich to touch, inside henchmen, bureaucrats, smugglers, vested interests and even large parts of the legal profession became the chief supporters of the "noble experiment."

THIRTY-SIX STATE legislatures debated and ratified this law and it entered our Constitution as the 18th Amendment, until finally booted out. The gigantic civil rights bill enjoys no such reassuring background, such study and debate.

There was little politics in the Federal prohibition idea. Yet present civil rights contentions are admittedly loaded with personal politics and no little coercion as well. Idealism is widely present, but it is also widely absent. So is clear-headedness and courage in both parties and in both branches of Congress.

Passage of the bill by the House was really passing the buck to the Senate. How many Congressmen or Senators have even read carefully the 55-page fine-print document? At least this writer has done that; a document already debated as utterly bewildering. It's like reading the fine print in 55 insurance policies all tossed into one lump. Yet, whether they've read the bill or not, many in Congress will tell you they're not going to vote against "civil rights" in this election year. Is that the way to run a railroad?

SENATE MEMBERS' bad attendance reflects equal irresponsibility, even though some Senators of principle are being heard on each side of the argument. Our Congress has just finished one shabby demonstration. This occurred when House members intended to boot their own salaries $10,000 by voice vote, but fearfully backed away and didn't do so when a roll call of their votes was demanded.

Senate pro-and-con attendance in the civil rights affair has been so slim that sponsor Hubert H. Humphrey suggests he may even invoke the little-known rule compelling members to attend by ordering the sergeant-at-arms to arrest and bring them in.

Meanwhile, grass-roots resistances especially in politically decisive cities like Detroit, Chicago, New York reportedly grow against enactment. Many legislators are marking time until they can decipher the voices from back home. This makes them, in effect, merely agents of whatever groups are most indispensable in the November election.

Such a travesty on government may be good for the politician on the make, but it is disastrous for the public welfare.

Prophets Of Bloodshed

In Cleveland, O., residents of a certain neighborhood, plus a few fanatics from the outside, staged a riot in an effort to prevent the construction of a fine, new school building that was being erected for them.

They didn't want the new school because it was being built in a Negro neighborhood and the Negroes knew that, under school district regulations, their children would be expected to attend it. That, they claimed, amounted to de facto segregation. No requirement of the Negroes was made that was not made of white people in white neighborhoods but the Negroes wanted to travel longer distances to school so they could mix with white people. They were not content with equal facilities and equal opportunities but insisted on the mixing.

When a tractor driver, excavating for the school, backed up to keep from running over several persons who had thrown themselves in front of his tractor, he ran over a white preacher who had thrown himself on the ground behind the vehicle and the preacher was killed.

The preacher was a martyr and for that we are willing to give him credit. But for what cause? People can become martyrs for any cause, no matter how unreasonable.

There was a time when Negroes protested because not enough schools were built for them. Now they protest, conduct violent demonstrations and fight police because an effort is being made to build a modern, first class school for them.

In Lexington, Ky., not long ago Negroes conducted a mass demonstration demanding that they be given their "rights." White people in that thriving, fast-growing, thoroughly modern city were perplexed by the demonstration and wanted to know what prompted it. Within the recollection of most of the people living in Lexington, there has been virtually no segregation. With a proportionately small Negro population, Negroes had been accepted in some white schools in that vicinity long before pro-Negro moves were started by the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Negroes were freely admitted to places of business.

In the little college town of Wilmore, some 17 miles from Lexington, where there are only a few Negro families, the Negroes have attended white schools and churches and have eaten where they chose as a matter of course since the days Negroes first arrived there many years ago. The same general atmosphere has prevailed in Lexington.

Negro demonstrations, even without cause, have become a sort of craze, with many of the white persons participating in them seeking publicity more than anything else. By senseless, useless demonstrations, Negroes are losing friends even among those who have supported them. In Lexington some people remarked, "It surely hasn't made us think any more of them or their cause."

The death of the preacher in Cleveland was a ghastly and unnecessary accident, precipitated by a mob demonstration that had no sensible cause. If what the man did was not legally suicide, it is still true that he invited death. Who would be foolish enough to throw himself under a truck that was backing up to keep from running over other demonstrators?

As one commentator pointed out, "This is the price that racial demonstrations demand. What purports to be non-violence brings violence and death. Violating laws and battling with police, as the demonstrators did in Cleveland, can scarcely be called non-violence.

"There remains the orderly course of law and the courts and the congress. The death in Cleveland is a warning — not a threat, but a warning.

"Men who try to use reason are beaten into resistance. Those who advocate fairness are drowned out by the tumult.

"It should not and must not be that way in America."

With congress and the supreme court virtually gone rampant in their behalf, the integrationists are still not content. They demand violence under the misnomer of "non-violence."

President's Fast Miles

President Johnson breezes down Texas highways at reported speeds of 85 or 90 miles an hour have been getting more proportionate attention across the nation than an old-fashioned medicine show used to get in a hick town.

One cartoon showed the president "fanning the breeze at 80 or 90" and showed other cars pulling off to the side of the road to get out of his way. One car, it was reported, actually did pull off the road.

On good four-lane highways such as many of those in Texas and some of those in Louisiana no one pulls over when a car goes by at 90 miles an hour. In fact, they scarcely notice it.

Recently, on Interstate 20 between Monroe and Arcadia a "law-abiding" citizen was cruising along about 75 miles an hour. Two cars passed him at a speed that might well have made him think he was going backward. They must have been making a good 85 or 90 but attracted little attention.

Shortly afterward a state police car showed up from the rear. It was traveling silently and no one paid much attention to it except to move to the right side of the road so it could pass on the left. Only the driver of the police car knew how fast he was traveling but it wasn't long before the "legal" drivers caught up with both him and the faster-traveling of the two speeding cars, parked at the side of the road. In a few minutes the police car had overtaken a car that could easily have been doing 90. The police car's speed may have been 100 or more. Yet, his car was moving as smoothly as velvet and there was no wavering and no noise. No one pulled off the road to escape and no one was much concerned, except that they laughed a little at the fate of the speeder.

The president's secretary, George Reedy, was "surprised" at reports that Johnson had been speeding and said he had never known the president to exceed the Texas speed limits. The president himself, at a press conference, denied driving too fast and couldn't recall going over 70.

A couple of reporters with Johnson were quoted as saying at that time that John McCormack, speaker of the house, who would succeed Johnson in case of the president's death, would make a good president. Apparently the newsmen did not comment on who would succeed them as reporters.

President Johnson was driving a high - powered car that can cruise at 90 and that could tear the chain off a 120-mile-an-hour speedometer.

Johnson was setting a bad example. People may think, "If the president doesn't care any more than that for his life, why should I care more than that for mine."

That kind of speed is bad but consider another kind that is worse. Figures show that under President Johnson, who said he was going to place the nation on an economy basis, federal spending is running:

Governor Wallace

Chatham, La.

To the Editor:

I wish to express my appreciation for those good editorials you have been writing lately, and I surely did appreciate your analysis and evaluation on the results of Governor Wallace's efforts in Wisconsin.

Of course, it is going to be made light of and belittled by those so-called civil rights pushers, but it was said before he ran that he couldn't poll over 10 per cent of the vote, regardless, and if he did so it would be a sure sign that people in the north and northwest aren't so strong for it, but now they say it was done through a form of trickery, therefore it is to be disregarded, but if I remember it was stated earlier that Wallace might poll about 100,000 votes if certain Republicans did cross party lines, and if the governor did draw all the conservative votes in the state. So now we see, according to this result, he must have drawn a few liberals.

I wish to emphasize again the part religion has played and is playing in this movement. We have many Christian leaders, so-called, who seem to believe if this bill is passed and enforced then the Millenium is bound to come and the church will have the praise and the glory. We have many preachers in all leading faiths who make light of the differences in the races and they twist the scriptures to teach the modern viewpoint. Isn't it strange that so many are now finding so much when the Bible itself teaches that in the latter days spiritual truths and the truths of the word of God shall be known less and less and give way to the so-called knowledge of man? The prophet Daniel said knowledge would be increased and men would run to and for, but he was not talking of Scriptural knowledge, but of worldly and material knowledge, now known as science.

One of the strongest teachings these so-called Godly men use today is found in the Old and New Testaments and taken alone it says, "For there is no respect of persons with God." Rom. 2:11. However, they fail to reach down to the bottom of this teaching and teach it completely. The word respect in our English has several meanings and one of those means to owe or be indebted to, another to pay respect and of course the Bible teaches in several places that man is so indebted and must honor and respect man, or men with whatever respect is due for a position, accomplishment etc., but since God is Divine, Eternal, Creator and etc., then all we have and all we are is not enough for him to owe us any respect since He made it possible.

Our modern preachers use this to teach that no person or race is above another, but the fact that God made differences proves the fallacy of this kind of reasoning. Deut. 10:15 says, "Only the Lord had a delight in thy fathers to love them, and he chose their seed after them, even you above all people, as it is this day." If this scripture doesn't teach a difference in people, then what does it teach: I know it also teaches that the children cannot rest on the good works of the fathers and that God upholds the true worshippers, but this proves there is a difference and God does respect or acknowledge such as worship him in Spirit and Truth. God has no respect of those who teach others to break laws and use violence and destruction, so doing in order to gain a point and the fact that it is being done proves the whole movement is of the Devil, for he is the father of the lie and confusion. Gen. 4, "And the Lord had respect unto Abel and to his offering." Now Cain did not receive this respect and he became violent and a murderer, so he was removing in his own way that which seemed to be between himself and the blessings of God. Isn't this happening again today? If so called equality cannot be won by and through love it cannot be won by lies and cheating and violence.

General MacArthur

To the Editor:

Monroe, La.

In a time such as we are experiencing, words do not seem to mean much, unless one knows, and has had at least some knowledge of what went on in the Korean scene when the general of the Army and Commander of the United Nations troops in that area was so ignominiously relieved of all command by the man in the white house, Harry Truman.

I was stationed at Atsugi Naval Air Station, 35 miles from Tokyo, when this happened at the same base where the general landed when he arrived to take over the control of Japan. I have read some of the articles sent by newspaper men at the scene when these things happened; I saw numerous holes in the ironwork of the hangars, made by U.S. planes strafing before the surrender. The outfit to which I was attached, MCB 2, did a great deal of the rebuilding of the runway, hangars and other facilities at this same base. We first heard of the firing by telephone from Tokyo. It was more than a shock — it was much more like some of the tremors we had felt at times, when the earth seemed to feel that men was taking too much for granted.

My work was running the unit security regimental guard under the security officer, who also ran personnel. As we had some native Japs doing guard duty outside the base peremiter, I had to use a young Jap from that office as my interpreter. About three weeks after the general was removed, Mogi was in my office for such a meeting. After the man was told about his duty, I asked Mogi to sit down for a little. I asked him how the average man in Japan felt on this thing of General MacArthur's being removed from his command, as I wished to know the reaction of the common man, not any of those high in office, of such tactics. Here was his reply:

"Chief, first let me tell you that we Japanese have a different code of ethics, a different standard of morals than you have in America. We admire a conqueror. He had beaten our best. We expected the worst, but we were very much surprised when he, instead of putting his foot on our necks and pushing us down, immediately began to show us how to rehabilitate and build back. We learned to respect and love him and we are going to miss him."

This young man was a university man, and spoke excellent English.

So, this was the man who, while trying to win a war, overrode the advice of the joint chiefs of staff, took the Seabees to Inchon, had the tides studied, as well as the mud flats, landed troops there with minutes to spare, in spite of plus 30 foot tides and many other difficulties. This was the man who wanted to bomb the bridges over the Yalu river, but was ordered not to do so. Only the approaches on the Korean side could be bombed. Our planes could not cross that river in pursuit of the Russian Migs and were handicapped by this order.

From that day to this, I have wondered who gave the man in the white house the order to remove the general. He was not only the leading officer of the United States, but was the United Nations commander, for whatever that meant. This would take the responsibility away from Truman as just his own jealousy, but might involve others in the UN. In 1861, Confederate forces opened fire on Fort Sumter in the beginning of the Civil War.

In 1945, President Franklin D. Roosevelt died in Warm Springs, Ga., and Harry S. Truman became the 33rd president of the United States.

In 1961, Russia launched a man into space, the first human to orbit the earth and return safely.

A thought for the day: British Prime Minister Winston Churchill once said: "Nothing in life is so exhilarating as to be shot at without results."

Policy Antennae

AS CHAIRMAN of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, is in no position to make policy. However, his speech to Congress prior to the Easter recess has been viewed by many as a trial balloon for closer coexistence with at least some communist governments, if such a choice should be possible.

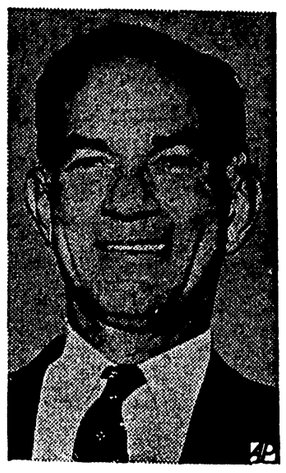
Now the senator from Arkansas has spoken out again, this time in Chapel Hill, North Carolina, in a keynote speech to the Carolina Symposium, a five-day lecture series at the University located there.

In his address, Fulbright said the "American people are not now exercising effective control over the military, and neither is the Congress."

Such a remark is almost certain to touch off controversy among supporters of a strong position in opposition to communist expansion.

FULBRIGHT SAID the military establishment has a vested interest in the continuation of the cold war and its high military spending.

He said the "elimination of superfluous defense funds" would encourage spending on domestic programs, and that "the cold war is an excuse, as well as a cause" for high military budgets.



J. WILLIAM FULBRIGHT

In his address, Fulbright pursued one of the points of his March 25 Senate speech. He said the nation's interest could be served better by ending the present "morbid preoccupation with the danger of Communist expansion abroad and subversion and disloyalty at home."

HE SAID President Johnson's proposed war on poverty and other education - welfare programs "are at least as important to the security of our country in the long term as a national defense establishment and a good deal more important than a voyage to the moon."

Strike Delayed

IT APPEARS now the nation-wide railway strike, which was all set to go into effect at midnight Friday, has been delayed for a 15-day cooling off period.

Of local significance, union and management also agreed to halt for a like period the strike against the Illinois Central Railroad which had actually begun last Wednesday.

THE DISPUTE centers around what the railroads call "featherbedding"-work rules that rail officials contend cost them $600 million annually.

A similar strike was threatened last summer, but Congress passed the first compulsory arbitration law in the nation's history and created a special arbitration panel directed to solve two central issues in the dispute—whether firemen are needed on freight and yard engines and the makeup of train crews.

THE PANEL said the railroads could eliminate gradually up to 90 per cent of firemen on diesel engines in freight and yard service, and set up procedures for local, binding arbitration on the question of makeup of train crews.

The unions appealed this award to the courts, but the railroads were upheld last March 4 unanimously by the Supreme Court.

Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz called union and management negotiators to a meeting at 8 p.m. Friday to try to head off the threatened transporation crisis.

Writz, acting at the direction of President Johnson, sent telegrams to negotiators for the railroads and heads of five railunions involved in the lengthy dispute.

President Johnson said labor and management responded as "Americans" to his plea to avoid the nationwide rail strike.

He said the 15-day moratorium would give negotiators time to discuss the knotty issues which have led to repeated union-management crises for at least four years.

WILLARD WIRTZ

The President's four hour session with principals in the dispute ended less than an hour and a half before the nationwide walkout was to have begun.

Johnson entered the picture in late afternoon when he summoned union and management representatives to the White House and urged that the strike be postponed and that the Ilinois Central walkout be suspended for the same period.

Gemini Flight

MEANWHILE IN another phase of transportation, that of passenger flights into outer space, the United States took another step forward with the successful launching of a two-man space capsule.

The United States rocketed an unmanned Gemini capsule into orbit Wednesday in a major step toward a space voyage by two astronauts aboard a similar craft within one year.

An 11-story Titan-2, carrying the two-seater capsule on its nose, blasted into the sky to inaugurate the flight test phase of America's second astronaut program, Project Gemini.

FIVE MINUTES and 33 seconds later, the cone-shaped capsule with its burned-out second stage still attached, streaked into orbit above Bermuda at a speed of more than 17,000 miles per hour.

"We've got an orbit," yelled a jubiliant Walter C. Williams, the Gemini operations director who today watched his final flight as an official in the program.

Also watching were the nation's 29 astronauts, two of whom will be nominated within the next few weeks to ride a Gemini capsule on a three-orbit trip around earth late this year or early in 1965.

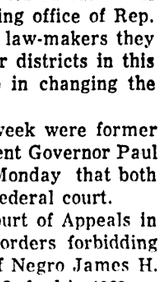
Scientists tracked the Gemini ship for only a few hours.

There were no plans to try to recover the craft from orbit.

Governors

TWO SOUTHERN governors made the national spotlight during the past week with Alabama's Governor George Wallace getting a surprisingly good showing in the Wisconsin primary and Louisiana's Governor-elect John McKeithen paying a visit to President Lyndon Johnson in Washington.

Governor Wallace, who said he would "shake the eye teeth" of both parties' leaders if he attracted more than 25,000 Wisconsin votes in his campaign against the civil rights bill, won more than 10 times that many in Tuesday's presidential primary.



GOV. WALLACE

Wisconsin Gov. John W. Reynolds, who headed a favorite - son delegation as the personal choice of President Johnson, won all of the state's 46 Democratic National Convention votes.

BUT FINAL unofficial returns from the Wisconsin balloting showed the Alabama governor had received more than 267,000 votes. This figure topped the 25 per cent he had hoped for at the outside.

Wallace told supporters at his downtown Milwaukee headquarters that their showing was a victory over administration Democrats "and they know it."

"This so-called civil rights bill is not in the interest of anybody," he declared, and thanked some 200 persons crowded into a hotel ballroom for their effort "to break up centralized gvernment."

He will take his campaign into the Maryland and Indiana primaries next month.

He said it appeared clear to President Johnson that he (McKeithen) was "still uncommitted" in the approaching presidential race.

He told reporters at various points in his visit that:

— He hopes to settle the long standing debate over Louisiana's share of the $620 million tidelands royalty fund "within a year if possible."

— He was "very impressed" by his first meeting with the president, a 15-minute discussion of "generalities" including the tidelands dispute and national politics.

He had "very encouraging" discussions in New York Tuesday and Wednesday with executives of "three of the nation's largest corporations in his effort to attract new industrial plants to Louisiana.

BETWEEN meetings, McKeithen lunched with all but two of the state's congressmen in the capitol building office of Rep. Hale Boggs of New Orleans. He warned the law-makers they faced Republican opposition in most of their districts in this summer's primaries and appealed for help in changing the state's primary laws.

ALSO FIGURING in events of the past week were former Mississippi Governor Ross Barnett and present Governor Paul B. Johnson. The Supreme Court ruled last Monday that both would be tried — without jury — before a federal court.

They are accused by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans of wilfully disobeying court orders forbidding them from interfering with the admission of Negro James H. Meredith to the University of Mississippi at Oxford in 1962.

Barring further legal maneuvering by Johnson and Barnett, the Circuit Court, may now try to case. Johnson and Barnett may ask the Supreme Court to reconsider. They have 25 days in which to make such a request.

The high court ruled against the Mississippi office holders 5-4. Barnett was governor of the state at the time of the Meredith enrollment and Johnson was lieutenant governor.

Neither Barnett nor Johnson had any comment as to Monday's court ruling or their immediate plans.

Gallantry

GENERAL OF the Army Douglas MacArthur was laid to rest among the mementoes of his long career of service to the nation at Norfolk, Virginia, Saturday.

During the six days since the soldier statesman's life faded away last Sunday, in just such manner as he himself had suggested in his speech to Congress in 1952, his body had lain in state in three cities — New York, Washington and Norfolk.

The body lay in state in the rotunda of the U. S. Capitol for nearly 24 hours before being borne through Washington's streets on a horse-drawn caisson to begin the final journey. A similar horse-drawn caisson took it the final miles to the MacArthur Memorial on the Elizabeth River at Norfolk.

MacArthur had chosen Norfolk as his adopted home and final resting place because his mother, Mary Pinckney Hardy, was born and married there.

LAST JANUARY, he had sent a sadly prophetic cable to Norfolk Mayor Roy W. Martin, who had invited him to be present at the May 30 dedication saying: "I assure you I'll be in Norfolk May 30th whether dead or alive."

The general's final resting place in the 114-year-old former courthouse is in the building's rotunda. There are two green marble crypts, one for MacArthur and one for his wife.

THE FAMOUS MacArthur quotation of World War II, "I shall return," made when he was ordered to leave Corregidor Island in the Phillippines in 1942, brought some speculation that the general might be buried there.

State Department officials disclosed that in 1962 it was proposed to Gen. Douglas MacArthur that after his death he be buried at the highest point of Corregidor Island.

A memorial is to be raised there-where MacArthur's Philippine defenders finally surrendered to the Japanese in 1942 —to the dead of the Pacific fighting in World War II.

MacArthur's advisers told the State Department that the general had made a commitment the year before to be buried at the MacArthur memorial site in Norfolk, Va., where he was laid to rest Saturday.

THOUGH THE nation's "Old Soldier" had followed U. S. political developments closely since the days of World War I, he will be remembered mainly as a military man devoted to the defending of his country. Yet it cannot be denied that his opinions still carry weight among civilian officials and high-level office seekers.

RICHARD M. Nixon said he believes a principle that Gen. Douglas A. MacArthur laid down in the Korean War should be applied in South Viet Nam.

The former U. S. vice president told newsmen no one can tell what would have happened if MacArthur's recommendations for that war had been carried out, "but I was one of those who believed at the time that his principle-there is no substitute for victory — was a correct principle."

MacArthur wanted to attack Chinese air bases in Manchuria. Restrained, he called that area a privileged sanctuary.

Such accounts make it clear that the general's tenets on patriotism and policy will remain in the foreground as long as there is controversy between the nationalist and internationalist camps.

The Summer Menace

Beware Hitchhikers

By J. W. DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The heavy travel season is almost here, and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover hopes that motorists will take this warning to heart:

The most innocent-appearing hitchhiker may rob, knife, slug, shoot or kill the driver who gives him a lift.

It is not a new warning. The FBI and the American Automobile Association have been fighting the hoodlum-hitchhiker menace for years. The AAA has a slogan: "Thumbs down on thumbers."

But criminals and psychopaths still thumb rides and soft-hearted, or soft-headed, motorists still pick them up.

"It is a continuing danger to unwary motorists," an FBI spokesman reported. "Every year there are more travelers, more cars, more trouble.

In a statement, Hoover said: "It must of course be each person's own decision as to whether or not he will pick up that hitchhiker along the road.

"When a motorist takes a stranger into his car, however, he is putting himself at the mercy of that stranger.

The AAA advises:

"Don't take the risk of completely ruining your vacation trip by gambling on a hitchhiker. This practice is really one of the nuisances of the roadside and many a would-be Good Samaritan has ended up without his cash or without his car. Even worse, in some cases drivers have been badly beaten or murdered."

Three young Boston hitchhikers savagely beat a motorist who had given them a lift, stole his car and $20 and dumped him unconscious in an alley.

A girl member of a hitchhiking team stabbed a benefactor in the back and her male companion finished the job, slugging and stabbing him to death. They carried the body in the victim's car from North Carolina to the Mammoth Cave National Park in Kentucky and hid it there.

A wanton killer shot to death a family of five after being given a ride. He threw the bodies of the father, mother and three children into a Missouri mine shaft.

A 19-year-old girl and her boy friend, given a ride on the West Coast, beat their host to death, threw his body into the Pacific Ocean and financed a cross-country jaunt with his credit cards.

In January, a man who had escaped from a mental institution in Maryland, where he was accused of killing a policeman, was picked up in Oklahoma City after hitchhiking over much of the South. He was one of the FBI's "ten most wanted." It was pure chance that he didn't harm one or more of the drivers who gave him a ride.

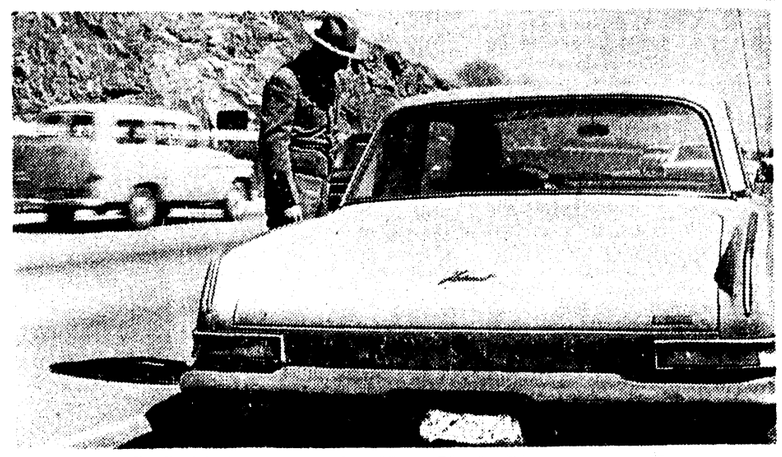
The hacked and battered body of a woman was found near the Alabama-Florida line. It was established that she had picked up a soldier who beat, cut and choked her, then drove her car over her body.

One murder victim, found in Texas, had been stabbed 14 times. His killer was a six-foot tall, 265-pound man who attacked him with a bayonet after being picked up in Arizona.

Much more numerous were lesser cases, of assault and theft. Most criminal hitchhikers want two things: money and a car.

Some crimes are never reported. Some motorists feel like such fools after being robbed while playing the Good Samaritan they don't tell police about it.

Although few women will pick up male hitchhikers, some do. Some are raped and some of them don't report it, out of a sense of shame.



CROSSING TWO lanes on the New York Thruway at Tarrytown, this motorist (license plate blocked out in photo) offered a ride to a supposed hitchhiker—actually State Trooper Vernon J. Smith in a posed situation. He ignored a sign saying hitchhiking is prohibited, and a state police car with red flashers. Trooper Edward Van Kluyve explains the violation. He allowed the motorist to go on with a warning. (AP Newsfeatures photos)

TAKING HIS stand alongside a sign saying hitchhiking is prohibited, New York State Trooper Vernon J. Smith, in civilian garb, poses as a ride thumber. Hitchhiking is common enough, even in the face of laws and warnings of sometimes fatal danger, to make the posed situation realistic. The site is the New York State Thruway at Tarrytown. Thumbing for a ride, or picking up or letting off a hitchhiker on the Thruway is punishable by fines up to $250.

Looking For A Summer Job? Here's Something That Might Fill Order

By W. B. RAGSDALE JR.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Students! Spend the summer learning an exciting new job in a foreign land, all expenses paid.

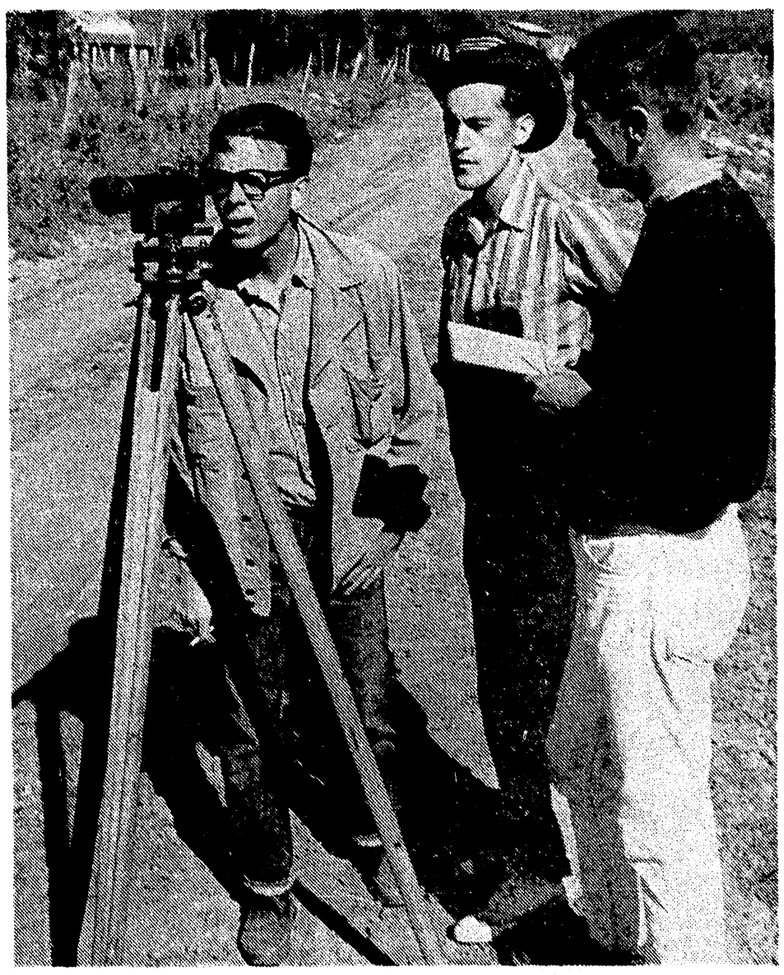
This may sound like the come-on for a confidence game. Instead, it's the offer the Peace Corps is making to college juniors.

Some 700 juniors will be given six-to-eight weeks of training for Peace Corps projects overseas. In effect, they will get a head start over other college students planning to become volunteers.

"The senior year program represents a major effort on our part to increase the quality of Peace Corps training programs by encouraging juniors to start training while they are still in college," explained Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver in announcing the program.

Shriver said this would permit prospective volunteers to plan for eventual service abroad, perhaps even to revise their senior year program to prepare for work in a particular skill or area of the world.

The summer program will include elements of the regular training programs, concentrating on determining aptitude for service as volunteers. The senior year trainees will receive transportation, room, board and pocket money.



COLLEGE JUNIORS who join the Peace Corps' new summer project will receive six to eight weeks' training similar to that of these regular PC volunteers. Surveying a layout near Taos, N.M., in training for work in Latin America, are: Left to right, Pat D. Cahill, Seattle, Wash.; Brad Whipple, Dorchester, Mass., and John Deason, Carmichael, Calif. The college trainee would be given another four to eight weeks of training after graduation, before being assigned overseas. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

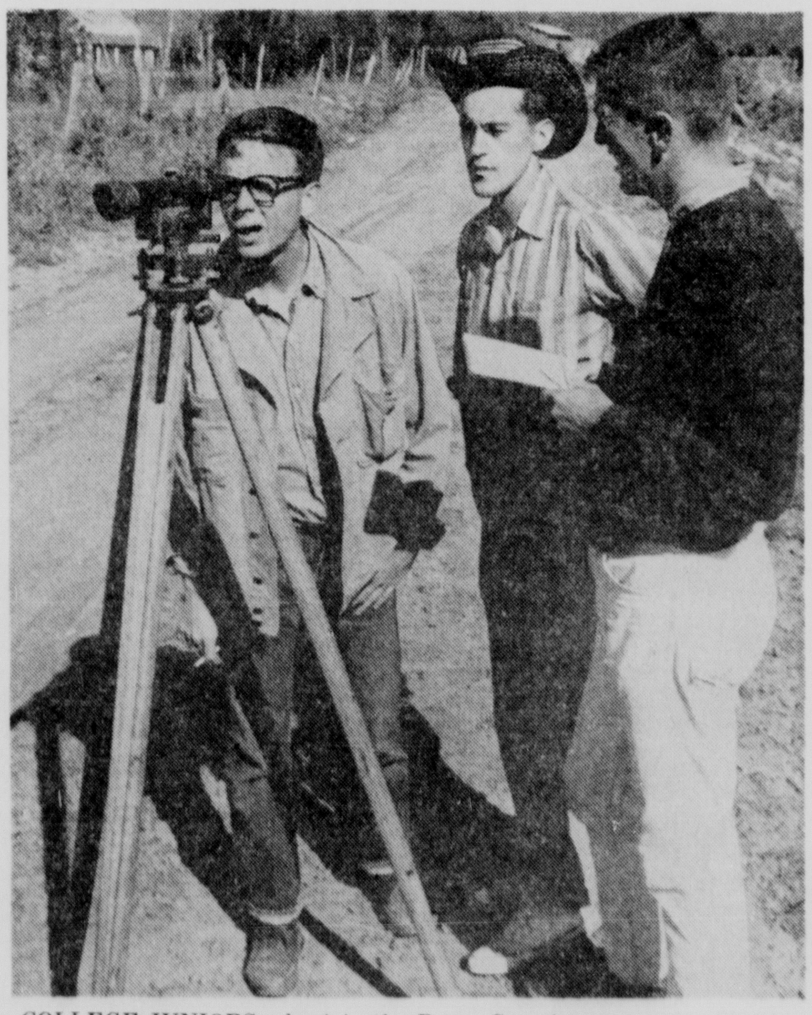
This may sound like the come-on for a confidence game. Instead, it's the offer the Peace Corps is making to college juniors.

Some 700 juniors will be given six-to-eight weeks of training for Peace Corps projects overseas. In effect, they will get a head start over other college students planning to become volunteers.

"The senior year program represents a major effort on our part to increase the quality of Peace Corps training programs by encouraging juniors to start training while they are still in college," explained Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver in announcing the program.

Shriver said this would permit prospective volunteers to plan for eventual service abroad, perhaps even to revise their senior year program to prepare for work in a particular skill or area of the world.

The summer program will include elements of the regular training programs, concentrating on determining aptitude for service as volunteers. The senior year trainees will receive transportation, room, board and pocket money.



COLLEGE JUNIORS who join the Peace Corps' new summer project will receive six to eight weeks' training similar to that of these regular PC volunteers. Surveying a layout near Taos, N.M., in training for work in Latin America, are: Left to right, Pat D. Cahill, Seattle, Wash.; Brad Whipple, Dorchester, Mass., and John Deason, Carmichael, Calif. The college trainee would be given another four to eight weeks of training after graduation, before being assigned overseas. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

City Of Monroe To Assume New, Modern Appearance

By MARY ANNE CORPIN

July 1 is the target date set by the City of Monroe for acquiring all property needed for the $7½ million civic center.

"We expect to have all the structures removed from the land by Sept. 1," forecast assistant city attorney Ford Pipes Jr.

Construction will begin this fall, pending completion of the architects' plans, sale of $5¼ million in bonds June 9 and removal of all buildings.

"The entire center is scheduled for completion by late 1967 or early 1968," said George Parsons, director of the Monroe-Ouachita Regional Planning Commission.

Construction is being financed from the major share of proceeds of an $11¼ million bond issue approved by property-owning voters in 1962.

Sale of all remaining bonds in June will "set up the completion date one or one and one-half years", Parsons forecast.

To date, approximately 260 have been purchased and then re-sold to persons who moved the structures out of the area. Ten other structures which the city has acquired will be sold on April 28, leaving 69 still to be purchased. Of these, about 57 are in the process of litigation throught the courts.

James Harbuck, zoning administrator and disposal officer, said that the houses still to be purchased include 13 on Oak, 28 on Calypso, three on Wood, seven on Ninth, one on Eighth, three on Seventh, three on Vicksburg, nine on Layton and two on Short Street.

Eighty - eight houses which have been sold are in the process of being moved, razed or demolished.

Although several parcels of property are involved in court action, Pipes said, "We anticipate that decisions in all the cases will have been made on the local level by the time Fourth District Court adjourns at the end of June."

As soon as the local court determines the amount of money to be paid for houses involved in contested cases, the city can take possession immediately.

Currently, architects Milton Hall and King Stubbs are working on plans for the city hall and government center, while architects Roy Johns and John I. Neel are finalizing preliminary plans for the auditorium and civic center.

Final plans will be drawn up after the City Council approves preliminary drawings. The city will call for construction bids when the designs are completed.

Work will begin on the government center first, Parsons noted.

The government center will include city hall, municipal courts building, city jail and police building. The cultural center will involve the municipal auditorium and civic enter.

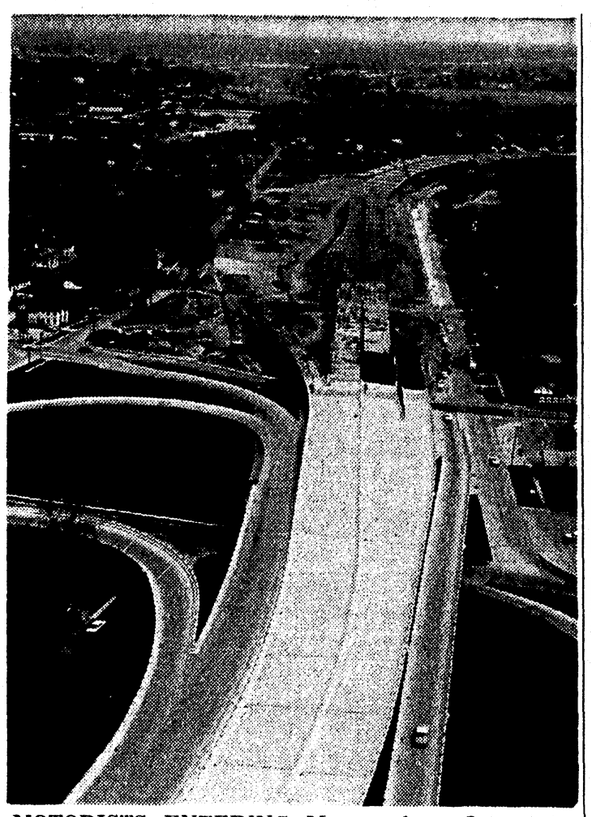
Boundaries for the government center will be Calypso Street, leading to Interstate Highway 20, Hart, Wood and Seventh Streets, in a four-block area.

Cultural center boundaries will be Seventh Street, Grammont, the Illinois Central Railroad tracks to their intersection with Missouri - Pacific Railroad tracks, continuing along Mo-Pac to I-20, and along I-20 to Seventh Street.

Seventh Street will be the dividing point between the government and cultural centers.

More than 2200 parking spaces will be available at the completed center.

During the past year, major activities on the center have included development of the site plan, preliminary planning by the architects, land purchase and clearing.



MOTORISTS ENTERING Monroe from Interstate 20 will get a good view of the civic center which will be in the area now under construction on this highway ramp.

Southeast Asia Presents Vexing Problem For U.S. In Cold War

By ROBERT EUNSON

TOKYO (AP)—If Communist expansion is to be stopped in the Far East, Americans are going to have to pay more, and do more, throughout Southeast Asia.

This conclusion is the result of a survey conducted among United States and local government officials in South Viet Nam, Indonesia, Malaysia and Thailand.

The dilemma the United States faces in Asia can be glimpsed in two areas of action —South Viet Nam and Malaysia.

COSTLY

The South Viet Nam war, dragging on for years, has cost millions of dollars and the lives of nearly 200 Americans. It has required four missions in two years by U.S. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, and the prescription is still the same —more men, more money.

Officials on the scene who think the United States should pull out of Viet Nam are in the minority.

Most are divided between two schools of thought, those who favor a buildup similar to Korea, with at least five U.S. divisions hunting the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas in the swamps, or those who believe U.S. support should continue along present lines, with increased air attacks on the Viet Cong supply routes and a blockade of North Vietnamese seaports.

There are Vietnamese who believe that the "more" the United States should do includes taking over the government in Saigon. U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge is not among them. He is reported to feel that direct leadership by America could prove disastrous, even possibly ending in world war.

VIEWPOINT

But there are Vietnamese who believe they are incapable of governing themselves. Two coups in three months haven't encouraged the feeling of national solidarity.

Viet Cong elements have bombed an American theater and a crowded stadium, where GI's were playing baseball. However, neither the U.S. Embassy nor the U.S. Information Agency has been attacked in recent months.

Ambassador Lodge doesn't like talking on the record, but his thoughts are said to be these:

GREAT PROMISE

Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh has shown great promise since he took over the government in its latest explosion. In the past few weeks he has taken long strides in trying to bring order and get on with the war. He should be given a fair chance, and the United States should support him to the hilt.

Unlike South Viet Nam, Malaysia doesn't need more money nor more guns at present. What these former British colonies—Singapore, Serawak and North Borneo—seem to need at the moment is stronger moral support from Washington.

Some experts believe all-out war could be sparked sooner in the jungles of Borneo than in the rice paddies of South Viet Nam. That may be part of the reason President Johnson sent Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy to Asia in January.

British troops already are defending North Borneo from Indonesian forces, regulars and guerrillas. Should it become necessary for Malaysia to call upon Australia and New Zealand for help, and should a shooting war develop, the United States could become entangled.

ANZUS PACT

The Anzus Pact, signed between Australia, New Zealand and the United States after World War II, could propel America into a full scale war against Indonesia, some fear. The brother of the late President John F. Kennedy was able to effect a cease-fire in Borneo and lay the groundwork for a conference involving Indonesia, Malaysia and the Philippines.

But the conference couldn't agree on continuing the cease fire. Indonesian troops already were across the line and Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio refused to pull them back.

The area is rich in natural resources and promises much if the free world can preserve this toddler among nations long enough to get its economy going. But the collapse of the Borneo truce and the peace talks have disenchanted Malaysia government leaders in Kuala Lumpur with the United States.

U.S. diplomats in Kuala Lumpur are reluctant to discuss their government's role in the Malaysia crisis, which they insist began and ended with Kennedy's mission. The Malaysians feel it hasn't ended yet, and should extend to an open warning to President Sukarno of Indonesia.

EMBASSY BURNED

In the Indonesian capital of Jakarta, where they burned the British Embassy but haven't yet put the torch to American property, the American ambassador feels the United States is doing as well as can be expected.

"We have our ups and downs," Howard P. Jones said recently, "but in terms of the over-all U.S. position in this country, I find there has been no major shift in our welcome here.

"The Malaysia issue is a cloud over the horizon, but if a peaceable settlement is reached and obviously in the interest of all countries concerned why there is every reason to assume that the U.S. position here will continue to be one of mutual cooperation with the Indonesian government."

Jones, a consistent advocate of Western aid to Indonesia, said the United States would commit a "gross mistake" should it abandon Indonesia's 100 million people.

Indonesian Communist party agitation against the United States has never declined. President Sukarno has denounced the United States several times, but Jones feels the United States has not lost ground in Indonesia.

The unhappiness in Cambodia is disconcerting. The U.S. Embassy was plundered and the American flag torn from its staff recently, petulant antics which pleased Prince Norodom Sihanouk's countrymen. Sihanouk seems determined to prove his hate for America is sincere.

He has been telling six million Cambodians that Americans had no right to end their aid program when he told them to end it.

This kind of instability led to the burning of the embassy and may lead to an alliance between Peking and Phnom Penh unless neutrality of some kind can be reached.

NOT THE SAME

The trouble is that the kind of neutrality France, China's new friend in Asia, suggests and Peking accepts are not the same.

President Charles de Gaulle is suggesting that Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos, all former French colonies known once as Indochina, get together and form a neutral existence. That's fine with China, so long as all the neutrals are Communists.

The two million inhabitants of Laos have been living under a neutrality system for nearly two years, but Prince Souvanna Phouma, their premier, has been unable to impress the Pathet Lao with the meaning of the word neutral.

As for Burma, they won't let any foreigner into Burma for more than 24 hours while Prime Minister Ne Win tries to control the six or eight leftist elements struggling to sack his government.

That leaves Thailand, and up to now the Thais remain friends of Uncle Sam. Gen. Thanom Kittikachorn took over the government reins in Bangkok last December when Premier Sarit Thanarat died.

The late premier had been America's friend during the five years he ruled, and since his successor was No. 2 man in that government it is expected that the status quo will hold.

All of which leads to a story they tell about U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk. His airplane was approaching an airport and word was received that 50,000 people lined the runway.

"Don't tell me how many," Rusk is reported to have said. "Just let me know what placards they're carrying."

That's the way it goes these days in the Far East.

Houston Wins USL Relays, Northeast Fourth Behind Rice, LSU

Palmer Keeps Masters Lead

Not Bad For Pro: 69-68-69 So Far

By ROBERT EWING III
World Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, GA. — 69-68-69 may look like some sort of an average score but it happens to be a very unaverage three rounds at the beautiful sun-kissed Augusta National golf course during this or any other Masters Tournament and it is the score that the aroused king of golf, Arnold Palmer, has fired during the first three days of this, the 1964 race for the traditional green coat.

Arnold Palmer has not won a tournament since last October but he is the odds on favorite to walk off an easy winner of this one and become the first man in history to win four masters championships.

Palmer's comments to the press following his third straight sub-70 round for a comfortable five-stroke lead (the most he has ever led by here) went like this: "The wind blowing today was an easy wind for this golf course, but the pin placements were as tough as I've ever seen them. I don't know if I've ever seen 'em that hard here. I didn't have the ball as close to the hole as much today as I did yesterday but aside from 11 and 13 I was satisfied."

Palmer bogied the 445-yard, par-four, 11th when he duck-hooked a three-iron into the water in front of the green after hitting his tee shot off to the right. He dropped out of the water for a one-stroke penalty and then hit his pitch one inch from the cup.

Palmer, said "I tried to play a hook drive around the trees on 13 for the shortcut which is something I haven't tried to do for a long time".

INTO THE TREES

Here he hooked his tee shot into the trees on the 475-yard, par-five hole and ended up in the woods. Palmer said his shot out of the woods there was risky but, "I thought it was worth the risk. The ball was sitting pretty good so I just laid my wedge wide open and hit it as hard as I could because I had to get it over the pine trees. It went straight up and almost came back over my head. (He said that with a smile as he was obviously pleased with the shot). "Golf's "Miracle Man." Then hit a four-iron over the water and onto the green about 25 feet away from where he took 2-putts for his par. Palmer then got red-hot by dropping a 25-footer for a bird at 14, two-putted from 25 feet at 15 for his second straight birdie after a fine two-iron approach, and then rammed home a 12-foot putt at the par-three, 16th for his third straight birdie and a commanding lead that looks mighty hard to overcome.

The big thing today is Palmer — if he plays well, he will have it in the bag, but the big rolling green hills on this piece of Georgia real estate have a way of applying the pressure especially during the final round. Palmer has proved himself the best at resisting that pressure here, but in golf it's never over until the final putt as in the bottom of the last cup. The excitement is in the air at Augusta.

Twenty-six-year-old Bruce Devlin of Canberra, Australia has an accent and a golf game just like Gary Player's. Devlin played in his very first professional tournament here in the 1962 Masters which was also his first American tournament. He shot 80-76 and missed the 36-hole cut that year, a far cry from his fine play this year.

Devlin tied for the low round of the tournament with a fine 5-under-par 67 that sent him into the runner-up spot at 211, five strokes back of Palmer's 10-under-par total of 206. Devlin won the 1960 Australian open as an amatuer, the French Open in 1963, and scored his first win in the U. S. just a few weeks ago when he won the St. Petersburg Open. Devlin, a tall, lean, nice-looking blond, has won over $10,000 on the tour so far this year. He was a master plumber in Australia before turning professional, but that is not the job it sounds like — he had to attend a technical university for six years to get a degree in the highly specialized type of intricate plumbing that he worked on.

HOGAN SHARP

Ben Hogan was the other man to fire a 67 and he did it with some good shots and some fine putts which is a surprise. Hogan, plauged by bad putting for almost a decade now has suddenly overcome his fears on the greens. He said in a press interview that he had not played since last June until three weeks ago.

Bantam Ben was pleased with his round which was the second best that he has ever had here at Augusta. His best was a third round 66 that he fired enroute to setting the all time Masters scoring record for 72 holes in 1953 when he fired 70-69-66-69 — 274.

Hogan had stated prior to the tournament that he would like the course fast and dry and that's the way it was Saturday. He trails Palmer by an almost unsurmountable nine-strokes.

Gary Player ran into lots of hard luck on the last two holes when he caught a trap at 17 and then pushed his tee shot on 18 which would have been in fine shape except that it hit someone's chair and kicked deep into the woods — Player hit an almost impossible shot into the fairway and then itched to within five-feet of the pin but missed the par putt. Player birdied 15 and 16 to go five-under before slipping to bogies on the final two holes. Gary is now seven strokes back with only 18 in which to catch up but, then again, he's not filling the shoes of a lone ranger.

Player said "I've never seen the course playing any easier — there's not a breath of wind, the greens are holding and are super to putt on. You cannot ask for a better course to play on."

Dave Marr had a fine 69 for 212 and third place going into today's final and climatic round. Little Dave hit 14 greens in regulation or better and had seven one-putt greens with no three-putts for a total of 29. Marr said "I'm very satisfied with the round. I played about as well as I can on this course."

Jack Nicklaus, the defending champ, had a 71 for a 215 total. Jack had four birdies and three bogies in his round and actually shanked an eight-iron tee shot short of the creek and pitched on and two-putted for a bogey-four. At the conclusion of his interview, Jack quipped, "See you next year".

BOROS HELPS OUT

Julius Boros, the national open champ who failed to make the cut, was helping to officiate the tournament down by the 13th green Saturday which just didn't seem right somehow. The next best thing to playing is taking part in some other way though.

A few other comments by Palmer, Hogan, and Devlin —

Someone in the press room asked Palmer if he had any particular plan in mind prior to his fine third round as to how he had planned to play the

ARNOLD PALMER (left) is a study in concentration as his short putt approaches the cup on the 18th green in the third round of the Masters Saturday. Palmer, with another of his famous charges, fired four straight biridies on the backside for 69 and his third sub-par round in a row. He is a virtual cinch for an unprecedented fourth Masters title. Ben Hogan (right) braces himself on the 18th while watching his long rolling putt. Hogan, 51 and semi-retired, fired a five-under par 67 Saturday, lowest round of the tournament so far. Roger Morgan 1st In 120 Highs Run

Hardin, son of LSU's 1933 national champion Glenn (Slats) Hardin, broke one meet record and had a hand in two other meet records.

Hardin, coasting on the back stretch, trimmed two seconds off the relays standard in the 400 meter hurdles in :51.6. in the 120 high hurdles, he placed second behind Northeast Louisiana's Roger Morgan.

Then Hardin ran a 220 leg on LSU's spring medley relay whose 3:23.7 set a meet record. He finished with a sparkling 46.7 quarter on LSU's mile relay which lowered the meet time to 3:11.5.

Hernandez skimmed the discus 169 feet, four inches to smash a meet record and tossed the shot 56 feet, ¾ inch for runner-up.

Pennel, competing in his first meet in nearly three months, cleared only 15 feet. Henry Wadsworth of Miami, Fla., who got over the same height but had fewer misses, won the event.

The 23-year-old Pennel, the only vaulter to clear 16 feet, was trying to shake off a sore back. He skipped 15-6 and missed three times at 16-1.

"I felt exceptionally well," he said. "But my timing was off. I'm not disappointed because my back didn't bother me nearly as much as I thought it would."

In all, five meet records fell and two were tied in the day-long games held under cloudy skies in 70 degree temperature and in light variable winds.

A fifth record came in the freshman 100 meters where Houston's Gerald Conway whizzed to a :10.6 victory.

Records were tied in the 440 relay by Rice with a 41.2 timing and by Lee High School of Baton Rouge in 43.6.

Former LSU ace Jack O'Neil, Rice's Ray Wende and former Northeast Louisiana sprinter Don Styron fought a bitter stretch duel in the 400 meters. O'Neil won in 47.6 with inches separating the trio. Sytron's twin, Dave, was fifth.

Veteran John Macy of the Houston Track Club posted a 90-yard victory margin in the two-mile race over Southwestern Louisiana's Malcolm Robinson in 9:02.9.

Virtually unnoticed because Houston won the unofficial point standings with 52 points to 47 for runner-up LSU. Rice had 46, Northeast Louisiana 40, Northwestern, La. State 27, and Southwestern Louisiana 22.

Mississippi State had 18½, Louisiana Tech 16½, Southeastern nine, McNeese State eight, Austin eight, Lamar State five and Tulane one.

NSC IN FIRST WITH, 5-1 RECORD

Northeast Splits GSC Doubleheader With Demons, Drop First Win 2nd

By EDGAR COLTHARP
World Sports Writer

Northeast's Indians split a Gulf States Conference baseball double header with the Northwestern Demons here at Wossman Field Friday as the Tribe dropped the opener, 5-3, and won the wrap up, 13-2.

The split allowed the Northwestern to remain on top of the loop standings with a 5-1 record. Northeast has a 3-1 conference mark.

Five unearned runs in the fourth inning cinched the first contest for the Demons. They put together four hits, a fielder's choice that didn't work and two Tribe errors for the tallies.

Northeast got two runs in the fifth frame when shortstop David Worthington walked with one out and moved to third on catcher Eddie Kincaid's double.

Indian third sacker Charlie Dykes then lofted a sacrifice fly to center to score Worthington.

Marvin Brossett, running for Kincaid, came home from second when Tribe left fielder John Pace grounded to third and the visitor's Don Robinson booted the play. Red Hall popped to short to end the rally.

Relief pitcher Darryl Barnes held the Demons in check during the last three innings as he didn't allow a batter to reach base.

The Indians threatened to tie or win in the bottom of the seventh, but they managed only one run.

Kincaid lead off the inning with a single and was replaced on the base paths by Brossett who moved to second on a wild pitch by John Cress, the winning pitcher.

Dykes then drew a walk which gave Northeast runners on first and second with none out and two runs behind.

Brossett and Dykes both moved up a base on Pace's tap back to the pitcher. Brossette scored on another wild pitch by Cress.

The tall lefthander then settled down and struck out Hall and Alton Thomas to end the game.

Northeast took charge of the second game by scoring five runs in the first inning. The Tribe paraded 11 men to the plate as they punched out four hits, received two free passes and the defense made two errors.

Th big blow of the five run uprising was Pace's home run while Dyies was aboard. Dykes was resting on first after having singled in Joey McGinn and Bobby Leake, who was running for Kincaid.

The Indians chalked up another in the third, three more in the fourth and four in the sixth.

Northwestern struggled for two runs in the fifth as the Tribe, holding a 9-0 lead, relaxed in the field.

The first man up, Robinson, singled and moved to third as Dean Schavounos also singled. The throw from the outfield came to the plate and Kincaid threw to second in an attempt to catch Schavounos who had advanced on the throw.

ON TWIN TWO-HITTERS

Canines Blank 'Pokes Twice

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech broke out of a prolonged batting slump here Saturday afternoon to down McNeese State twice behind the shutout pitching of George Woodson and Mike Powell, 5-0 and 8-0.

Tech upped its league record to 3-3 and McNeese dropped to 0-4.

Tech, 13-5 for the season, travels to Southwestern Monday for a league doubleheader.

The Canines sewed up the first game with four runs in the second. After an error and a walk, Billy Sneed singled in one run and Billy Laird tripled in two, then tallied on a double by Ron McNabb.

Back to back doubles by Laird and McNabb finished the scoring in the fifth.

In the second game, David Lee doubled in three runs in the first. Randel Fallin, from Monroe, tripled and scored on a single by Rickie Huckaby in the second. An error, walk, singles by Sneed and Jon Pat Stephenson and a triple by Laird accounted for four in the fourth.

Third baseman Laird had five for seven, including two triples and a double. McNabb had three for five, including two doubles and Lee went three for four in the second game.

Despite their 3-3 conference record, Tech hurlers have allowed only one earned run in six games.

Houston Wins USL Relays, Northeast Fourth Behind Rice, LSU

Palmer Keeps Masters Lead

Not Bad For Pro: 69-68-69 So Far

By ROBERT EWING III
World Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, GA. — 69-68-69 may look like some sort of an average score but it happens to be a very unaverage three rounds at the beautiful sun-kissed Augusta National golf course during this or any other Masters Tournament and it is the score that the aroused king of golf, Arnold Palmer, has fired during the first three days of this, the 1964 race for the traditional green coat.

Arnold Palmer has not won a tournament since last October but he is the odds on favorite to walk off an easy winner of this one and become the first man in history to win four masters championships.

Palmer's comments to the press following his third straight sub-70 round for a comfortable five-stroke lead (the most he has ever led by here) went like this: "The wind blowing today was an easy wind for this golf course, but the pin placements were as tough as I've ever seen them. I don't know if I've ever seen 'em that hard here. I didn't have the ball as close to the hole as much today as I did yesterday but aside from 11 and 13 I was satisfied."

Palmer bogied the 445-yard, par-four, 11th when he duck-hooked a three-iron into the water in front of the green after hitting his tee shot off to the right. He dropped out of the water for a one-stroke penalty and then hit his pitch one inch from the cup.

Palmer, said "I tried to play a hook drive around the trees on 13 for the shortcut which is something I haven't tried to do for a long time".

INTO THE TREES

Here he hooked his tee shot into the trees on the 475-yard, par-five hole and ended up in the woods. Palmer said his shot out of the woods there was risky but, "I thought it was worth the risk. The ball was sitting pretty good so I just laid my wedge wide open and hit it as hard as I could because I had to get it over the pine trees. It went straight up and almost came back over my head. (He said that with a smile as he was obviously pleased with the shot). "Golf's "Miracle Man." Then hit a four-iron over the water and onto the green about 25 feet away from where he took 2-putts for his par. Palmer then got red-hot by dropping a 25-footer for a bird at 14, two-putted from 25 feet at 15 for his second straight birdie after a fine two-iron approach, and then rammed home a 12-foot putt at the par-three, 16th for his third straight birdie and a commanding lead that looks mighty hard to overcome.

The big thing today is Palmer — if he plays well, he will have it in the bag, but the big rolling green hills on this piece of Georgia real estate have a way of applying the pressure especially during the final round. Palmer has proved himself the best at resisting that pressure here, but in golf it's never over until the final putt as in the bottom of the last cup. The excitement is in the air at Augusta.

Twenty-six-year-old Bruce Devlin of Canberra, Australia has an accent and a golf game just like Gary Player's. Devlin played in his very first professional tournament here in the 1962 Masters which was also his first American tournament. He shot 80-76 and missed the 36-hole cut that year, a far cry from his fine play this year.

Devlin tied for the low round of the tournament with a fine 5-under-par 67 that sent him into the runner-up spot at 211, five strokes back of Palmer's 10-under-par total of 206. Devlin won the 1960 Australian open as an amatuer, the French Open in 1963, and scored his first win in the U. S. just a few weeks ago when he won the St. Petersburg Open. Devlin, a tall, lean, nice-looking blond, has won over $10,000 on the tour so far this year. He was a master plumber in Australia before turning professional, but that is not the job it sounds like — he had to attend a technical university for six years to get a degree in the highly specialized type of intricate plumbing that he worked on.

HOGAN SHARP

Ben Hogan was the other man to fire a 67 and he did it with some good shots and some fine putts which is a surprise. Hogan, plauged by bad putting for almost a decade now has suddenly overcome his fears on the greens. He said in a press interview that he had not played since last June until three weeks ago.

Bantam Ben was pleased with his round which was the second best that he has ever had here at Augusta. His best was a third round 66 that he fired enroute to setting the all time Masters scoring record for 72 holes in 1953 when he fired 70-69-66-69 — 274.

Hogan had stated prior to the tournament that he would like the course fast and dry and that's the way it was Saturday. He trails Palmer by an almost unsurmountable nine-strokes.

Gary Player ran into lots of hard luck on the last two holes when he caught a trap at 17 and then pushed his tee shot on 18 which would have been in fine shape except that it hit someone's chair and kicked deep into the woods — Player hit an almost impossible shot into the fairway and then itched to within five-feet of the pin but missed the par putt. Player birdied 15 and 16 to go five-under before slipping to bogies on the final two holes. Gary is now seven strokes back with only 18 in which to catch up but, then again, he's not filling the shoes of a lone ranger.

Player said "I've never seen the course playing any easier — there's not a breath of wind, the greens are holding and are super to putt on. You cannot ask for a better course to play on."

Dave Marr had a fine 69 for 212 and third place going into today's final and climatic round. Little Dave hit 14 greens in regulation or better and had seven one-putt greens with no three-putts for a total of 29. Marr said "I'm very satisfied with the round. I played about as well as I can on this course."

Jack Nicklaus, the defending champ, had a 71 for a 215 total. Jack had four birdies and three bogies in his round and actually shanked an eight-iron tee shot short of the creek and pitched on and two-putted for a bogey-four. At the conclusion of his interview, Jack quipped, "See you next year".

BOROS HELPS OUT

Julius Boros, the national open champ who failed to make the cut, was helping to officiate the tournament down by the 13th green Saturday which just didn't seem right somehow. The next best thing to playing is taking part in some other way though.

A few other comments by Palmer, Hogan, and Devlin — Someone in the press room asked Palmer if he had any particular plan in mind prior to his fine third round as to how he had planned to play the

ARNOLD PALMER (left) is a study in concentration as his short putt approaches the cup on the 18th green in the third round of the Masters Saturday. Palmer, with another of his famous charges, fired four straight biridies on the backside for 69 and his third sub-par round in a row. He is a virtual cinch for an unprecedented fourth Masters title. Ben Hogan (right) braces himself on the 18th while watching his long rolling putt. Hogan, 51 and semi-retired, fired a five-under par 67 Saturday, lowest round of the tournament so far. Roger Morgan 1st In 120 Highs Run

Hardin, son of LSU's 1933 national champion Glenn (Slats) Hardin, broke one meet record and had a hand in two other meet records.

Hardin, coasting on the back stretch, trimmed two seconds off the relays standard in the 400 meter hurdles in :51.6. in the 120 high hurdles, he placed second behind Northeast Louisiana's Roger Morgan.

Then Hardin ran a 220 leg on LSU's spring medley relay whose 3:23.7 set a meet record. He finished with a sparkling 46.7 quarter on LSU's mile relay which lowered the meet time to 3:11.5.

Hernandez skimmed the discus 169 feet, four inches to smash a meet record and tossed the shot 56 feet, ¾ inch for runner-up.

Pennel, competing in his first meet in nearly three months, cleared only 15 feet. Henry Wadsworth of Miami, Fla., who got over the same height but had fewer misses, won the event.

The 23-year-old Pennel, the only vaulter to clear 16 feet, was trying to shake off a sore back. He skipped 15-6 and missed three times at 16-1.

"I felt exceptionally well," he said. "But my timing was off. I'm not disappointed because my back didn't bother me nearly as much as I thought it would."

In all, five meet records fell and two were tied in the day-long games held under cloudy skies in 70 degree temperature and in light variable winds.

A fifth record came in the freshman 100 meters where Houston's Gerald Conway whizzed to a :10.6 victory.

Records were tied in the 440 relay by Rice with a 41.2 timing and by Lee High School of Baton Rouge in 43.6.

Former LSU ace Jack O'Neil, Rice's Ray Wende and former Northeast Louisiana sprinter Don Styron fought a bitter stretch duel in the 400 meters. O'Neil won in 47.6 with inches separating the trio. Sytron's twin, Dave, was fifth.

Veteran John Macy of the Houston Track Club posted a 90-yard victory margin in the two-mile race over Southwestern Louisiana's Malcolm Robinson in 9:02.9.

Virtually unnoticed because land Albright. He chipped in a brisk 1:47.9 anchor half mile in the record breaking spring medley and a final leg of :46.7 quarter mile in the record mile relay.

Houston won the unofficial point standings with 52 points to 47 for runner-up LSU. Rice had 46, Northeast Louisiana 40, Northwestern, La. State 27, and Southwestern Louisiana 22.

Mississippi State had 18½, Louisiana Tech 16½, Southeastern nine, McNeese State eight, Austin eight, Lamar State five and Tulane one.

Northeast Splits GSC Doubleheader With Demons, Drop First Win 2nd

By EDGAR COLTHARP
World Sports Writer

Northeast's Indians split a Gulf States Conference baseball double header with the Northwestern Demons here at Wossman Field Friday as the Tribe dropped the opener, 5-3, and won the wrap up, 13-2.

The split allowed the Northwestern to remain on top of the loop standings with a 5-1 record. Northeast has a 3-1 conference mark.

Five unearned runs in the fourth inning cinched the first contest for the Demons. They put together four hits, a fielder's choice that didn't work and two Tribe errors for the tallies.

Northeast got two runs in the fifth frame when shortstop David Worthington walked with one out and moved to third on catcher Eddie Kincaid's double.

Indian third sacker Charlie Dykes then lofted a sacrifice fly to center to score Worthington.

Marvin Brossett, running for Kincaid, came home from second when Tribe left fielder John Pace grounded to third and the visitor's Don Robinson booted the play. Red Hall popped to short to end the rally.

Relief pitcher Darryl Barnes held the Demons in check during the last three innings as he didn't allow a batter to reach base.

The Indians threatened to tie or win in the bottom of the seventh, but they managed only one run.

Kincaid lead off the inning with a single and was replaced on the base paths by Brossett who moved to second on a wild pitch by John Cress, the winning pitcher.

Dykes then drew a walk which gave Northeast runners on first and second with none out and two runs behind.

Brossett and Dykes both moved up a base on Pace's tap back to the pitcher. Brossette scored on another wild pitch by Cress.

The tall lefthander then settled down and struck out Hall and Alton Thomas to end the game.

Northeast took charge of the second game by scoring five runs in the first inning. The Tribe paraded 11 men to the plate as they punched out four hits, received two free passes and the defense made two errors.

Th big blow of the five run uprising was Pace's home run while Dyies was aboard. Dykes was resting on first after having singled in Joey McGinn and Bobby Leake, who was running for Kincaid.

The Indians chalked up another in the third, three more in the fourth and four in the sixth.

Northwestern struggled for two runs in the fifth as the Tribe, holding a 9-0 lead, relaxed in the field.

The first man up, Robinson, singled and moved to third as Dean Schavounos also singled. The throw from the outfield came to the plate and Kincaid threw to second in an attempt to catch Schavounos who had advanced on the throw.

course with his four-shot lead from the previous day. He replied, "Yeah — to get as many more as I could — that was my only plan". He was then asked if he had been watching the scoreboard during the round and his reply was "Yes, I was watching the scoreboard most of the day".

Hogan said of his round, "I played a little better. I thought, a little better. Maybe this is not a young man's game. I've played very little in the last year and a half. I'm putting much better. I take my time, still a little shaky, but I have some sense of distance and direction now. My concentration is much better. I crammed three weeks of practice in before coming here. . .practiced and played every day". Hogan said he will play in the Colonial next month, but will not attempt to qualify for the USGA Open.

Devlin said of his chances of catching Palmer, "They don't look too good, do they?" He then said, "The way Arnold's shooting, I guess we will be shooting for second money but I'll guarantee you one thing — I'll be trying."

Tigers Trample Arkansas Nine In SWAC Tilts

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (Special) — The exceptionally talented Grambling Tigers used high-handed run - making antics Saturday to sweep a three-game Southwestern Athletic Conference baseball series from Arkansas AM&N.

Grambling routed the Golden Lions, 10-2, and 2-0, to move within shouting distance of their fourth straight league crown.

The Tigers pummelled Arkansas, 13-5, Friday.

Grambling hiked its SWAC record to 11-2 and nothing short of devine intervention can keep the Tigers from winning the 1964 title.

Putting on a poker face, the coach and president said he was surprised and highly pleased with his team's success.

Grambling was far from a runaway choice in pre-season SWAC polls, but with the Tigers all alone up front in the conference race, even the coach and president admits that they are unlikely to be dethroned before the likes of Galman, Pero, Williams and Candy Robinson graduate.

Grambling Gets Top 440 Clocking At Pelican Runs

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The 440 relay team of Grambling College flashed to a :40.2 clocking Saturday night in the sixth annual Pelican State Relays, showing the best time in the nation thus far this Olympic year.

The time was two-tenths of a second shy of the world record and set a meet record, shaving :01 off the time Grambling recorded in Friday's preliminary trials.

The Grambling runners ran a :40.3 last weekend in the Texas Relay and that was the best time for the event this year.

Host Southern University finished second in the 440 with a :40.7, followed by Prairie View and Florida A&M.

Bob Hayes of Florida A&M, co-holder of the world's 100 yard dash record at :09.2, had been scheduled to take part in the meet but withdrew because of illness.

Willie McCoy of Alcorn A&M sped to a meet record in the 880 with a 1:53.5, which was :08 better than the standard he set here last year.

Major League Season Opens Monday

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite the efforts of Charles O. Finley, the big league baseball season opens Monday and Tuesday with the same cities that finished last year. Once again the New York Yankees and Los Angeles Dodgers are favored to win the pennants.

Finley was blocked in his efforts to move the Kansas City A's to Louisville or Oakland but there was no general embargo on the traffic of players. A shake-up of talent by trades and the addition of a thin but talented band of rookies add zest to the long season that will run from April 13 to Oct. 4.

The Las Vegas oddsmakers and the sports writers agree that the World Series will open Oct. 7 in Dodger Stadium with Sandy Koufax and Co. opposing Lawrence Peter Berra's pinstriped Yankees. If the Yanks do it again it will be their fifth straight — and under three different managers, Casey Stentel, Ralph Houk and Yogi.

The writers predict little trouble for the Yanks but expect a battle royal in the National with Los Angeles just edging San Francisco and with St. Louis close behind. In Las Vegas, the Dodgers are 6-5 to win, the Giants 3-1 and the Cards 5-1. The Yankees are odds-on at 1-3.

But then wasn't Sonny Liston 7-1 over Cassius Clay?

Berra's debut as Yankee skipper promises to be one of the most interesting developments of the year. To a lesser degree, Hank Bauer's handling of the Baltimore Orioles where a firm hand is needed will command attention.

Berra already has proven his ability to command the respect of his former playmates during spring training. How he will work out under stress of battle conditions remains to be seen.

The only other new manager in the majors is George Strickland, a stand-in for Birdie Tebbetts with the Cleveland Indians. Strickland moves up from coach to manager for the duration of Tebbetts' recovery from a heart attack. The doctors say Tebbetts will be out all year.

As usual, there will be the customary special openers Monday in Washington and Cincinnati. The rest of the teams start their seasons Tuesday. The two-day, 10-game schedule is expected to draw about 330,000 if the weather is agreeable.

Among the familiar names who have changed uniforms since last season are Felipe Alou, Ed Bailey, Roger Craig, Del Crandall, Bob Shaw, Jim Bunning, Gus Triandos, Nellie Fox, George Altman, Bill Skowron, Norm Siebern, Rocky Colavito, Jim Gentile, Leon Wagner, Jerry Lumpe, Willie Kirkland, Larry Sherry, Joe Adcock, Al Smith, Don Demeter and Eddie Kasko.

The best of the new crop includes Richie Allen of the Phillies, Don Buford of the Chicago White Sox, Tony Oliva of Minnesota, Willie Horton of Detroit, Tony Conigliaro and Bill Spanswick of Boston, Jim Hart and Jay Alou of San Francisco, Chico Ruiz of Cincinnati, Jim Stewart and Billy Cowan of the Chicago Cubs and John Werhas of the Dodgers.

Exhibition Baseball

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The St. Louis Cardinals beat the A's 9-7 on Julian Javier's 10th inning home run that went over the left field barrier.

Six homers were hit, but none landed in the controversial pennant porch that owner Charles O. Finley ordered in a realignment of the field in an effort to match the Yankee Stadium 296-foot right field foul line.

In other exhibition games on the final Saturday before the opening of the season Monday, Milwaukee edged the New York Yankees 2-1, San Francisco outslugged Cleveland 12-7, Cincinnati squeezed by the Chicago White Sox 7-6 and Minnesota nipped Detroit 4-3.

Pittsburgh swamped the Phillies 16-3. Baltimore blanked the New York Mets 11-0 and the Chicago Cubs trampled Boston 12-3 in two other one-sided affairs while the Houston Colts lost to their Oklahoma City farm in the Pacific Coast League 4-3.

A two-bagger by rookie outfielder Richardo Carty in the eighth inning drove in the winning run for the Braves in their triumph over the Yankees at Fort Lauderdale. Del Crandall's grand slam homer helped the Giants down Cleveland at Sacramento and a triple, double and single by Bob Skinner helped Cincinnati overcome the White Sox at Charleston, W.Va.

Jimmie Hall's two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth at Charlotte gave Minnesota its victory over Detroit. The blow came off the first pitch reliever Fred Gladding threw to Hall.

A brief fist fight between Tony Taylor of the Phillies and the Pirates' Donn Clendenon in the fourth inning and the ejection of Gene Mauch, the Phillies manager, marked Pittsburgh's romp against Philadelphia at Asheville, N.C.

Larry Yellen's wildness coupled with a triple by Ernie Fazio accounted for three runs in the fifth that gave the PCL Oklahoma City 89ers their triumph over the Colts at Cocoa, Fla.

course with his four-shot lead from the previous day. He replied, "Yeah — to get as many more as I could — that was my only plan". He was then asked if he had been watching the scoreboard during the round and his reply was "Yes, I was watching the scoreboard most of the day".

Hogan said of his round, "I played a little better. I thought, a little better. Maybe this is not a young man's game. I've played very little in the last year and a half. I'm putting much better. I take my time, still a little shaky, but I have some sense of distance and direction now. My concentration is much better. I crammed three weeks of practice in before coming here. . .practiced and played every day". Hogan said he will play in the Colonial next month, but will not attempt to qualify for the USGA Open.

Devlin said of his chances of catching Palmer, "They don't look too good, do they?" He then said, "The way Arnold's shooting, I guess we will be shooting for second money but I'll guarantee you one thing — I'll be trying."

Tigers Trample Arkansas Nine In SWAC Tilts

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (Special) — The exceptionally talented Grambling Tigers used high-handed run - making antics Saturday to sweep a three-game Southwestern Athletic Conference baseball series from Arkansas AM&N.

Grambling routed the Golden Lions, 10-2, and 2-0, to move within shouting distance of their fourth straight league crown.

The Tigers pummelled Arkansas, 13-5, Friday.

Grambling hiked its SWAC record to 11-2 and nothing short of devine intervention can keep the Tigers from winning the 1964 title.

President - Coach R. W. E. Jones's chief assets against the Lions were pitching and improved defense.

Putting on a poker face, the coach and president said he was surprised and highly pleased with his team's success.

Grambling was far from a runaway choice in pre-season SWAC polls, but with the Tigers all alone up front in the conference race, even the coach and president admits that they are unlikely to be dethroned before the likes of Galman, Pero, Williams and Candy Robinson graduate.

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The 440 relay team of Grambling College flashed to a :40.2 clocking Saturday night in the sixth annual Pelican State Relays, showing the best time in the nation thus far this Olympic year.

The time was two-tenths of a second shy of the world record and set a meet record, shaving :01 off the time Grambling recorded in Friday's preliminary trials.

The Grambling runners ran a :40.3 last weekend in the Texas Relay and that was the best time for the event this year.

Host Southern University finished second in the 440 with a :40.7, followed by Prairie View and Florida A&M.

Bob Hayes of Florida A&M, co-holder of the world's 100 yard dash record at :09.2, had been scheduled to take part in the meet but withdrew because of illness.

Willie McCoy of Alcorn A&M sped to a meet record in the 880 with a 1:53.5, which was :08 better than the standard he set here last year.

Major League Season Opens Monday

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite the efforts of Charles O. Finley, the big league baseball season opens Monday and Tuesday with the same cities that finished last year. Once again the New York Yankees and Los Angeles Dodgers are favored to win the pennants.

Finley was blocked in his efforts to move the Kansas City A's to Louisville or Oakland but there was no general embargo on the traffic of players. A shake-up of talent by trades and the addition of a thin but talented band of rookies add zest to the long season that will run from April 13 to Oct. 4.

The Las Vegas oddsmakers and the sports writers agree that the World Series will open Oct. 7 in Dodger Stadium with Sandy Koufax and Co. opposing Lawrence Peter Berra's pinstriped Yankees. If the Yanks do it again it will be their fifth straight — and under three different managers, Casey Stentel, Ralph Houk and Yogi.

The writers predict little trouble for the Yanks but expect a battle royal in the National with Los Angeles just edging San Francisco and with St. Louis close behind. In Las Vegas, the Dodgers are 6-5 to win, the Giants 3-1 and the Cards 5-1. The Yankees are odds-on at 1-3.

But then wasn't Sonny Liston 7-1 over Cassius Clay?

Berra's debut as Yankee skipper promises to be one of the most interesting developments of the year. To a lesser degree, Hank Bauer's handling of the Baltimore Orioles where a firm hand is needed will command attention.

Berra already has proven his ability to command the respect of his former playmates during spring training. How he will work out under stress of battle conditions remains to be seen.

The only other new manager in the majors is George Strickland, a stand-in for Birdie Tebbetts with the Cleveland Indians. Strickland moves up from coach to manager for the duration of Tebbetts' recovery from a heart attack. The doctors say Tebbetts will be out all year.

As usual, there will be the customary special openers Monday in Washington and Cincinnati. The rest of the teams start their seasons Tuesday. The two-day, 10-game schedule is expected to draw about 330,000 if the weather is agreeable.

Among the familiar names who have changed uniforms since last season are Felipe Alou, Ed Bailey, Roger Craig, Del Crandall, Bob Shaw, Jim Bunning, Gus Triandos, Nellie Fox, George Altman, Bill Skowron, Norm Siebern, Rocky Colavito, Jim Gentile, Leon Wagner, Jerry Lumpe, Willie Kirkland, Larry Sherry, Joe Adcock, Al Smith, Don Demeter and Eddie Kasko.

The best of the new crop includes Richie Allen of the Phillies, Don Buford of the Chicago White Sox, Tony Oliva of Minnesota, Willie Horton of Detroit, Tony Conigliaro and Bill Spanswick of Boston, Jim Hart and Jay Alou of San Francisco, Chico Ruiz of Cincinnati, Jim Stewart and Billy Cowan of the Chicago Cubs and John Werhas of the Dodgers.

Three knotted behind Miss Griffin with 146s were Carol Mann, Betsy Rawls and Kathy Cornelius.

The third tourney on this years' LPGA tour will close Sunday with a final 18-hole round on the 6,696-yard Sherwood Forest Country Club course.

The St. Louis Cardinals beat the A's 9-7 on Julian Javier's 10th inning home run that went over the left field barrier.

Six homers were hit, but none landed in the controversial pennant porch that owner Charles O. Finley ordered in a realignment of the field in an effort to match the Yankee Stadium 296-foot right field foul line.

In other exhibition games on the final Saturday before the opening of the season Monday, Milwaukee edged the New York Yankees 2-1, San Francisco outslugged Cleveland 12-7, Cincinnati squeezed by the Chicago White Sox 7-6 and Minnesota nipped Detroit 4-3.

Pittsburgh swamped the Phillies 16-3. Baltimore blanked the New York Mets 11-0 and the Chicago Cubs trampled Boston 12-3 in two other one-sided affairs while the Houston Colts lost to their Oklahoma City farm in the Pacific Coast League 4-3.

A two-bagger by rookie outfielder Richardo Carty in the eighth inning drove in the winning run for the Braves in their triumph over the Yankees at Fort Lauderdale. Del Crandall's grand slam homer helped the Giants down Cleveland at Sacramento and a triple, double and single by Bob Skinner helped Cincinnati overcome the White Sox at Charleston, W.Va.

Jimmie Hall's two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth at Charlotte gave Minnesota its victory over Detroit. The blow came off the first pitch reliever Fred Gladding threw to Hall.

A brief fist fight between Tony Taylor of the Phillies and the Pirates' Donn Clendenon in the fourth inning and the ejection of Gene Mauch, the Phillies manager, marked Pittsburgh's romp against Philadelphia at Asheville, N.C.

Larry Yellen's wildness coupled with a triple by Ernie Fazio accounted for three runs in the fifth that gave the PCL Oklahoma City 89ers their triumph over the Colts at Cocoa, Fla.

Weather For Turkeys

We've had a couple of days of good turkey hunting weather, namely Thursday and Friday, but up until then the elements were riding with the Toms.

To have a good hunt, generally speaking since there are exceptions to the rule, you've got to have pretty weather. And that doesn't mean 30 - degree temperature, which tends to cause the gobblers to keep their traps shut.

But the season has been a fair one since it opened last Saturday with the first hoot of the owl. By Thursday night, some 19 kills had been reported in the Delta area, including Madison, Tensas, Franklin and Concordia.

And by Friday morning, 18 birds had been reported killed in the Morehouse - Union area, which may show that the turkey population around the Terzia Refuge is becoming the biggest in Louisiana, if not already the biggest.

Biologists out checking the kills reported that the birds haven't gobbled too well, probably due to the chilly mornings. The concentration of hunters above Bastrop has been heavy, but Robert Kimble, acting district supervisor for the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission at Ferriday, says he doesn't believe the turn - out of sportsmen has been as big in the Delta area.

This, no doubt, may be traced to the difficulty of turkey hunting. Most hunters never see a gobbler and in a lot of cases the birds killed are bagged by hunters who live nearby and know the birds' habits.

It's a lot like looking for a needle in a haystack without knowing where the turkeys are ranging and roosting.

In past years, about 100 turkeys are killed in Northeast Louisiana. While the season has been a bit slow so far, the total kill could exceed that of the past, since hunters have until April 19th to bag their bird.

Actually, the best turkey hunting, so we've been told, is in the Florida parishes of South Louisiana. With luck, Louisiana will have turkeys on a state - wide basis in the future, because the commission hopes to restock areas that can carry Mr. Tom.

We hope that day will come, because, personally, we get a thrill out of an early morning gobble from a wary ole bird. With more turkeys, the chances of killing one should be better.

It's tough enough already.

Dedicate Saline Area

The Saline Wildlife Management Area, recently purchased by the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission in LaSalle and Catahoula parishes, will be dedicated Thursday.

Gov. Jimme H. Davis is scheduled to speak while Gov.-Elect John J. McKeithen has been invited to attend and speak, according to Director L. D. Young Jr.

The dedication ceremonies will be conducted at the main entrance to the Saline area. It's located on Louisiana Hwy. 28 some 16 miles out of Jonesville near Thompson's Truck Stop.

A site marker, similar to the one on the Russell Sage Wildlife Management Area near Monroe, will be unveiled. The ceremonies will be held at 4 p.m. Thursday.

And, of course, the public is invited.

You'll recall that the state bought this 50,000 - acre tract of land for $29 per acre to be developed and used for public hunting and fishing.

Varmint Hunters Deluxe

Charles Tullos, Jesse Brown and Sidney Scott — all of whom can use a crippled rabbit call well enough to be successful — called in a couple of good size bobcats the other night in Lafourche Swamp.

After they dropped the cats, that brought their total of six wildcats in recent hunts. They've also collected other varmints, including fox and raccoon.

And it's interesting the way they do it.

Locating a good spot, they begin calling, using the call that sounds like a crippled rabbit. If things are right, the woods come alive when the calling commences.

A fox, the varmit hunters say, will charge to the call. Of course the hunters are equipped with head-lights, which help, believe it or not, to attract the animals.

While the fox loses all sense of precaution, a bobcat, on the other hand, is an individualist, each sneaking up in a different way.

Tullos, Brown and Scott also have learned that owls come to the call too. They said that owls by the score flock around the call, each hooting a tune of his own.

Little Man's Corner

The fishing was good and the turkey hunting fair and the little men made news afield.

In Franklin Parish, the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission released about 31 deer a few days ago in Ward 6. This area out of Baskin is prime for a good deer herd and in time there'll be one there. The Police Jury requested the release.

On the fishing scene, Ira Cagle took Sheldon Ray, both a couple of big local sports, fishing on Cheniere Lake. Big Red caught the bass while Cagle did the paddling. To make matters worse, Cagle got lost in Cheniere.

And at Black Bayou, the fishing has been extremely good. Catching their limits in chinkapins were Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Tillman Jr., Shreveport, Shorty Bill and Henry Gilland, Monroe, Darrell Johnson, Joe Jordan and Archie Parker, 170.

Sam LaDart got the limit twice. Mr. and Mrs. Grady Harrison of Ruston also got the limit. Frank Savanah, and Tom Ross of West Monroe landed 50 bream and specs while Johnny Danna caught 75 chinkapins.

In the Lake St. John area, Hollis Wallace caught the limit of bass in St. John. Bubba Patrick and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kyle of Lake St. John got the limit of bream in St. John.

From West Monroe, Mrs. Myrtle Spencer and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Spencer, landed the limit of bream, catfish and white perch on red worms.

At Deer Park below Vidalia, Dr. John Fairbanks of Vidalia got the limit of bream. J. H. Johnson, also of Vidalia, landed the limit of bass while Johnny Smith of Vaidalia got the limit of bass too. Ed Jones of Vidalia did also.

Biggest birds killed in the Delta so far weighed 20 pounds. From Winnsboro, J. W. McLemore Sr., a veteran sportsman in his 70's, killed a gobbler that almost went 17 pounds on his place in Madison.

Also of interest, Mrs. Willard Wallace of Bastrop killed a turkey with the first hoot of the owl. By Thursday night, some 19 kills had been reported in the Delta area, including Madison, Tensas, Franklin and Concordia.

And by Friday morning, 18 birds had been reported killed in the Morehouse - Union area, which may show that the turkey population around the Terzia Refuge is becoming the biggest in Louisiana, if not already the biggest.

Biologists out checking the kills reported that the birds haven't gobbled too well, probably due to the chilly mornings. SWARTZ HUNTERS from left Charles Tullos, Jesse Brown and Sidney Scott display two bobcats they killed in Lafourche Swamp after calling the 'cats with a crippled rabbit call. The sportsmen have been perfecting the art of varmint hunting at night, using the call that attracts everything from raccoon to bobcats. They describe the sport as thrilling.

'K. C. PORCH'

Finley Is Firm; Fence To Stay

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Charles O. Finley, owner of the Kansas City Athletics, defied baseball's top officials Saturday after they ordered him to remove the fence he had erected in Municipal Stadium to make right field the same depth as that in Yankee Stadium.

Finley, here for an exhibition game, confirmed he had received telegrams from Joe Cronin, president of the American League, and Ford Frick, baseball commissioner, directing him to take down the fence.

Finley said he had been warned that unless he complied any games played here would be forfeited to the visiting team. The season opens here with Cleveland, April 21.

"You can say for me," Finley said, "that the fence will be up when the season opens."

He added he would appeal to the baseball rules committee.

"The rule book permits me to do what I am doing," he had said earlier in Chicago. "I have read it thoroughly and I know what I am saying."

The A's owner ordered the fence built last week to conform to the right field barrier in Yankee Stadium after his demands on Cronin and the Yanks for a screen to stop easy home runs at New York.

The distance from home plate to the foul pole in New York is 296 feet. The fence at the stadium here starts at the 325-foot mark, which conforms with the rules, but the 296-foot mark, the point of the V, is only two feet in fair territory.

It was in the bleachers near that point that Finley took his seat today as the A's faced the Cardinals.

Finley termed his fence the "K.C. Pennant Porch."

"Kansas City ceased to be a farm club of the Yankees when I purchased the club in 1961," Finley said. "Now, if we can eliminate the 'pennant porch' in Yankee Stadium the other clubs in the league for the first time in 40 years will have an equal chance to win the pennant.

He said the 40 years goes back to the time the stadium was built. "Playing the Yanks in Yankee Stadium is like shooting craps with loaded dice," he continued. "You don't have a chance of winning.

"If the American League will permit me to keep this fence we can compete on equal terms with the Yankees and, I believe, battle them for the pennant this year. So can the Detroit Tigers, White Sox, Minnesota Twins and others."

He added that with his own "pennant porch", he thought Jim Gentile, his newly acquired hitter, "could very well break Babe Ruth's home run record this year."

Then the talkative owner continued:

"I defy anyone in baseball to prove to me I am operating illegally and not according to the rules. If the Yankees can have a 'pennant porch' then I want one too, and I feel entitled to it. And now I have the one here completed and we have painted on the name: 'K.C. Pennant Porch.'

"Yankee domination has been going on ever since I was a boy. It's got to stop."

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Miss America of 1964 will throw out the first ball at the Kansas City Athletics home baseball opener April 21 against the Cleveland Indians.

She is Donna Axum of El Dorado, Ark., a senior at the University of Oklahoma. An Athletics pitcher and catcher will greet her with roses at the airport, and she will receive an official team jacket and cap.

Tallulah 4-Ball Meet April 19; 96 Slots Open

TALLULAH (Special) — The Tallulah Country Club will have its annual four-ball golf tournament Sunday, April 19.

Invitations have been sent to several good golfers in the area and state as well as in Jackson and Natchez, Miss.

The field is open to the first 96 players to sign up. Entrance fee is $10 per golfer. Out of town entrants may qualify on the Tallulah course or on their home course.

Scores must be in by 6 p.m. Saturday. More information may be obtained by calling Joe Emery, 1400 at Tallulah.

The defending champions, Andrews and Bayles of Oak Grove, are expected to return to make another bid for the annual title. This year's field also is expected to bring together the strongest roster in the tournament's history.

Golfers in the Tallulah area are urged by the tournament committee to choose their partners early and turn in qualifying scores.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It must be the air in Florida and Arizona. Or maybe it's the water. Whatever it is, it sure acts as a tonic to major league managers.

While it was hardly expected that any one of the 20 big league managers would paint a dim picture for his club at this time of the year, there is such a thing as carrying optimism too far.

After all, nine clubs cannot compete in the World Series. And never yet has a pennant race ended with all clubs in the first division.

An Associated Press poll of the managers showed this Saturday that nine thought they had a good chance to win the pennant. Eight more believed they would finih in the first division. The remaining three were convinced their clubs were improved over last year.

Yogi Berra said unequivocally that his New York Yankees would repeat as American League champs. Gil Hodges was just as positive his Washington Senator wouldn't remain in the league basement.

Five National League managers, San Francisco's Al Dark, Cincinnati's Fred Hutchinson, Philadelphia's Gene Mauch, St. Louis' Johnny Keane and Milwaukee's Bobby Bragan, refused to yield an inch to the defending champion Los Angeles Dodgers. And Walt Alston of the Dodgers insisted his team was stronger.

Here are the capuled comments:

Berra, Yankees: "We'll win it even if Mickey Mantle doesn't play 100 games. There are no ifs. We've got the best eight starting players and our pitching is the best in the league."

Sam Mele, Twins: "We have a real good chance to win if pitchers Jerry Arrigo, Jim Roland and Jim Kaat come through. We are decidedly better than last year."

Charlie Dressen, Tigers: "The Tigers are the most improved club in the league. Our pitching is going to be better. Frank Lary has looked sharp in Florida."

Al Lopez, White Sox: "I think we can win it. Our pitching and defense is outstanding. Our offense is better than people think."

Hank Bauer, Orioles: "Two weeks ago I picked the Yankees to win and the Orioles to finish third. That's because they have fewer ifs than we do. But if everybody plays up to his capability, we have a good chance to win."

George Strickland, Cleveland Indians: "We're greatly improved and definitely a first division team. Our pitching should be better. Leon Wagner gives us more power. Our defense should be at least adequate."

John Pesky, Boston Red Sox: "I am hoping our improved pitching could move us into the first division. We lack speed but have good power."

Ed Lopat, Kansas City A's: "If our big men, Rocky Colavito and Jim Gentile, have the kind of seasons they care capable of having, we could finish as high as fifth. If they don't, we're in trouble."

Bill Rigney, Los Angeles Angels: "We're shooting for the first division and I think we can probably do it. Our strong pitching should help. We are also counting on our extra speed and an improved defense."

Hodges, Senators: "We'll be better. We won't finish last. Our outfield is better than that of a lot of clubs, we're better organized and have a better mental attitude."

Alston, Dodgers: "I think our chances to repeat are good. Just about every club in the league has strengthened and that includes us. We have every reason to believe four or five of our players should have better seasons."

Dark, Giants: "We have a definite shot at the pennant. I've never seen better morale on the team. The least improved of the six leading contenders are the Dodgers."

Hutchinson, Reds: "I think our club is as good as anybody. We have a better mental approach this spring. We had it in 1961 and 1962 but lost it last year."

Mauch, Phillies: "We can win as many games as anybody if we play up to the hilt. The addition of Jim Bunning has improved our pitching and there is every indication we have found something special in our new third baseman, Richie Allen."

Keane, Cardinals: "We have an excellent chance. The race shapes up as so close an injury or two could be the deciding factor."

Bragan, Braves: "I think we're stronger than in the club's pennant winning years of 1957-58 — with one big exception — pitching. We have better power, a better defense and more speed."

Danny Murtaugh, Pittsburgh Pirates: "We're going to be a much better club. The improvement should come from our second year regulars, Bob Bailey, Donn Clendenon, Will Stargell and Dick Schofield."

Bob Kennedy, Chicago Cubs: "I am impressed by the comeback of Ernie Banks and the showing of rookies Jimmy Stewart and Billy Cowan. We must bear down all the way to improve on last year's 82-80 record."

Harry Craft, Colts: "I feel we have improved if our pitching holds up as well as it has the first two years. Oour infield is greatly improved with the addition of Nellie Fox and Eddie Kasko. Oour outfield remains the big question mark."

Casey Stengel, New York Mets: "We and the Colts are going to fight it out for the bottom. We ought to do better against that club. They've been lucky against us in the past. We're going to make more runs."

Weather For Turkeys

We've had a couple of days of good turkey hunting weather, namely Thursday and Friday, but up until then the elements were riding with the Toms.

To have a good hunt, generally speaking since there are exceptions to the rule, you've got to have pretty weather. And that doesn't mean 30 - degree temperature, which tends to cause the gobblers to keep their traps shut.

But the season has been a fair one since it opened last Saturday with the first hoot of the owl. By Thursday night, some 19 kills had been reported in the Delta area, including Madison, Tensas, Franklin and Concordia.

And by Friday morning, 18 birds had been reported killed in the Morehouse - Union area, which may show that the turkey population around the Terzia Refuge is becoming the biggest in Louisiana, if not already the biggest.

Biologists out checking the kills reported that the birds haven't gobbled too well, probably due to the chilly mornings. The concentration of hunters above Bastrop has been heavy, but Robert Kimble, acting district supervisor for the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission at Ferriday, says he doesn't believe the turn - out of sportsmen has been as big in the Delta area.

This, no doubt, may be traced to the difficulty of turkey hunting. Most hunters never see a gobbler and in a lot of cases the birds killed are bagged by hunters who live nearby and know the birds' habits.

It's a lot like looking for a needle in a haystack without knowing where the turkeys are ranging and roosting.

In past years, about 100 turkeys are killed in Northeast Louisiana. While the season has been a bit slow so far, the total kill could exceed that of the past, since hunters have until April 19th to bag their bird.

Actually, the best turkey hunting, so we've been told, is in the Florida parishes of South Louisiana. With luck, Louisiana will have turkeys on a state - wide basis in the future, because the commission hopes to restock areas that can carry Mr. Tom.

We hope that day will come, because, personally, we get a thrill out of an early morning gobble from a wary ole bird. With more turkeys, the chances of killing one should be better.

It's tough enough already.

Dedicate Saline Area

The Saline Wildlife Management Area, recently purchased by the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission in LaSalle and Catahoula parishes, will be dedicated Thursday.

Gov. Jimme H. Davis is scheduled to speak while Gov.-Elect John J. McKeithen has been invited to attend and speak, according to Director L. D. Young Jr.

The dedication ceremonies will be conducted at the main entrance to the Saline area. It's located on Louisiana Hwy. 28 some 16 miles out of Jonesville near Thompson's Truck Stop.

A site marker, similar to the one on the Russell Sage Wildlife Management Area near Monroe, will be unveiled. The ceremonies will be held at 4 p.m. Thursday.

And, of course, the public is invited.

You'll recall that the state bought this 50,000 - acre tract of land for $29 per acre to be developed and used for public hunting and fishing.

Varmint Hunters Deluxe

Charles Tullos, Jesse Brown and Sidney Scott — all of whom can use a crippled rabbit call well enough to be successful — called in a couple of good size bobcats the other night in Lafourche Swamp.

After they dropped the cats, that brought their total of six wildcats in recent hunts. They've also collected other varmints, including fox and raccoon.

And it's interesting the way they do it.

Locating a good spot, they begin calling, using the call that sounds like a crippled rabbit. If things are right, the woods come alive when the calling commences.

A fox, the varmit hunters say, will charge to the call. Of course the hunters are equipped with head-lights, which help, believe it or not, to attract the animals.

While the fox loses all sense of precaution, a bobcat, on the other hand, is an individualist, each sneaking up in a different way.

Tullos, Brown and Scott also have learned that owls come to the call too. They said that owls by the score flock around the call, each hooting a tune of his own.

Little Man's Corner

The fishing was good and the turkey hunting fair and the little men made news afield.

In Franklin Parish, the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission released about 31 deer a few days ago in Ward 6. This area out of Baskin is prime for a good deer herd and in time there'll be one there. The Police Jury requested the release.

On the fishing scene, Ira Cagle took Sheldon Ray, both a couple of big local sports, fishing on Cheniere Lake. Big Red caught the bass while Cagle did the paddling. To make matters worse, Cagle got lost in Cheniere.

And at Black Bayou, the fishing has been extremely good. Catching their limits in chinkapins were Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Tillman Jr., Shreveport, Shorty Bill and Henry Gilland, Monroe, Darrell Johnson, Joe Jordan and Archie Parker, 170.

Sam LaDart got the limit twice. Mr. and Mrs. Grady Harrison of Ruston also got the limit. Frank Savanah, and Tom Ross of West Monroe landed 50 bream and specs while Johnny Danna caught 75 chinkapins.

In the Lake St. John area, Hollis Wallace caught the limit of bass in St. John. Bubba Patrick and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kyle of Lake St. John got the limit of bream in St. John.

From West Monroe, Mrs. Myrtle Spencer and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Spencer, landed the limit of bream, catfish and white perch on red worms.

At Deer Park below Vidalia, Dr. John Fairbanks of Vidalia got the limit of bream. J. H. Johnson, also of Vidalia, landed the limit of bass while Johnny Smith of Vaidalia got the limit of bass too. Ed Jones of Vidalia did also.

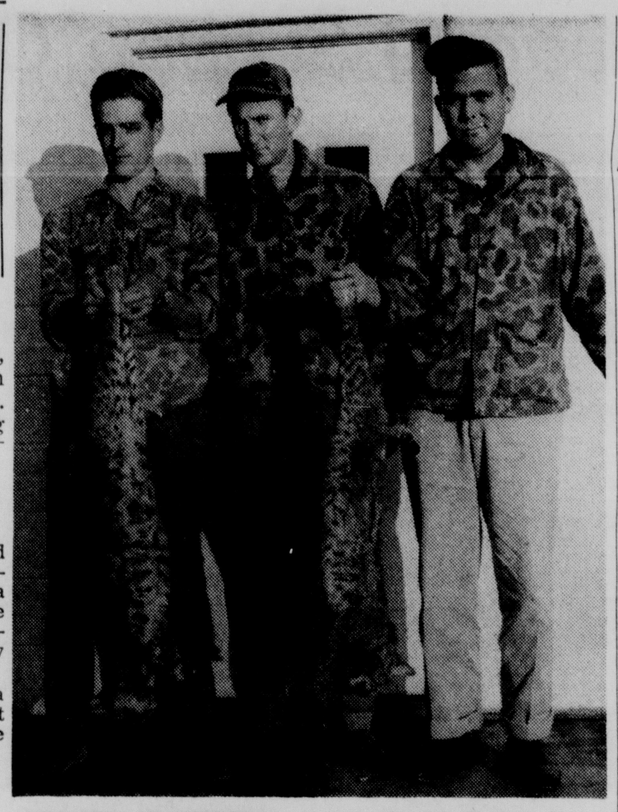
Biggest birds killed in the Delta so far weighed 20 pounds. From Winnsboro, J. W. McLemore Sr., a veteran sportsman in his 70's, killed a gobbler that almost went 17 pounds on his place in Madison.

Also of interest, Mrs. Willard Wallace of Bastrop killed a turkey in Morehouse. Her husband did too.

Other hunters getting a gobbler included Carl Griffin, A. J. Kaiser, L. A. Hamilton, G. A. Armstrong, and Thomas Biggs, all in Madison; Clem Welch and Ed Hankins, both in Tensas.

Morehouse and Union produced kills for O. D. Tyler, Bastrop; Sonny Keith, Fairbanks; Spencer Maxwell, Ruston; Jim Creed, Bastrop; George Neely, Bastrop; Joe Soignier, West Monroe; Wes Maddox, Lake Charles; Ross Graves, Mer Rouge; Tom White, Vaughn; a Mr. Thompson of Pioneer; Tom Mosgrove, Bastrop; Albert Higginbotham, Bastrop; Johnny Buatt, Bastrop; Lum Day, Beekman, who killed a 20-pounder; Ray McIntyre, Bastrop ;Jimmy Perry, Perryville; and Pete Montgomery, Beekman.



SWARTZ HUNTERS from left Charles Tullos, Jesse Brown and Sidney Scott display two bobcats they killed in Lafourche Swamp after calling the 'cats with a crippled rabbit call. The sportsmen have been perfecting the art of varmint hunting at night, using the call that attracts everything from raccoon to bobcats. They describe the sport as thrilling.

'K. C. PORCH'

Finley Is Firm; Fence To Stay

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Charles O. Finley, owner of the Kansas City Athletics, defied baseball's top officials Saturday after they ordered him to remove the fence he had erected in Municipal Stadium to make right field the same depth as that in Yankee Stadium.

Finley, here for an exhibition game, confirmed he had received telegrams from Joe Cronin, president of the American League, and Ford Frick, baseball commissioner, directing him to take down the fence.

Finley said he had been warned that unless he complied any games played here would be forfeited to the visiting team. The season opens here with Cleveland, April 21.

"You can say for me," Finley said, "that the fence will be up when the season opens."

He added he would appeal to the baseball rules committee.

"The rule book permits me to do what I am doing," he had said earlier in Chicago. "I have read it thoroughly and I know what I am saying."

The A's owner ordered the fence built last week to conform to the right field barrier in Yankee Stadium after his demands on Cronin and the Yanks for a screen to stop easy home runs at New York.

The distance from home plate to the foul pole in New York is 296 feet. The fence at the stadium here starts at the 325-foot mark, which conforms with the rules, but the 296-foot mark, the point of the V, is only two feet in fair territory.

It was in the bleachers near that point that Finley took his seat today as the A's faced the Cardinals.

"Kansas City ceased to be a farm club of the Yankees when I purchased the club in 1961," Finley said. "Now, if we can eliminate the 'pennant porch' in Yankee Stadium the other clubs in the league for the first time in 40 years will have an equal chance to win the pennant.

He said the 40 years goes back to the time the stadium was built. "Playing the Yanks in Yankee Stadium is like shooting craps with loaded dice," he continued. "You don't have a chance of winning.

"If the American League will permit me to keep this fence we can compete on equal terms with the Yankees and, I believe, battle them for the pennant this year. So can the Detroit Tigers, White Sox, Minnesota Twins and others."

He added that with his own "pennant porch", he thought Jim Gentile, his newly acquired hitter, "could very well break Babe Ruth's home run record this year."

Then the talkative owner continued:

"I defy anyone in baseball to prove to me I am operating illegally and not according to the rules. If the Yankees can have a 'pennant porch' then I want one too, and I feel entitled to it. And now I have the one here completed and we have painted on the name: 'K.C. Pennant Porch.'

"Yankee domination has been going on ever since I was a boy. It's got to stop."

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Miss America of 1964 will throw out the first ball at the Kansas City Athletics home baseball opener April 21 against the Cleveland Indians.

She is Donna Axum of El Dorado, Ark., a senior at the University of Oklahoma. An Athletics pitcher and catcher will greet her with roses at the airport, and she will receive an official team jacket and cap.

Tallulah 4-Ball Meet April 19; 96 Slots Open

TALLULAH (Special) — The Tallulah Country Club will have its annual four-ball golf tournament Sunday, April 19.

Invitations have been sent to several good golfers in the area and state as well as in Jackson and Natchez, Miss.

The field is open to the first 96 players to sign up. Entrance fee is $10 per golfer. Out of town entrants may qualify on the Tallulah course or on their home course.

Scores must be in by 6 p.m. Saturday. More information may be obtained by calling Joe Emery, 1400 at Tallulah.

The defending champions, Andrews and Bayles of Oak Grove, are expected to return to make another bid for the annual title. This year's field also is expected to bring together the strongest roster in the tournament's history.

Golfers in the Tallulah area are urged by the tournament committee to choose their partners early and turn in qualifying scores.

'Huff' Chants Come To End; Sam Is Gone

NEW YORK (AP)—The violent world of Sam Huff has collapsed. The chants of "Huff. . . Huff. . . Huff" will rise no more at Yankee Stadium. Old No. 70 has been traded to the Washington Redskins.

Nobody was shook up more than Sam, the West Virginia boy who came to the big city and took it by storm. For eight wonderful years he roamed the range as middle linebacker for the Giants. Suddenly, Friday it was all over.

Huff was in Cleveland on a business trip when his wife called with word from Allie Sherman that he had been traded for defensive end Andy Stynchula and halfback Dick James. Ironically, Sam got the word in the restaurant of Dick Modzelewski, an old buddy who was traded to Cleveland a few weeks ago.

"The Giants are such a wonderful group of guys and friends," Huff said on his return to his Flushing home, "I am sorry to see it break up. Of course, it couldn't last forever but it's a tough thing to swallow. We were such a close-knit group. Really, I was more hurt when Mo was traded than about myself.

"This really shook me up. It was so unexpected. I had one of my best years. When I talked contract with the Giants the other day there was no hint they intended to trade me. Then, boom, whoppo and you're gone.

"I don't know what I am going to do. I honestly haven't had time to talk about it with my wife. I'll have to play it by ear. Bill McPeak (Washington general manager-coach) called and said he wanted to talk to me. I'll talk to him but I don't know what I'll do.

"I'm not going to say I'll retire. It is going to take time to figure things out. I had eight wonderful years with the Giants. To me, the Mara family are the finest people in the world to play for. They treated me just great."

Huff has been assured by the textile company employing him that he has freedom of choice. If he wants to play football for three or four more years that will be fine with them. If he wants to hang it up and stick to business, that will be all right too.

For Sam Huff, Friday was the end of the world that was.

Koufax, Pascual Tabbed To Show Best This Year

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

A left-hander who has won only 93 games in nine years and a right-hander who has a losing career record for 10 seasons have been tapped as the winningest pitchers in the major leagues this year.

The pitchers with the deceptive records are Sandy Koufax, the Los Angeles Dodgers' strikeout artist who had a 25-5 record last season, and Camilo Pascual, Minnesota's curve ball specialist who posted a 21-9 record.

Koufax and Pascual joined Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees and Willie Mays of San Francisco—voted Most Valuable Player honors—as the top four vote-getters in The Associated Press' annual pre-season baseball poll.

Earlier, the 294 sports writers and broadcasters balloting in the poll picked the Los Angeles Dodgers to repeat as National League champions and the New York Yankees to make it five straight American League pennants.

The Dodgers' selection was no doubt based heavily on the respect for Koufax, who last year blossomed into a 20-game winner for the first time, pitched 11 shutouts, struck out 306 batters and compiled an eye-opening 1.88 earned run average.

Koufax easily took vote-gathering honors, getting the nod from 165 of the voters. He also finished fourth in the National League's MVP balloting, behind Mays, Hank Aaron of Milwaukee and the Dodgers' Tommy Davis.

Koufax' closest competitor for winningest pitcher designation in the NL was teammate Don Drysdale, the right-handed half of the Dodgers' 1-2 pitching punch. Drysdale, 19-17 last season, drew 41 votes to 36 for San Francisco's Juan Marichal, who had a 25-8 mark in 1963.

Pascual, who became a 20-game winner last season for the second consecutive year despite almost a full month of inactivity, rolled up 115 votes in the AL balloting. Whitey Ford of the New York Yankees, 24-7 last season, was second with 35 votes.

Ford's young teammate, Jim Bouton, was next with 30 votes, then came Gary Peters of the Chicago White Sox with 24, Al Downing of the Yankees with 23, Steve Barber of Baltimore with 20 and Bill Monbouquette of Boston with 17.

Of the pitchers with more than 10 votes, Drysdale, Peters and Downing did not win 20 games last season. Drysdale and Peters, the AL's Rookie of the Year, won 19. Downing, brought up from the minors after the season started, had a 13-5 record.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

National Library Week Is Underway

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Today is the first day of National Library Week and for the next six days, in more than five thousand communities in all of the states of our country, there will be observances of one kind or another. The Opening event planned by the Ouachita Parish Committee for National Library Week, of which Dr. George T. Walker is serving as President is an Open House this afternoon at the Sandel Memorial Library at Northeast Louisiana State College. The hours of the Open House are from 3:00 to 5:00. The public is invited to attend and the oustanding feature of the Open House will be an exhibit of books of local interest. Several local authors will be present to add interest to the observance.

The theme of National Library Week 1964 is READING IS THE KEY and truly it is the key which unlocks many doors. At the Ouachita Parish Public Library, there are a number of new books which will unlock doors of various types for our readers. In the field of fiction there are several new books of fiction, which are keys to enjoyment and understanding of people. "Darkwater" by Dorothy Eden is an exciting story of hidden motives. "Comarde Don Camillo" by Giovanni Guareschi is another of the delightful books about the Italian Priest, whom so many readers love. "Convention" by Feltcher Knebel and Charles W. Bailey II will probably be the most popular fiction book of the week and probably of the summer, because it is so very timely. "Old Hickory" by Noe B. Gerson is based on the life of Andrew Jackson. "Rougue's Harbor" by Inglis Fletcher is another of her exciting books, with a background of North Carolina sea coast history. Reading the books of Mrs. Fletcher gives one a remarkable understanding of early North Carolina history.

The books of non-fiction offer keys to an understanding of many subjects. "Occidental Mythology" by Joseph Campbell is a very illuminating and informative book. "The Naked Society" by Vance Packard will be extremely popular as all of of Mr. Packard's books are. His thesis is that we do not have enough privacy in our society and he gives instances which show how it has been invaded. There are a number of new Civil Service manuals which will serve as keys to open the doors to better jobs. They are: "Law enforcement Officers - Practice Tests"; "Rural mail Carrier and Postmaster 4th Class"; "Full Length Practice Examinations for U. S. Army-Navy Classification Tests."; "Immigration Patrol Inspector"; "Post Office Clerk - Carrier"; "Correctional Officer, Bureau of Prisons and Department of Justice and "Meat Inspector and Poultry Inspector."

Books which serve as keys to open the doors to happier fuller lives are: "Living Alone; a Guide for Single Women" written by William B. Faherty; "The Master in the Kitchen" which is a cookbood for men, written by Donn Pierce and Charlotte Turgeon; "What to Tell Your Child" by Helen S. Arnsteisn; "Audel's Painting and Decorating Manual" by Harold Highland, "The Low - Fat Cookbook for Gourmets" by Helen Belinkie" and "A Guide to Home Improvement" by Donald R. Brann. Two lovely books in the field of antique furniture are "Images of American Living" by Alan Gowans and "Antique collecting for Everyone" by Katherine McClinton.

Books of biography offer the key to the understanding of human nature and there are a number of new biographies available this week. "Mountain Doctor," by Legette Blythe is the inspiring story of a physician who devoted his life to helping the mountain people of North Carolina. "Mendelssohn" by Eric Werner gives us a new image of this talented composer. "Stan Musial; the Man's Own Story" will be eagerly read by baseball enthusiasts; "When the Cheering Stopped" by Gene Smith is a very fine account of the later years of Woodrow Wilson.

There are also several books of collected biographies. That is each chapter deals with a different person all of whom have something in common. "Women of Light" by Walter Russell Bowie deals with Biblical characters. "The Great Pianists" by Harold C. Schonburg is invaluable for musicians. "Kings and Queens of England France" by J. Fattoruso will be most helpful to history students. "In Their Honor" by William D. Feeny is a book of true stories of flier for whom United States air force bases are named and "Voyages and Discoveries of the Companions of Columbus" written by Washington Irving is a reprint of an old book which contains valuable information about the men who sailed with Columbus.

Reference books are truly the key which unlock many doors, chiefly the door of information. There are a number of additions to the reference collection of the library. "The 1963 International Directory and Almanacs of World-Wide Information for Private Investigators" compiled by Fred Otash is a very unusual book, containing a wealth of information not found in other sources. "Celebrity Register" contains biographical sketches and pictures of people who are often found in the news. The two volumes of the "Play Index" cover the period from 1949 to 1960 and should be most useful. The annual volumes of the World Book and the Encyclopedia Britannica contain much valuable information about the events of 1963.

Reading is the key to many worlds and the libraries of Ouachita Parish invite you to explore them during National Library Week and after it has come to a close.

Feeny is a book of true stories of flier for whom United States air force bases are named and "Voyages and Discoveries of the Companions of Columbus" written by Washington Irving is a reprint of an old book which contains valuable information about the men who sailed with Columbus.

Reference books are truly the key which unlock many doors, chiefly the door of information. There are a number of additions to the reference collection of the library. "The 1963 International Directory and Almanacs of World-Wide Information for Private Investigators" compiled by Fred Otash is a very unusual book, containing a wealth of information not found in other sources. "Celebrity Register" contains biographical sketches and pictures of people who are often found in the news. The two volumes of the "Play Index" cover the period from 1949 to 1960 and should be most useful. The annual volumes of the World Book and the Encyclopedia Britannica contain much valuable information about the events of 1963.

Reading is the key to many worlds and the libraries of Ouachita Parish invite you to explore them during National Library Week and after it has come to a close.

Resort Wear Fashions Differ With Locale

At Barbados an English influence quiets everything down. Here skirts are preferred over pants, in full lines for coolness, and silk shirts are tailored. Heads are swathed in chiffon scarves. The young like yoke-sleeved pastel cotton shifts and brimed straw hats with high, peaked crowns.

In San Juan, Puerto Rico, it's chic to show the Spanish influence, in low-cut cotton dresses whose prints are touched with black, in high hairdos, high heels, fringed shawls for evening.

Florida is altogether different. Here the Palm Beach look takes over, with Pucci shirts and pants, white linen dresses topped with navy cashmere sweaters, and that Palm Beach uniform, the shift called a Lilly dress.

'Fair Lady' Costumes Tour

Lucky theatre - goers in the East are getting a live look at Cecil Beaton's original costumes for the stage production of "My Fair Lady," just to whet their appetites for the upcoming movie version, which he also has designed.

A 20-week tour of the stage musical is now under way to various Eastern playhouses, and all the original costumes have been reproduced for it. Four trunks alone are required for the hats worn in the "Ascot" scene, and 18 wardrobe boxes for the gowns.

Included will be the black and white striped masterpiece he did for the "Ascot" number, with the huge swoop of velvet hat, and the regal ball gown Eliza wears for the Embassy scene, with its discreet veiling of glitter of white chiffon.

Miro Book Club Discusses New Program Topic

The country home of Mrs. Neal McHenry was the setting for the April 6 meeting of the Miro Book Club.

Mrs. A. L. Peters, vice-president, conducted the meeting in the absence of the president, Mrs. B. L. Mulhearn. Mrs. J. H. McCormick read communications and an invitation from the Junior Charity League to a silver tea on April 21.

A discussion was held on study topic for the forthcoming year and it was decided to leave the choice to the year book committee.

"Return to Japan," by Elizabeth Gray Vining was reviewed by Mrs. D. M. Moore. She told of Mrs. Vining's account of her return to Japan after an absence of several years and the changes made from former restrictions to a more democratic way of living.

A salad course was served at close of the afternoon by the hostess to Mrs. H. V. Fluker, Mrs. W. M. Greenwell, Mrs. J. H. McCormick, Mrs. D. M. Moore, Mrs. J. W. Musselwhite, Mrs. A. L. Peters, Mrs. J. T. Pugh, Mrs. F. L. Smith, Mrs. George Temple, Mrs. C. R. Tidwell and Mrs. R. L. Wood.

Resort Wear Fashions Differ With Locale

At Barbados an English influence quiets everything down. Here skirts are preferred over pants, in full lines for coolness, and silk shirts are tailored. Heads are swathed in chiffon scarves. The young like yoke-sleeved pastel cotton shifts and brimed straw hats with high, peaked crowns.

In San Juan, Puerto Rico, it's chic to show the Spanish influence, in low-cut cotton dresses whose prints are touched with black, in high hairdos, high heels, fringed shawls for evening.

Florida is altogether different. Here the Palm Beach look takes over, with Pucci shirts and pants, white linen dresses topped with navy cashmere sweaters, and that Palm Beach uniform, the shift called a Lilly dress.

'Fair Lady' Costumes Tour

Lucky theatre - goers in the East are getting a live look at Cecil Beaton's original costumes for the stage production of "My Fair Lady," just to whet their appetites for the upcoming movie version, which he also has designed.

A 20-week tour of the stage musical is now under way to various Eastern playhouses, and all the original costumes have been reproduced for it. Four trunks alone are required for the hats worn in the "Ascot" scene, and 18 wardrobe boxes for the gowns.

Included will be the black and white striped masterpiece he did for the "Ascot" number, with the huge swoop of velvet hat, and the regal ball gown Eliza wears for the Embassy scene, with its discreet veiling of glitter of white chiffon.

Chanel Is Big Suit Influence

Almost everywhere Chanel is the big suit influence today, even for women who hardly know her name. But in California her gay, brightly colorful way with suits looks supremely best.

White suits trimmed in navy braid, the shocking pink tweeds, the multicolored soft tweeds, all look so lovely under California sunshine that one would think Chanel had designed them for Beverly Hills living and climate.

Chanel has always said her suit way of life was right for the modern woman on every occasion formal ones, and California is the place to prove it.

By day it's the Chanel cardigan look, braid - bound and four-pocketed, with the chain jewelry. Some women's committees show up for meetings with almost every member in a different version!

St. Paul's Methodist Church was scene of the ceremony Friday, April 3 which united in marriage Miss Elva Bardin, 2315 Racine Drive, and Houston Keller Huckabay, 2310 Amalie Drive. Dr. Ben Oliphint officiated at the double ring vows at 7 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. George Gaddis Bardin, 2315 Racine Drive and the late Mr. Bardin and Mr. Huckabay is the son of Mrs. John L. Cordell and William H. Huckabay, both of Shreveport.

A mass arrangement of white stock, carnations and pompons, which centered the altar was flanked by a pair of spiral candelabra, garlanded with springerii fern.

A prelude of organ music was provided by Leroy Anspach who also accompanied Miss Norma Garlington, who sang The Lord's Prayer.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her uncle, Eugene Huffty of Baton Rouge, who gave her in marriage. Her gown of white taffeta in ballerina length featured a scoop neckline, three quarter sleeves and semi-bell skirt with side drape. Appliques of Alencon lace and pearls embellished the bodice front and drape. Her shoulder length veil of illusion was held in place by a lace coronet outlined with pearls. Softness Seen In Fashions For Trousseaux

Spring and summer brides shopping for a trousseau should look for softness in every fashion chosen to be on the right track in dressing for the coming season.

Softness means ease in shaping, in necklines, in waistlines, in skirts, in hemlines, and in fabrics.

The shape of the spring season is a flowing movement from the neckline of softened details down the body in a barely clinging, lightly shaped silhouette, winding up at the hemline where pleats, ruffles and flounces look newly important.

Colors are softened, too, with pink the standout, followed by sherbert and flower hues. Almost all colors will be on the softened side, although crisp contrasts of navy and white, and black and white are often used to point up the anything-but-crisp silhouettes and details.

MISS ELIZABETH ANN DUFFEY

Ann Duffey, Larry Senn Plan May 29 Wedding

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Elizabeth Ann Duffey, daughter of Mrs. Jackie Styles, West Monroe and Frank A. Duffey, Sterlington, to Wendell Larry Senn is announced today by her parents. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Senn of Sterlington.

The wedding is planned for Friday, May 29 to be solemnized at 6:30 p.m. in the Riverside Baptist Church, Sterlington. Rev. O. W. Hogan will officiate.

The bride - elect has chosen Miss Sue Senn as maid of honor and bridesmaids will be Miss Marsha Bell and Miss Davy Ann Senn. Mr. Senn will attend his son as best man and chosen as groomsmen - ushers are William Rayborn Senn and Roger Kinnison.

Miss Duffey is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Bell of West Monroe and Mrs. Emma Deats, Monroe. She attended West Monroe high school and will graduate this spring from Sterlington high.

Mr. Senn is a graduate of Sterlington high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Will Senn, Rayville and the late Mr. and Mrs. Cost of Alabama. Following their marriage the couple will establish a home in Crossett, Ark., where Mr. Senn is employed.

White Dominates Fashion Picture From Tip To Toe

Pink and lilac shades follow closely behind, and navy blue is bound to regain fans. Reds and oranges sing out too. White, again, with black will be big.

A South of the Border look appears noteworthy for spring and particularly for summer, in dresses with a fiesta air. They're practical and pretty for patio entertaining, or for wear to any gala, yet casual, affair.

Jumpers, an all encompassing term or sleeveless fashions that can be worn over a blouse or sweater, were red hot favorites this past season and it's a strong bet that they'll continue in a top spot for spring.

Ruffles, an important trend in dresses and blouses for spring, are a natural for gloves — so, of course, there they are.

But, that's not all. Gloves are feminine in many other dainty ways as well — with buttons, bows, lace, smocking, flowers, embroidery. In fact, gloves are prettier than ever this season.

Capes cover the young sportswear scene for spring as a popular sportive carry over from the fall-winter season. They may, in fact, prove to be even more popular when temperatures are brisk rather than cold as they are just right as a little topper.

Unbleached muslin appears to have an affinity for styles in the Mexican manner which are going to be so "viva" for spring!

Muslin is so simple, it can take to the fussiest details and still come out in a style that appeals to the most tailored of gals. And it will!

Interesting visitors in town this week have been MR. and MRS. H. LOREE HARVEY, guests of her twin sister and brother-in-law, LUCY and RALPH WILSON, in their home on Newberry St. The Harveys, whose home is in Kalamazoo, Michigan, have been on a trip to Yucatan and Guatamala. They are returning home with stops at LSU, Bellingrath Gardens, Hodges Gardens, and other spots of interest as well as in Monroe.

On Wednesday, MARY ELLEN WALKER entertained at luncheon in her home, honoring this visitor. Her table was centered with an arrangement of azaleas and tulips in an unusual salmon shade. The menu served to seven guests included chicken breasts in mushroom sauce, noodle and onion casserole, string beans with horseradish, and curried fruit; with mystery pie for dessert.

Luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club was the compliment planned by ROSEMARY HUNT for her sister-in-law, MARTHA GOULD of Long Beach, California. Martha is here for a two weeks visit with her mother, LUCILLE HUNT, in Ruston. The table on the porch was covered with a yellow cloth and appointed with green goblets. The centerpiece was a green bowl filled with yellow spring blossoms and Majestic daisies. Ten guests attended.

A former Monroyan "back home" this week was AVIS WITTY, who now lives in Louisville, Kentucky. Avis, with her children, MILTON and KATHLEEN, stopped over for a few days with the JOHN LOKERS en route home from an Easter visit to Tyler, Texas.

Honoring Avis, Pauline Loker and DOT WILLIAMS were hostesses for luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club on Tuesday. Six guests were seated at the table in the bay window, which was decorated with a brass basket filled with pansies. The menu included the Club's famous shrimp salad, with a choice of desserts from the cart. After the lunch, Dot drove the ladies on a tour of Monroe to see new homes built since Avis moved away. Highlighting the tour was a visit to EMYLOU BIEDENHARN's garden.

Some twenty-two girls of the sixth grade set were invited Tuesday afternoon when HOLLY HEUER and BECKY HUENEFELD entertained honoring Kathleen Witty. The young guests arrived in shorts for record playing and outside activities. A hot dog supper was served, with a cake iced "Welcome, Kathleen."

On Wednesday, Avis was a guest at the regular meeting of her former bridge club, held this week at the home of BETTY LANGLEY on Pargoud boulevard . . . Thursday's party was a dessert bridge with LIBBY MILLER and ANN COLE hostesses at the Miller home.

First roses of the season were used in decorating for this affair. On the dining room table, the centerpiece was of roses with ivy, while nosegays of roses centered the four individual tables. The dessert was an elegant frozen concoction consisting of fruit sherbert alternated with a divinity-like layer.

Another special guest here for this party was MARGARET ANN TIDWELL, former Monroyan who drove up from Alexandria to attend. She spent Thursday night with her mother, MAE HARPER, in West Monroe; returned to Alexandria Friday. The Wittys also left on Friday to return to Louisville.

One of last weekend's gayer parties was that celebrating DICK TOUCHSTONE's fortieth birthday. Georgie managed that almost-impossible feat, surprising the husband in his own house. Decorations in the living room included a large brass basket filled with spring flowers, and clusters of large balloons marked "40". Book matches also bore the tell-tale message.

Centering the dining room table was a clever arrangement reflecting the party theme. In one side of large blue scales was the figure of an old golfer, relaxed in a chair with his dog at his feet. Opposite, and wreathed in angel hair denoting a pipe dream, was a chaise longue on which lounged a blonde who toasted the old golfer with champagne glass and music score.

Friends called at this party bearing original and hilarious gifts. One choice item was a gilded putter to which were chained a compass for helping the golfer find the green; a telescopic sight for locating the hole; and a stopwatch to time his shots. . . The buffet menu included devilled oysters, marinated shrimp, corned beef with dill bread, chicken salad sandwiches, and assorted dips; with individual cakes iced "40" for dessert.

Open house this afternoon at Sandel library on Northeast Louisiana State college campus will mark the first event of National Library Week. The tea, from three until five, is sponsored by the Ouachita Parish Library committee for the week's observance. Special guests this afternoon are to be local authors. Books by these writers and others of special local interest will be shown in a special display. The public is invited.

Members of Bayou DeSiard country club are looking forward to this Saturday evening and official opening of the Club's new Garden Room. This, formerly the Reef Room, has been remodelled and redecorated. One wall has been replaced with a glass facade commanding a panoramic view of the golf course. The expanse of charcoal - colored, heat absorbent glass is shielded from the afternoon sun by a covered corridor. Square brick columns support the gallery roof. On the wall opposite the window, elliptical arches are formed by columns framing panels of scenic paper.

In this Southern garden setting, mint juleps will be served next Saturday evening between six and eight. Music is to be supplied by a barbershop quartet made up of HOMER TILLERY, GARLAND SHELL, HARRY ARTHUR and DAVIS BINGHAM. From eight until twleve, Phares Corder and his orchestra will provide music for dancing.

Next Sunday Tulane University is sponsoring its Monroe conference at the Paragon club. The program opens with registration from noon until one, with luncheon at one. Panel sessions during the afternoon will discuss the topics: "Inside College Admissions"; "Hamlet"; "A Dressy Affair"; "Under Paris Skies", a musical session; "Common Markets"; and "The Confederacy". OLIVE and RYAN SARTOR, JR., are serving as co-chairman of the conference.

For our poem today, another of Shakespeare's sonnets:

When in disgrace with fourtune and men's eyes,
I all alone beweep my outcast state,
And trouble deal heaven with my bootless cries,
And look upon myself, and curse my fate,
Wishing me like to one more rich in hope,
Featur'd like him, like him with friends possess'd,
Desiring this man's art, and that man's scope,
With what I most enjoy contented least:
Yet in these thoughts myself almost despising,
Haply I think on thee, and then my state,
Like to the lark at break of day arising
From sullen earth, sings hymns at heaven's gate;
For thy sweet love remember'd such wealth brings
That then I scorn to change my state with kings.

Boating Attire Latest Trend In Fashions

Like skiing, boating has its active fans and its spectators. And boating clothes tend, like ski clothes, to divide between the right clothes for action and the sometimes overdone clothes for the watchers.

However, boating, by its nature, has fewer watchers than does skiing. Unless the boat is a good-sized yacht with a crew, few boats have room for anyone who isn't a worker. So boating clothes should always be right for the action.

Among the better designers of true boating clothes is Mighty Mac, whose location in Gloucester, Mass., makes certain that any styles they do will be true boating clothes. This year they do a "Tuna Tunic," a thigh-length jacket with a drawstring waist that is an attractive sport jacket.

With it goes a wrap skirt and shorts, making an outfit for both land and water, since the shorts can be worn under the skirt. This change-about idea also appears in a new zip-off sleeve featured on another Mighty Mac Jacket, so the jacket can be converted to short sleeves in a minute.

Notable in Mighty Mac boating clothes is the family concept. All members and ages can be outfitted in snug, waterproof, windproof clothes which are also smart-looking sportswear.

Mighty Mac prefers an Antron nylon as its chief fabric. Other boating designers, such as White Stag, are interested in stretch fabrics, such as stretch cotton deck pants and stretch terry pullovers.

MISS ELIZABETH ANN DUFFEY

Ann Duffey, Larry Senn Plan May 29 Wedding

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Elizabeth Ann Duffey, daughter of Mrs. Jackie Styles, West Monroe and Frank A. Duffey, Sterlington, to Wendell Larry Senn is announced today by her parents. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Senn of Sterlington.

The wedding is planned for Friday, May 29 to be solemnized at 6:30 p.m. in the Riverside Baptist Church, Sterlington. Rev. O. W. Hogan will officiate.

The bride - elect has chosen Miss Sue Senn as maid of honor and bridesmaids will be Miss Marsha Bell and Miss Davy Ann Senn. Mr. Senn will attend his son as best man and chosen as groomsmen - ushers are William Rayborn Senn and Roger Kinnison.

Miss Duffey is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Bell of West Monroe and Mrs. Emma Deats, Monroe. She attended West Monroe high school and will graduate this spring from Sterlington high.

Mr. Senn is a graduate of Sterlington high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Will Senn, Rayville and the late Mr. and Mrs. Cost of Alabama. Following their marriage the couple will establish a home in Crossett, Ark., where Mr. Senn is employed.

White Dominates Fashion Picture From Tip To Toe

Pink and lilac shades follow closely behind, and navy blue is bound to regain fans. Reds and oranges sing out too. White, again, with black will be big.

A South of the Border look appears noteworthy for spring and particularly for summer, in dresses with a fiesta air. They're practical and pretty for patio entertaining, or for wear to any gala, yet casual, affair.

Jumpers, an all encompassing term or sleeveless fashions that can be worn over a blouse or sweater, were red hot favorites this past season and it's a strong bet that they'll continue in a top spot for spring.

Ruffles, an important trend in dresses and blouses for spring, are a natural for gloves — so, of course, there they are.

But, that's not all. Gloves are feminine in many other dainty ways as well — with buttons, bows, lace, smocking, flowers, embroidery. In fact, gloves are prettier than ever this season.

Capes cover the young sportswear scene for spring as a popular sportive carry over from the fall-winter season. They may, in fact, prove to be even more popular when temperatures are brisk rather than cold as they are just right as a little topper.

Unbleached muslin appears to have an affinity for styles in the Mexican manner which are going to be so "viva" for spring!

Muslin is so simple, it can take to the fussiest details and still come out in a style that appeals to the most tailored of gals. And it will!

Interesting visitors in town this week have been MR. and MRS. H. LOREE HARVEY, guests of her twin sister and brother-in-law, LUCY and RALPH WILSON, in their home on Newberry St. The Harveys, whose home is in Kalamazoo, Michigan, have been on a trip to Yucatan and Guatamala. They are returning home with stops at LSU, Bellingrath Gardens, Hodges Gardens, and other spots of interest as well as in Monroe.

On Wednesday, MARY ELLEN WALKER entertained at luncheon in her home, honoring this visitor. Her table was centered with an arrangement of azaleas and tulips in an unusual salmon shade. The menu served to seven guests included chicken breasts in mushroom sauce, noodle and onion casserole, string beans with horseradish, and curried fruit; with mystery pie for dessert.

Luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club was the compliment planned by ROSEMARY HUNT for her sister-in-law, MARTHA GOULD of Long Beach, California. Martha is here for a two weeks visit with her mother, LUCILLE HUNT, in Ruston. The table on the porch was covered with a yellow cloth and appointed with green goblets. The centerpiece was a green bowl filled with yellow spring blossoms and Majestic daisies. Ten guests attended.

A former Monroyan "back home" this week was AVIS WITTY, who now lives in Louisville, Kentucky. Avis, with her children, MILTON and KATHLEEN, stopped over for a few days with the JOHN LOKERS en route home from an Easter visit to Tyler, Texas.

Honoring Avis, Pauline Loker and DOT WILLIAMS were hostesses for luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club on Tuesday. Six guests were seated at the table in the bay window, which was decorated with a brass basket filled with pansies. The menu included the Club's famous shrimp salad, with a choice of desserts from the cart. After the lunch, Dot drove the ladies on a tour of Monroe to see new homes built since Avis moved away. Highlighting the tour was a visit to EMYLOU BIEDENHARN's garden.

Some twenty-two girls of the sixth grade set were invited Tuesday afternoon when HOLLY HEUER and BECKY HUENEFELD entertained honoring Kathleen Witty. The young guests arrived in shorts for record playing and outside activities. A hot dog supper was served, with a cake iced "Welcome, Kathleen."

On Wednesday, Avis was a guest at the regular meeting of her former bridge club, held this week at the home of BETTY LANGLEY on Pargoud boulevard . . . Thursday's party was a dessert bridge with LIBBY MILLER and ANN COLE hostesses at the Miller home.

First roses of the season were used in decorating for this affair. On the dining room table, the centerpiece was of roses with ivy, while nosegays of roses centered the four individual tables. The dessert was an elegant frozen concoction consisting of fruit sherbert alternated with a divinity-like layer.

Another special guest here for this party was MARGARET ANN TIDWELL, former Monrovan who drove up from Alexandria to attend. She spent Thursday night with her mother, MAE HARPER, in West Monroe; returned to Alexandria Friday. The Wittys also left on Friday to return to Louisville.

One of last weekend's gayer parties was that celebrating DICK TOUCHSTONE's fortieth birthday. Georgie managed that almost-impossible feat, surprising the husband in his own house. Decorations in the living room included a large brass basket filled with spring flowers, and clusters of large balloons marked "40". Book matches also bore the tell-tale message.

Centering the dining room table was a clever arrangement reflecting the party theme. In one side of large blue scales was the figure of an old golfer, relaxed in a chair with his dog at his feet. Opposite, and wreathed in angel hair denoting a pipe dream, was a chaise longue on which lounged a blonde who toasted the old golfer with champagne glass and music score.

Friends called at this party bearing original and hilarious gifts. One choice item was a gilded putter to which were chained a compass for helping the golfer find the green; a telescopic sight for locating the hole; and a stopwatch to time his shots. . . The buffet menu included devilled oysters, marinated shrimp, corned beef with dill bread, chicken salad sandwiches, and assorted dips; with individual cakes iced "40" for dessert.

Open house this afternoon at Sandel library on Northeast Louisiana State college campus will mark the first event of National Library Week. The tea, from three until five, is sponsored by the Ouachita Parish Library committee for the week's observance. Special guests this afternoon are to be local authors. Books by these writers and others of special local interest will be shown in a special display. The public is invited.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Column Makes Some Women Feel Lucky

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: A letter which appeared in your column recently hit home. I refer to the woman whose best friend's husband made a pass at her. Last week I had the same revolting experience for the second time.

A "buddy" of my husband's rang the doorbell at midnight. He said he had been visiting in the neighborhood and his car door was jammed. He asked if my husband could help him. The rat knew that my husband was out of town.

Before I could say "Drop Dead" he was inside the house — grabbing me. I let him know he had the wrong number.

I later told my husband but I refused to name the fellow. He was furious — but not because he wanted to punch the guy in the nose. He said gallantly, "I'd give anything to know who the louse is. I'd like to go to his house and pull the same thing on his wife."

Men? You can have 'em. — DISGUSTED

Dear Dis: Great little group you're running around with — including your husband.

One of the comforting aspects of this column is that it makes bushands only fall asleep in front of the TV or leave wet towels on the bathroom floor.

Dear Ann Landers: Please give me your opinion of parents who will not allow a 13½ year old son to be left alone for the evening — even when they go only four doors away?

I am this boy's 17-year-old sister. Last night I had to cancel a date because I had to baby-sit with my brother.

Ann, this kid is old enough to BE a baby-sitter

Please print your opinion. — VANCOUVER GIRL

Dear Girl: Unless your brother is retarded, or physically ill he should not need a sitter.

The boy should be in high school within a year. If he has not been left alone for an evening by then your parents will have an emotional cripple on their hands.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

YOUR PROBLEMS

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: A letter which appeared in your column recently hit home. I refer to the woman whose best friend's husband made a pass at her. Last week I had the same revolting experience for the second time.

A "buddy" of my husband's rang the doorbell at midnight. He said he had been visiting in the neighborhood and his car door was jammed. He asked if my husband could help him. The rat knew that my husband was out of town.

Before I could say "Drop Dead" he was inside the house — grabbing me. I let him know he had the wrong number.

I later told my husband but I refused to name the fellow. He was furious — but not because he wanted to punch the guy in the nose. He said gallantly, "I'd give anything to know who the louse is. I'd like to go to his house and pull the same thing on his wife."

Men? You can have 'em. — DISGUSTED

Dear Dis: Great little group you're running around with — including your husband.

One of the comforting aspects of this column is that it makes bushands only fall asleep in front of the TV or leave wet towels on the bathroom floor.

Dear Ann Landers: Please give me your opinion of parents who will not allow a 13½ year old son to be left alone for the evening — even when they go only four doors away?

I am this boy's 17-year-old sister. Last night I had to cancel a date because I had to baby-sit with my brother.

Ann, this kid is old enough to BE a baby-sitter

Please print your opinion. — VANCOUVER GIRL

Dear Girl: Unless your brother is retarded, or physically ill he should not need a sitter.

The boy should be in high school within a year. If he has not been left alone for an evening by then your parents will have an emotional cripple on their hands.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Spring's Full Beauty Time

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Spring is still in full flower, according to the evidence found in the lovely flower arrangements brought last Wednesday to the T. V. and Fifth District Garden Center program by the Mer Rouge Garden Club.

The club's president, Mrs. Jack Moore, and one of the members, Mrs. C. L. Clark Jr. brought the seven designs that were displayed. The club should be very proud of these artistic members because their arrangements brought such favorable comments from the many viewers who came to the Center in Sears as well as reported to me about having seen them on the T.V. program.

Most impressive was the massed design of dogwood in full bloom made by Mrs. Jack Moore. These were the largest blossoms I have seen. These were placed to form an asymmetrical triangle in a green jar type container (lotus jug). The soft green of the container blended pleasingly with the dogwood foliage which formed the overall filler. The other design made by Mrs. Moore was also of dogwood, the pink variety. This was combined with soft pink glads which formed the primary vertical line of the asymmetrical triangle. The container for this design was a grey green ceramic compote. Both designs were an excellent example of designs for dogwood.

THREE DESIGNS

Mrs. C. L. Clark Jr. made three designs. All three were very distinctive because of the materials used or because of the containers. The most unusual container was the Chinese whiskey jug, deep brown in color, placed on a brown wooden base. Two to form the line design. materials were combined to form the line design. Dogwood branch (without blooms) formed the main line. This was filled in with deep pink azaleas with the leaves and tight buds placed in a natural manner which is typical of the Oriental designs. The next unusual container was the antique silver teapot used as a container for the talisman roses which filled in the triangle line established by small branches of quince (new growth). The roses (almost all tight buds) had the appearance of falling or flowing from the teapot. This is the proper line for plant materials in a teapot or pitcher. This would be an ideal design for the coffee table.

For her third design Mrs. Clark used all green foliage. Iris leaves formed (tiered) the vertical line in a small green glass bowl placed on a round base. The basic part of the design contained clusters of kalankoe leaves which are soft grey green in color and are rounded in form. The contrast of these two foliage plants created interest in this design. This would be ideal for the den coffee table or long lasting for the breakfast table.

CLEMATIS BLOOMS

The last design, made by Mrs. Hassell Clark, contained the lovely blooms of the clematis, light orchid in color. This drew a lot of attention from those who saw it. The blooms stayed fresh for such a long time. The design was made in a small amber bottle. The primary line for the design was iris foliage with tight buds. Buds of the clematis were next. Then the open blossoms formed the focal interest. The leaves of the clematis formed the filler throughout.

Mrs. H. L. Herron, one of the club's eldest members (charter) sent a selection of lovely Iris from her garden to be displayed on the show. Also, three unusual tulips, one red edged in white, another deep purple, and yellow edged in red. All were perfect specimens from a flower lover.

Another lovely show by a wonderful garden club — Thanks to each of the members of the Mer Rouge Garden Club.

Attention all Federated garden clubs: This is the final month to order your Louisiana Gardeners Calendar Book. Send in your order to Mrs. Frank Simon, 505 Oak St., New Iberia, La. SOUTHERN GARDENER

Reliables In Garden

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

In addition to the late summer perennials discussed last week, there are some annuals, some bulbs and some more perennials which can be counted on to provide flowers through our summer droughts, heat and floods here in the South.

Most gardeners do not think about ordering bulbs at any time except in the Fall. Since summer flowering bulbs like crinums and montbretias are usually not offered in autumn, the gardens of these people go on from summer to summer without some of the most spectacular flowers. Even the seed and bulb stores are now offering different kinds of crinums and montbretias along with gladiolas. Get these bulbs and plant them right away. Crinum Cecil Houdyshel is one of the best, but any crinum is a good one.

UNUSUAL TONES

The modern montbretias look like flattened gladiolas on stiff, wiry stems. They come in yellow, orange and unusual tones of maroon and near brown. Do not be afraid to plant the small corms four inches deep. Planted shallow, they suffer in droughts. The foliage of montbretias is like delicate gladiola foliage and a great asset to the summer garden. For blue and orange or blue and yellow combinations in the garden, plant Salvia farinacea near the montbretias.

For three to four-foot spikes of white in the midsummer garden, there is nothing yet to take the place of the big cape hyacinth, Galtonia. In most gardens, this will overlap with the Formosa lilies. A dozen galtonias together in a mass, with the bulbs about eight inches apart make a telling cool effect at a dead time in the summer garden. Let the pants go to seed, and you will have more bulbs.

Nicotiana or "flowering tobacco" is one of the best tender perennials for Southern gardens. Even through the deep freezes we have had for severeal winters, this plant has been able to come back from seedlings and some roots that survived each winter even in North Carolina. Florist usually have nicotiana plants for sale with their annuals, but you can also raise them from seed in exactly the same way you do petunias. The modern hybrid nicotianas come in most unusual shades of red and dusty pink. Be sure to plant some white ones, however, for their night fragrance.

Fine Hostas

In the past few years, perennial dealers have begun to offer us some of the really fine kinds of hostas. These shade loving perennials have beautiful foliage. They are absolutely permanent plants. Each small plant that you set out will go on forever, making a bigger and bigger clump of handsome foliage and blooming every year in late summer.

Extra Help Needed On Porch Work

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

If you've been postponing that screened - in porch project because you can't muster up the courage to tackle it, give up and call for help, says photographer John Hugelmeyer of Riverdale, N.J., who did just that. It's better to begin the project, and get into the act later, if you must, he says, by doing some phase of the work that doesn't require professional talent.

"At first I thought I'd tackle the whole project — flooring, roof and all," says Hugelmeyer of his 15 foot by 25 foot project. "My brother, an architect drew up plans in large scale, but the more I looked at plans, the more I realized it was too big a job for me. So I decided to get someone to built the foundation and roof, and then I'd tackle the screening myself."

CONVINCED

Such considerations as to how to connect rafters to the house, how water must run off, how the roof should be edged, and venting convinced Hugelmeyer that the job required professional knowhow.

But, whammo, as soon as porch posts, ceiling and foundation were installed, Hugelmeyer was ready to tackle the screening in with gusto.

"That part of it was fun when I got around to it. I armed myself with aluminum wire screening, a stapling gun and some pine stock for frames. I put the screening on frames that would slide in between the posts.

Good clear pine is best for framing as knots will weaken the frame, he says. The screening should be started by stapling the middle of each side of the frame, pulling from the center toward those points so there will be no sags or ripples in it.

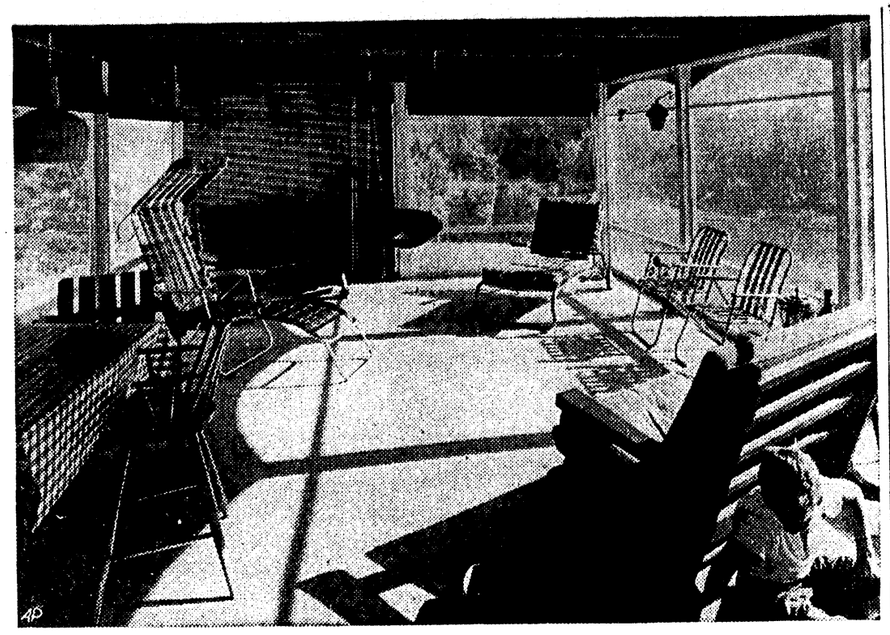
"If screening is properly put up it will be impervious to everything. Ours has withstood the barrage of chipmunks, cats, other animals and two lively youngsters." he says.

Many people make glass frames for winter use of a porch, Hugelmeyer points out, and this is a great idea. But after considering that plan, he decided against it because in his case, the concrete floor might necessitate expensive heating arrangements.

ALMOST NECESSITY

Though Hugelmeyer's original plan was to have an open covered porch, he went on from there to the screened-in version because "it is almost a necessity in any buggy area to use screens, if you'd get the maximum enjoyment out of an outdoor area, particularly at night," he says.

Anyone who has an open porch that merely needs screening could have an enclosed one by expending the little time and effort required in building frames and applying screening.



SCREENED-IN PORCH—John Hugelmeyer of Riverdale, N.J., had a porch built on his home. Then he finished up the project by doing the screening-in.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Depending on your inclination, your skill and the amount of money you want to spend, you can make an outdoor fireplace as simple or as elaborate as you wish. It can be nothing more than a few concrete blocks set on the ground with a grate across them or a fancy masonry structure enclosing a ready-made metal unit with various cooking controls.

Will your fireplace need a chimney? If you intend to burn only charcoal, a chimney is not essential. If you will be using wood or coal, a chimney must be higher than any adjoining structure or nearby shrubbery so that the smoke can be carried away and there will be no downdraft.

BRICKS OR BLOCKS

Bricks or concrete blocks can be used, held together with mortar if the fireplace is to be anything other than a temporary cooking setup. A ready-mixed mortar requires only the addition of water. Or you can make your own with one part portland cement, one quarter-lime and three parts of fine sand. Add enough water to give the mixture the consistency of soft mud, so that it spreads easily yet does not run. The mortar soon loses it's workability. Make only enough to last from 30 to 40 minutes, then mix another batch. The bricks or blocks should be buttered generously, with the excess being removed as you go along. Build up the corners first, three or four courses high, then fill in the wall from corner to corner. Use a level constantly to be sure that the fireplace wall is plump and the courses even across the top.

LINED UP

The fireplace and the throat of the chimney should be lined with firebrick, set with fire clay. This step is skipped in some cases and, it must be admitted, with seemingly good results, but for a fireplace intended to last indefinitely, the firebrick and fire clay are necessary.

Deep foundations are not required in sections of the country where there is little or no frost, but are a must in areas which have cold weather at certain times of the year. Here again you can buy a ready-mix for the concrete or make your own mixture. The proportions are one part of portland cement, two parts of dry sand and three and one-half parts of gravel or crushed stone. The slab foundation should be built in wooden forms, slightly slanted so that water will run out of the fireplace. After two inches of the mix are poured, half-inch round reinforcing bars are laid in the slab. Two more inches are poured and smoothed off. The concrete should be cured for three or four days — that is, kept damp with wet burlap or by frequent spraying. This curing should not be started until the mixture has been permitted to set for about 45 minutes.

Why is it that food cooked in a fireplace you have made yourself always seems to taste better?

Men Like Familiar Trimmings

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Men are creatures of habit when it comes to home furnishings and their comfort, a good thought to keep in mind when decorating that first home, says Mary Morrison Kennedy, architect and interior designer. She discovered that fact in decorating more than 31,770 rooms for an international hotel chain.

"When a man finds a room setting that pleases him he'll go back to it over and over again. Men aren't too fussy, but they like what they've been used to and know. They don't relish change," she says.

In the several decades she has been sizing up their whims, she has found men like cheerful colors, particularly red, rather than watered - down colors, and dislike little feminine doodads like bureau doilies. They don't like clutter, such as unnecessary furniture and they don't care for sofa beds," she says.

ANSWER

Her answer to clutter has been to cut down the number of pieces of furniture in a room in some instances from eight or 10 to five, mainly replacing dual purpose furniture.

Hotels are catering to men in other ways, she says, such as providing ice cube machines and small coffee makers. Men are impatient when it comes to wanting ice or coffee.

Most hotels are furnished on the basis of individual characteristics of the hotels and regional preferences. But men have developed a tremendous interest in antiques these days, says Mrs. Kennedy, and she is using more antiques reproductions. In Minneapolis where they "don't like conspicuous furniture" she did 150 rooms in French reproductions brought from Paris. The furniture was used also in New Orleans, Washington, Boston and New York "where people have the best taste," she says.

"We've found that one magnificent piece in a room makes a tremendous impression and is a great conversation piece. We'll use a vitrine with figurines or a marble-top commode with a handsome mirror to achieve importance.

DIFFERENCES

Eighteenth Century French furniture may be too pretentious for the average home, she says. French Provincial or English furniture is more livable.

Regional preferences do enter into consideration when she is on a purchasing mission for the hotels of the Sheraton system for whom she heads up a department of design and architecture. Spanish and contemporary furniture goes over big in Puerto Rico, Danish furniture is popular in Caracas; rattan and contemporary with plastic tops and leather bindings is a big hit in Hawaii. The early American treatment has been given to rooms in Chicago, Washington, San Francisco, Houston, Louisville.

Necessary pieces of furniture like television sets look out of kilter with antiques, but Mrs. Kennedy solves problems as they arise. In Philadelphia she had an artist paint the television sets, with little curtains, ala Punch and Judy.

Halt Pests On Camellias With Spray

(EDITOR's NOTE: This is another in a series of articles prepared by members of the Northeast Louisiana Camellia Club on the various phases of growing and showing of camellias in the Monroe area. Various articles discuss the different problems and aspects of camellia propagation.)

Earlier we wrote about the various pests that attack camellias and when to spray to control or eradicate these pests. This article deals with the spray material to use.

MIXTURE

A combination spray mixture of a miscible oil such as Volck or Oil-I-Cide plus malathion will do an excellent job. The oil kills the scales and the malathion takes care of the other pests. Malathion alone will not kill, but one or two minor type scale, but is an excellent material to use by itself in the summertime to control leaf eating insects, caterpillars, etc.

To one gallon of water, stir in five level tablespoons of miscible oil and two teaspoons of malathion. When buying the oil spray, get the kind that is homogenized and contains a sticker and a spreader. It also leaves a beautiful shine on the plants.

There is a new spray material on the market called Dimethoate (Cygon) which is applied to the foliage of the plants and also sprayed on the ground around the base of the plant. The growing plant absorbs this spray and in turn kills all insects which feed on its leaves or branches. It is very effective around badly infested plants and can be used in any season, hot or cold. However, it has several drawbacks. It does not produce immediate results, it has a very disagreeable odor, it cannot be used on certain hollies, and it is very expensive.

PRUNING

Regardless of which spray you use, you can do a lot better job if you will prune your shurbs right after blooming. Cut all limbs that hang down to the ground. Thin out the top, cutting out cross branches and sucker shoots. Always cut back to a leaf node or branch. Do not leave a stub. Do not crowd your plants too close together. Keep spray material agitated while spraying. The sprayers that fit on the end of a garden hose are not very effective; it is difficult to spray the underside of the leaves with this type sprayer.

Remember, the time to spray is from the middle of April until the middle of June in the spring or in early October in the fall. The rule of thumb for oil sprays is above 40 degrees F. in winter and below 90 degrees F. in summer. Caution-never spray plants during a drought or dry spell unless they are watered well before spraying. Also, never use an oil spray within 30 days on plants that have been dusted with sulphur. It will burn the foliage.

Reading Key To Progress

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

My column to you, Mrs. Homemaker, this week is devoted to a special week, National Library Week — April 12-18. National Library Week is an annual observation shared by more than 60 nationwide organizations interested in the educational and recreational aspects of reading and in expansion and improvement of the library resources of the nation.

Among them are the National Book Committee and the American Library Association, sponsors of National Library Week, and the Agricultural Extension Service is one of the many cooperating organizations.

Dr. George Walker is chairman of the Ouachita steering committee and Miss Frances Flanders is vice chairman and your home demonstration agent is serving on a committee for exhibits in West Monroe, with Mrs. Ed Stenson Jr. as chairman.

"READING IS KEY"

The theme of the week is, "Reading is the Key" — and your key is waiting for you right now, at your parish library. Reading can be the key to the subject or subjects that you might have been wondering about. The key is ready to open many doors, doors of opportunity, doors of self improvement, doors of profit and progress.

Reading is the key that should be interesting to your children early in life. When your child says, "Why?" you may say, let's find out if you don't know and give him the key — the reading key to unlock doors of opportunity, new worlds of understanding for the rest of his life.

Take your children to your parish library and help them select books to develop and enrich their gift of curiosity. Good reading habits actually should begin much earlier than school. As soon as a child is able to recognize and appreciate color, he is ready to enjoy books. First, the little cloth picture books, then the one - word picture books and then on to - who knows what — because his parents have laid the ground work. The child has been exposed to the stillness and quietness of reading, of concentration. The ability to concentrate will in itself make school work far easier, more profitable and far more enjoyable.

KEEP POSTED

Through good reading habits, Mrs. Homemaker can keep posted on the latest discoveries and most up to date methods in the fields of management, nutrition health, and child care. Good reading habits will provide, at a minimum cost in time effort and money, much of the recreation and mental stimulation that homemakers and all others need to be happy and well developed individuals.

The following is a list of books recommended by the Louisiana State Library in connection with the National Library Week and are available at your state library in Baton Rouge or through your parish libraries:

"All About Miniature Plants and Gardens Indoors and Out," by Bernice Bulmayer. This is a guide to gardening in a small area. "Heloise's Kitchen Hints," by Heloise Cruse, 1963, time saving, money saving and energy saving helps and hints for making life a pleasure. "The do-it-yourself parent," by Marjory and Richard Frisbie, 1963. Parents of 7 children tell how parents may keep their minds, alert and grow intellectually and spiritually with children by making travel, reading, physical fitness, music and art a part of family life. "Creative Women," by Dorothy Goldberg, 1963, the author is homemaker and artist. Title in short, "Informal Humorous Essays of the Need to Live Creatively." "McCall's Sewing Book, 1963" —clear, explicit information on currently important factors such as sewing tools, new fabrics, knits, stretch fabrics and a section on decoration skills. "Ladies Home Journal of Landscaping and Outdoor Living," by Richard Pratt, 1963.

A THOUGHT

Good reading habits, like good eating habits are equally important to all ages.

THREE DESIGNS

Mrs. C. L. Clark Jr. made three designs. All three were very distinctive because of the materials used or because of the containers. The most unusual container was the Chinese whiskey jug, deep brown in color, placed on a brown wooden base. Two to form the line design. materials were combined to form the line design. Dogwood branch (without blooms) formed the main line. This was filled in with deep pink azaleas with the leaves and tight buds placed in a natural manner which is typical of the Oriental designs. The next unusual container was the antique silver teapot used as a container for the talisman roses which filled in the triangle line established by small branches of quince (new growth). The roses (almost all tight buds) had the appearance of falling or flowing from the teapot. This is the proper line for plant materials in a teapot or pitcher. This would be an ideal design for the coffee table.

For her third design Mrs. Clark used all green foliage. Iris leaves formed (tiered) the vertical line in a small green glass bowl placed on a round base. The basic part of the design contained clusters of kalankoe leaves which are soft grey green in color and are rounded in form. The contrast of these two foliage plants created interest in this design. This would be ideal for the den coffee table or long lasting for the breakfast table.

CLEMATIS BLOOMS

The last design, made by Mrs. Hassell Clark, contained the lovely blooms of the clematis, light orchid in color. This drew a lot of attention from those who saw it. The blooms stayed fresh for such a long time. The design was made in a small amber bottle. The primary line for the design was iris foliage with tight buds. Buds of the clematis were next. Then the open blossoms formed the focal interest. The leaves of the clematis formed the filler throughout.

Mrs. H. L. Herron, one of the club's eldest members (charter) sent a selection of lovely Iris from her garden to be displayed on the show. Also, three unusual tulips, one red edged in white, another deep purple, and yellow edged in red. All were perfect specimens from a flower lover.

Another lovely show by a wonderful garden club — Thanks to each of the members of the Mer Rouge Garden Club.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

In addition to the late summer perennials discussed last week, there are some annuals, some bulbs and some more perennials which can be counted on to provide flowers through our summer droughts, heat and floods here in the South.

Most gardeners do not think about ordering bulbs at any time except in the Fall. Since summer flowering bulbs like crinums and montbretias are usually not offered in autumn, the gardens of these people go on from summer to summer without some of the most spectacular flowers. Even the seed and bulb stores are now offering different kinds of crinums and montbretias along with gladiolas. Get these bulbs and plant them right away. Crinum Cecil Houdyshel is one of the best, but any crinum is a good one.

UNUSUAL TONES

The modern montbretias look like flattened gladiolas on stiff, wiry stems. They come in yellow, orange and unusual tones of maroon and near brown. Do not be afraid to plant the small corms four inches deep. Planted shallow, they suffer in droughts. The foliage of montbretias is like delicate gladiola foliage and a great asset to the summer garden. For blue and orange or blue and yellow combinations in the garden, plant Salvia farinacea near the montbretias.

For three to four-foot spikes of white in the midsummer garden, there is nothing yet to take the place of the big cape hyacinth, Galtonia. In most gardens, this will overlap with the Formosa lilies. A dozen galtonias together in a mass, with the bulbs about eight inches apart make a telling cool effect at a dead time in the summer garden. Let the pants go to seed, and you will have more bulbs.

Nicotiana or "flowering tobacco" is one of the best tender perennials for Southern gardens. Even through the deep freezes we have had for severeal winters, this plant has been able to come back from seedlings and some roots that survived each winter even in North Carolina. Florist usually have nicotiana plants for sale with their annuals, but you can also raise them from seed in exactly the same way you do petunias. The modern hybrid nicotianas come in most unusual shades of red and dusty pink. Be sure to plant some white ones, however, for their night fragrance.

Fine Hostas

In the past few years, perennial dealers have begun to offer us some of the really fine kinds of hostas. These shade loving perennials have beautiful foliage. They are absolutely permanent plants. Each small plant that you set out will go on forever, making a bigger and bigger clump of handsome foliage and blooming every year in late summer.

Extra Help Needed On Porch Work

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

If you've been postponing that screened - in porch project because you can't muster up the courage to tackle it, give up and call for help, says photographer John Hugelmeyer of Riverdale, N.J., who did just that. It's better to begin the project, and get into the act later, if you must, he says, by doing some phase of the work that doesn't require professional talent.

"At first I thought I'd tackle the whole project — flooring, roof and all," says Hugelmeyer of his 15 foot by 25 foot project. "My brother, an architect drew up plans in large scale, but the more I looked at plans, the more I realized it was too big a job for me. So I decided to get someone to built the foundation and roof, and then I'd tackle the screening myself."

CONVINCED

Such considerations as to how to connect rafters to the house, how water must run off, how the roof should be edged, and venting convinced Hugelmeyer that the job required professional knowhow.

But, whammo, as soon as porch posts, ceiling and foundation were installed, Hugelmeyer was ready to tackle the screening in with gusto.

"That part of it was fun when I got around to it. I armed myself with aluminum wire screening, a stapling gun and some pine stock for frames. I put the screening on frames that would slide in between the posts.

Good clear pine is best for framing as knots will weaken the frame, he says. The screening should be started by stapling the middle of each side of the frame, pulling from the center toward those points so there will be no sags or ripples in it.

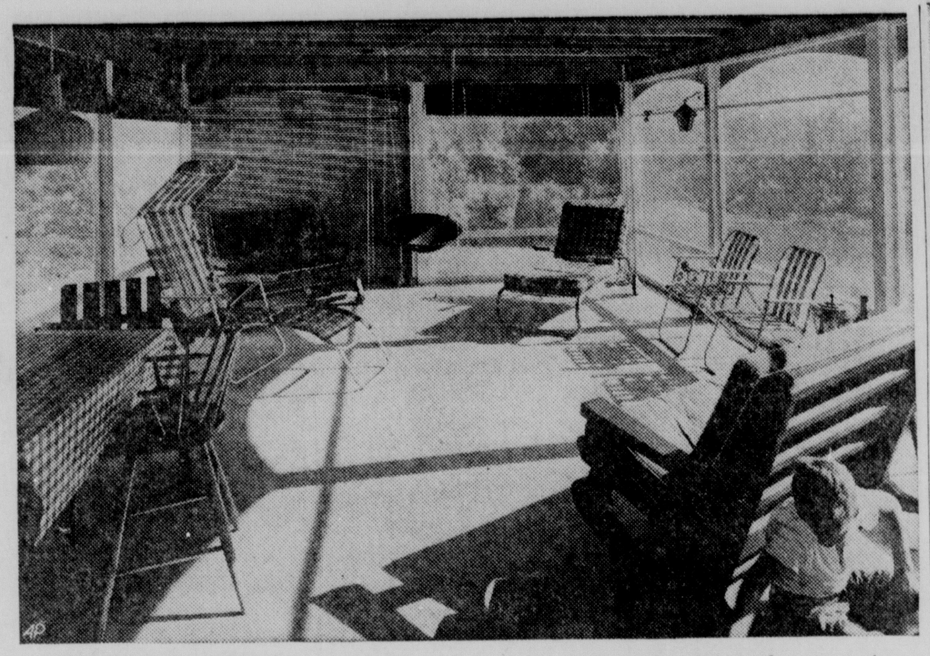
"If screening is properly put up it will be impervious to everything. Ours has withstood the barrage of chipmunks, cats, other animals and two lively youngsters." he says.

Many people make glass frames for winter use of a porch, Hugelmeyer points out, and this is a great idea. But after considering that plan, he decided against it because in his case, the concrete floor might necessitate expensive heating arrangements.

ALMOST NECESSITY

Though Hugelmeyer's original plan was to have an open covered porch, he went on from there to the screened-in version because "it is almost a necessity in any buggy area to use screens, if you'd get the maximum enjoyment out of an outdoor area, particularly at night," he says.

Anyone who has an open porch that merely needs screening could have an enclosed one by expending the little time and effort required in building frames and applying screening.



SCREENED-IN PORCH—John Hugelmeyer of Riverdale, N.J., had a porch built on his home. Then he finished up the project by doing the screening-in.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Depending on your inclination, your skill and the amount of money you want to spend, you can make an outdoor fireplace as simple or as elaborate as you wish. It can be nothing more than a few concrete blocks set on the ground with a grate across them or a fancy masonry structure enclosing a ready-made metal unit with various cooking controls.

Will your fireplace need a chimney? If you intend to burn only charcoal, a chimney is not essential. If you will be using wood or coal, a chimney must be higher than any adjoining structure or nearby shrubbery so that the smoke can be carried away and there will be no downdraft.

BRICKS OR BLOCKS

Bricks or concrete blocks can be used, held together with mortar if the fireplace is to be anything other than a temporary cooking setup. A ready-mixed mortar requires only the addition of water. Or you can make your own with one part portland cement, one quarter-lime and three parts of fine sand. Add enough water to give the mixture the consistency of soft mud, so that it spreads easily yet does not run. The mortar soon loses it's workability. Make only enough to last from 30 to 40 minutes, then mix another batch. The bricks or blocks should be buttered generously, with the excess being removed as you go along. Build up the corners first, three or four courses high, then fill in the wall from corner to corner. Use a level constantly to be sure that the fireplace wall is plump and the courses even across the top.

LINED UP

The fireplace and the throat of the chimney should be lined with firebrick, set with fire clay. This step is skipped in some cases and, it must be admitted, with seemingly good results, but for a fireplace intended to last indefinitely, the firebrick and fire clay are necessary.

Deep foundations are not required in sections of the country where there is little or no frost, but are a must in areas which have cold weather at certain times of the year. Here again you can buy a ready-mix for the concrete or make your own mixture. The proportions are one part of portland cement, two parts of dry sand and three and one-half parts of gravel or crushed stone. The slab foundation should be built in wooden forms, slightly slanted so that water will run out of the fireplace. After two inches of the mix are poured, half-inch round reinforcing bars are laid in the slab. Two more inches are poured and smoothed off. The concrete should be cured for three or four days — that is, kept damp with wet burlap or by frequent spraying. This curing should not be started until the mixture has been permitted to set for about 45 minutes.

Why is it that food cooked in a fireplace you have made yourself always seems to taste better?

Men Like Familiar Trimmings

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Men are creatures of habit when it comes to home furnishings and their comfort, a good thought to keep in mind when decorating that first home, says Mary Morrison Kennedy, architect and interior designer. She discovered that fact in decorating more than 31,770 rooms for an international hotel chain.

"When a man finds a room setting that pleases him he'll go back to it over and over again. Men aren't too fussy, but they like what they've been used to and know. They don't relish change," she says.

In the several decades she has been sizing up their whims, she has found men like cheerful colors, particularly red, rather than watered - down colors, and dislike little feminine doodads like bureau doilies. They don't like clutter, such as unnecessary furniture and they don't care for sofa beds," she says.

ANSWER

Her answer to clutter has been to cut down the number of pieces of furniture in a room in some instances from eight or 10 to five, mainly replacing dual purpose furniture.

Hotels are catering to men in other ways, she says, such as providing ice cube machines and small coffee makers. Men are impatient when it comes to wanting ice or coffee.

Most hotels are furnished on the basis of individual characteristics of the hotels and regional preferences. But men have developed a tremendous interest in antiques these days, says Mrs. Kennedy, and she is using more antiques reproductions. In Minneapolis where they "don't like conspicuous furniture" she did 150 rooms in French reproductions brought from Paris. The furniture was used also in New Orleans, Washington, Boston and New York "where people have the best taste," she says.

"We've found that one magnificent piece in a room makes a tremendous impression and is a great conversation piece. We'll use a vitrine with figurines or a marble-top commode with a handsome mirror to achieve importance.

DIFFERENCES

Eighteenth Century French furniture may be too pretentious for the average home, she says. French Provincial or English furniture is more livable.

Regional preferences do enter into consideration when she is on a purchasing mission for the hotels of the Sheraton system for whom she heads up a department of design and architecture. Spanish and contemporary furniture goes over big in Puerto Rico, Danish furniture is popular in Caracas; rattan and contemporary with plastic tops and leather bindings is a big hit in Hawaii. The early American treatment has been given to rooms in Chicago, Washington, San Francisco, Houston, Louisville.

Necessary pieces of furniture like television sets look out of kilter with antiques, but Mrs. Kennedy solves problems as they arise. In Philadelphia she had an artist paint the television sets, with little curtains, ala Punch and Judy.

Halt Pests On Camellias With Spray

(EDITOR's NOTE: This is another in a series of articles prepared by members of the Northeast Louisiana Camellia Club on the various phases of growing and showing of camellias in the Monroe area. Various articles discuss the different problems and aspects of camellia propagation.)

Earlier we wrote about the various pests that attack camellias and when to spray to control or eradicate these pests. This article deals with the spray material to use.

MIXTURE

A combination spray mixture of a miscible oil such as Volck or Oil-I-Cide plus malathion will do an excellent job. The oil kills the scales and the malathion takes care of the other pests. Malathion alone will not kill, but one or two minor type scale, but is an excellent material to use by itself in the summertime to control leaf eating insects, caterpillars, etc.

To one gallon of water, stir in five level tablespoons of miscible oil and two teaspoons of malathion. When buying the oil spray, get the kind that is homogenized and contains a sticker and a spreader. It also leaves a beautiful shine on the plants.

There is a new spray material on the market called Dimethoate (Cygon) which is applied to the foliage of the plants and also sprayed on the ground around the base of the plant. The growing plant absorbs this spray and in turn kills all insects which feed on its leaves or branches. It is very effective around badly infested plants and can be used in any season, hot or cold. However, it has several drawbacks. It does not produce immediate results, it has a very disagreeable odor, it cannot be used on certain hollies, and it is very expensive.

PRUNING

Regardless of which spray you use, you can do a lot better job if you will prune your shurbs right after blooming. Cut all limbs that hang down to the ground. Thin out the top, cutting out cross branches and sucker shoots. Always cut back to a leaf node or branch. Do not leave a stub. Do not crowd your plants too close together. Keep spray material agitated while spraying. The sprayers that fit on the end of a garden hose are not very effective; it is difficult to spray the underside of the leaves with this type sprayer.

Remember, the time to spray is from the middle of April until the middle of June in the spring or in early October in the fall. The rule of thumb for oil sprays is above 40 degrees F. in winter and below 90 degrees F. in summer. Caution-never spray plants during a drought or dry spell unless they are watered well before spraying. Also, never use an oil spray within 30 days on plants that have been dusted with sulphur. It will burn the foliage.

Reading Key To Progress

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

My column to you, Mrs. Homemaker, this week is devoted to a special week, National Library Week — April 12-18. National Library Week is an annual observation shared by more than 60 nationwide organizations interested in the educational and recreational aspects of reading and in expansion and improvement of the library resources of the nation.

Among them are the National Book Committee and the American Library Association, sponsors of National Library Week, and the Agricultural Extension Service is one of the many cooperating organizations.

Dr. George Walker is chairman of the Ouachita steering committee and Miss Frances Flanders is vice chairman and your home demonstration agent is serving on a committee for exhibits in West Monroe, with Mrs. Ed Stenson Jr. as chairman.

"READING IS KEY"

The theme of the week is, "Reading is the Key" — and your key is waiting for you right now, at your parish library. Reading can be the key to the subject or subjects that you might have been wondering about. The key is ready to open many doors, doors of opportunity, doors of self improvement, doors of profit and progress.

Reading is the key that should be interesting to your children early in life. When your child says, "Why?" you may say, let's find out if you don't know and give him the key — the reading key to unlock doors of opportunity, new worlds of understanding for the rest of his life.

Take your children to your parish library and help them select books to develop and enrich their gift of curiosity. Good reading habits actually should begin much earlier than school. As soon as a child is able to recognize and appreciate color, he is ready to enjoy books. First, the little cloth picture books, then the one - word picture books and then on to - who knows what — because his parents have laid the ground work. The child has been exposed to the stillness and quietness of reading, of concentration. The ability to concentrate will in itself make school work far easier, more profitable and far more enjoyable.

KEEP POSTED

Through good reading habits, Mrs. Homemaker can keep posted on the latest discoveries and most up to date methods in the fields of management, nutrition health, and child care. Good reading habits will provide, at a minimum cost in time effort and money, much of the recreation and mental stimulation that homemakers and all others need to be happy and well developed individuals.

The following is a list of books recommended by the Louisiana State Library in connection with the National Library Week and are available at your state library in Baton Rouge or through your parish libraries:

"All About Miniature Plants and Gardens Indoors and Out," by Bernice Bulmayer. This is a guide to gardening in a small area. "Heloise's Kitchen Hints," by Heloise Cruse, 1963, time saving, money saving and energy saving helps and hints for making life a pleasure. "The do-it-yourself parent," by Marjory and Richard Frisbie, 1963. Parents of 7 children tell how parents may keep their minds, alert and grow intellectually and spiritually with children by making travel, reading, physical fitness, music and art a part of family life. "Creative Women," by Dorothy Goldberg, 1963, the author is homemaker and artist. Title in short, "Informal Humorous Essays of the Need to Live Creatively." "McCall's Sewing Book, 1963" —clear, explicit information on currently important factors such as sewing tools, new fabrics, knits, stretch fabrics and a section on decoration skills. "Ladies Home Journal of Landscaping and Outdoor Living," by Richard Pratt, 1963.

A THOUGHT

Good reading habits, like good eating habits are equally important to all ages.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Photographic manufacturers unveiled their newest goodies at the annual American trade show held recently in Chicago. As pace setter for the industry, Eastman Kodak brought out a batch of still and motion picture cameras incorporating several innovations. Here's a round-up of their offerings:

Two new models in the cartridge - loading Instamatic line make their appearance: the motor-driven 800 and the German-made 500. All the Instamatic cameras do away with the usual method of loading and unloading roll film and use drop-in, away-we-go cartridges.

USES SPRING

Model 800 has no film winding knob. It uses a unique spring motor film advance by means of a long pull-tape. When you pull it out of the camera, it winds the motor; release it and it springs back into place in the camera. The motor can advance the film after each shot at the rate of one picture a second if a series is desired. The electric eye camera has an f-2.8 lens and automatic daylight exposure control after the shutter speed is chosen of 1-250, 1-125 or 1-60th. When the built-in flash unit is raised, the shutter speed is automatically set at 1-30th - second and the correct lens aperture is also automatically set for flash shooting as the camera is focused from 3 to 25 feet. The camera has a manual compensating control for plus or minus one stop at any time for unusual dark or light conditions.

The Instamatic 500 camera has a Schneider Xenar f-2.8 lens, electric eye automatic exposure control, a compur shutter with speeds from 1-30 to 1-500 plus "B" for long exposures and rapid-action, single stroke film lever advance. Unlike all the other Instamatic cameras which have built-in, pop-up flash units, the 500 has a contact-shoe for a separate cordless Kodablitz flash unit and a connector socket for flash sources with cord connectors. The Kodablitz unit is cleverly designed so that the plastic cover doubles as the flash shield when the unit is in use.

MOVIE LINE

In the movie line, Kodak offers the greatest focal range of any 8mm motion picture camera available in this country in their new "Electric 8 Zoom Reflex." It ranges from a wide angle of 6.5 mm to a telephoto of 52 mm, a zoom ratio of 8 to 1. At extreme telephoto range, it is recommended that shooting be done on a tripod to avoid wobbly pictures.

The camera features also include an f-1.8 lens with a sensitive cadmium sulfide battery cell located in the lens system so that the electric eye reads only the light coming through the lens. Its reflex finder shows the exact picture area coming through the lens also.

All controls — battery check signal, ASA setting, lens opening, low - light warning — are visible in the viewfinder. There is electric eye automatic exposure with a manual override to permit personal control for special effects. A set of four AA-size batteries will provide electric power for from 10 to 24 rolls of film. The camera has a drop-in cassette system which gives magazine ease with roll-film economy.

Far less expensive are two new "Escort" 8mm movie cameras, both of which feature fast f-1.6 lenses, one of them a zoom lens with a 3 to 1 ratio (9-mm to 27mm).

STARS VIEW

Changing Scene Along Broadway

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP)—Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward are back on Broadway, and several things have changed, including the lady's mind.

"When I first saw him act," she recalls, "I thought he was terrible — and he was. Just a pretty face."

"This really makes me feel guilty," says he. "I never thought you felt these pangs."

Which simply goes to show, after six years of marriage, how a woman can surprise her husband.

UNDERSTUDY

Then she was a mere understudy in "Picnic," he the leading man in torn T-shirt. Now they are both Hollywood stars, she the owner of an Oscar, he a leading candidate for this year's trophy.

Miss Woodward long since revised her opinion of his talent.

Would Newman like equal time to reverse the mirror of appraisal? The suggestion is chivalrously ignored. He gets on to explanation about this Broadway return. The production is by the Actors Studio and they are devoted graduates.

"We planned this just one year ago," he explains. "You line up movies only about three months ahead, so it doesn't really interfere with that part of our lives."

To which Miss Woodward adds: 'The only thing I had to pass up was having a baby this year." The household includes their two children, plus three of Newman's by previous marriage.

GETS BACK

Newman gets back into the conversation.

"The show will run exactly four months and close—no matter what. That limited run is marvelous for us. Who does a two-year performing contract satisfy? The backers and theater owner maybe.

"But after 8 months, or 6 months, or 4 months the player has exhausted a role. I think it is absolutely awful for an actor to create only one role in two years.

"After we're finished here, we have no plans for getting to work in something else. If the right play came along, we could be back here in a year. But for a while, I want to get off in the country and just relax."

"We're going to Europe," says Joanne.

The buoyant twosome's box-office magnetism is attested by a quarter-million - dollar advance ticket sale—impressive in a playhouse that seats only 600 spectators. They can't resist, however, a bit of tongue-in-cheek dreaming.

"We thought up a terrific advertising campaign," asserts Newman. "A poster reading 'Together again'—You weren't fond of them in 'The Long, Hot Summer,' and you didn't care for them in 'From the Terrace.' You thought they were quite awful in 'A New Kind of Love.' Be driven to new heights of hatred in 'Baby Want a Kiss.'"

Such jesting conceals sincere enthusiasm for the comedy that James Costigan first showed them two years ago. The playwright is the third performer in the show, which concerns two film stars visiting a writer-recluse friend.

"It's the first play we've read that functioned for the two of us," declares Newman. "The impetus was from an incident that actually happened. It's a play of total contradiction.

"Costigan of course has cleverly abused our long friendship and written the best part for himself."

"He's monsterized me and him," adds Miss Woodward, "which is essentially what we are, except we conceal it most of the time."

Ustinov Role Is Varied In Show World

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Peter Ustinov is a man whose bulk is measured both physically and professionally, the total representing a considerable contribution to show business and literature.

The rotund Ustinov, wearing a beard which gives him the appearance of a stereotyped anarchist, is in Hollywood to play in the desert king in "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home!"

It's been three years since Ustinov was in Hollywood. But the absence doesn't seem to have dulled his talents.

The man gives an impression of doing several jobs at the same time, all of them disconnected from one another. It's as if he has several minds each working on a different project.

DIFFERENT WORLD

"Occasionally I go back to the theater and that's a different world," said Peter, explaining his absence and diversity. "What happens to me is that all of a sudden three things will break for me at once, a book, a play and a movie. And actually, I'd been working on all three for some time."

Peter's professional accomplishments include two novels, a book of short stories, a book of caricatures, 16 plays, seven movie scripts, plus various acting and directing assignments.

"Everybody is amazed that I do so much," said Ustinov.

As for his acting work, Ustinov said it is "intrinsically easier", than writing because "it's easier to give a bad performance than to write a bad play, to put it at its lowest level."

OPPOSES ATTITUDE

Ustinov resents the attitude that actors should confine their activities to making faces and leave other artistic aspects to writers, directors and producers.

"I think there is a narrow prejudice or things become pigeonholed," he said. "There's a kind of trade union mind behind it suggesting that if you do many jobs, you're taking one away from somebody."

Ustinov suggested that any of his jobs is available to the man who is more capable.

"The main thing is to do it well," he said.

MORE RODGERS SONGS

NEW YORK (AP) — A summer tour revival of "I Married an Angel" is to be brightened with three extra Richard Rodgers songs.

The production, with a book updated from 1938 to 1964, will star Eva Gabor.

Rodgers said the three melodies were originally written for film projects but had been unused.

CURTAIN CALL

Little Theatre members wishing to attend tonight's performance of "Breath of Spring" may call the box office after 2 p.m. today to make reservations. Then comes a three day interruption after which the run resumes Thursday through Sunday nights. The box office will be closed Monday and Tuesday, reopening 2-8 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday.

Technical director Lonny Fraze has again executed a splendid set for this farcical tale of middle-aged delinquency, a set that recaptures the atmosphere of genteel British lodgings with old-fashioned furniture and souvenirs of Indian colonial days. Jacques Biegenwald, Judy Evans and Pat Fraze helped apply the finishing touches.

Not surfeited with stints in "Once Upon A Mattress," Dan Palser, Johnny McCoy and Arthur Griffith stepped into crew positions, joined by Bill Haddad who handled props. Paul Wank added stage manager to his varied chores for "Breath Of Spring."

TRYOUTS SCENE

Strauss Playhouse will be the scene of tryouts for our fifth and final show, "Take Her, She's Mine," tomorrow and Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m. Art Carney starred in the Broadway comedy hit as the father who is alternately bewildered and outraged by his daughter's capers on and off the campus when he sends her away to college, while her mother takes a more sympathetic attitude.

The two parents are the principal adult parts, but two or three mature men are also needed. Five girls in their late teens or early twenties and seven young men of similar age complete the big cast. It would be helpful if two of the girls could play the guitar and sing folksongs, as this figures in a major scene.

The co-ed daughter, Mollie, is a major role, but most of the others range from medium length to comparatively short, offering a good chance to enjoy the fun and excitement of being in a show without assuming too burdensome a responsibility. You high school and college students who have toyed with the notion of taking a fling at Little Theatre better come to try-outs for this one. Executive director Richard Clark needs to cast a dozen of you and it ought to be a ball.

We hear that former director Ivan Uttal has landed the job in Italy this summer where one of his assignments will be to direct an Ingmar Bergman play shown heretofore only in Sweden. Ivan has been awaiting for his big break and perhaps this is it.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Raphael of Bastrop have given Little Theatre a fur coat and two boxes of draperies, both welcome items. Velma Kettenring found us several pairs of outmoded shoes which come in handy for plays like "Breath Of Spring."

The latest Green Room tile, honoring Marie Louise and George M. Snellings Jr. as co-directors of "Three-Cornered Moon," brings to 90 the number of major productions represented in this fashion and to 230 the total number of tiles. The north wall has space for only 70 more which the next dozen plays will probably exhaust, so actors in earlier plays would do well to get their orders in first.

We are curious about the 1946-47 season, the only one to have not a single tile as yet, despite a glittering array of shows and a roster of outstanding Little Theatre actors of that time. That season we did "Claudia," "The Skin Of Our Teeth," "The Male Animal," "Uncle Harry" and "You Can't Take It with You." The casts are like a Who's Who of Monroe personalities and we hope a few of them will rescue the season from its undeserved absence from the Green Room.

A new theatre group, the Port Players, was formed some months ago in Shreveport and has already given three productions in a converted building on Jordan Street near Line Avenue. They are contemplating "Once Upon A Mattress," as their summer musical.

STARS VIEW

Changing Scene Along Broadway

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP)—Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward are back on Broadway, and several things have changed, including the lady's mind.

"When I first saw him act," she recalls, "I thought he was terrible — and he was. Just a pretty face."

"This really makes me feel guilty," says he. "I never thought you felt these pangs."

Which simply goes to show, after six years of marriage, how a woman can surprise her husband.

UNDERSTUDY

Then she was a mere understudy in "Picnic," he the leading man in torn T-shirt. Now they are both Hollywood stars, she the owner of an Oscar, he a leading candidate for this year's trophy.

Miss Woodward long since revised her opinion of his talent.

Would Newman like equal time to reverse the mirror of appraisal? The suggestion is chivalrously ignored. He gets on to explanation about this Broadway return. The production is by the Actors Studio and they are devoted graduates.

"We planned this just one year ago," he explains. "You line up movies only about three months ahead, so it doesn't really interfere with that part of our lives."

To which Miss Woodward adds: 'The only thing I had to pass up was having a baby this year." The household includes their two children, plus three of Newman's by previous marriage.

GETS BACK

Newman gets back into the conversation.

"The show will run exactly four months and close—no matter what. That limited run is marvelous for us. Who does a two-year performing contract satisfy? The backers and theater owner maybe.

"But after 8 months, or 6 months, or 4 months the player has exhausted a role. I think it is absolutely awful for an actor to create only one role in two years.

"After we're finished here, we have no plans for getting to work in something else. If the right play came along, we could be back here in a year. But for a while, I want to get off in the country and just relax."

"We're going to Europe," says Joanne.

The buoyant twosome's box-office magnetism is attested by a quarter-million - dollar advance ticket sale—impressive in a playhouse that seats only 600 spectators. They can't resist, however, a bit of tongue-in-cheek dreaming.

"We thought up a terrific advertising campaign," asserts Newman. "A poster reading 'Together again'—You weren't fond of them in 'The Long, Hot Summer,' and you didn't care for them in 'From the Terrace.' You thought they were quite awful in 'A New Kind of Love.' Be driven to new heights of hatred in 'Baby Want a Kiss.'"

Such jesting conceals sincere enthusiasm for the comedy that James Costigan first showed them two years ago. The playwright is the third performer in the show, which concerns two film stars visiting a writer-recluse friend.

"It's the first play we've read that functioned for the two of us," declares Newman. "The impetus was from an incident that actually happened. It's a play of total contradiction.

"Costigan of course has cleverly abused our long friendship and written the best part for himself."

"He's monsterized me and him," adds Miss Woodward, "which is essentially what we are, except we conceal it most of the time."

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Photographic manufacturers unveiled their newest goodies at the annual American trade show held recently in Chicago. As pace setter for the industry, Eastman Kodak brought out a batch of still and motion picture cameras incorporating several innovations. Here's a round-up of their offerings:

Two new models in the cartridge - loading Instamatic line make their appearance: the motor-driven 800 and the German-made 500. All the Instamatic cameras do away with the usual method of loading and unloading roll film and use drop-in, away-we-go cartridges.

USES SPRING

Model 800 has no film winding knob. It uses a unique spring motor film advance by means of a long pull-tape. When you pull it out of the camera, it winds the motor; release it and it springs back into place in the camera. The motor can advance the film after each shot at the rate of one picture a second if a series is desired. The electric eye camera has an f-2.8 lens and automatic daylight exposure control after the shutter speed is chosen of 1-250, 1-125 or 1-60th. When the built-in flash unit is raised, the shutter speed is automatically set at 1-30th - second and the correct lens aperture is also automatically set for flash shooting as the camera is focused from 3 to 25 feet. The camera has a manual compensating control for plus or minus one stop at any time for unusual dark or light conditions.

The Instamatic 500 camera has a Schneider Xenar f-2.8 lens, electric eye automatic exposure control, a compur shutter with speeds from 1-30 to 1-500 plus "B" for long exposures and rapid-action, single stroke film lever advance. Unlike all the other Instamatic cameras which have built-in, pop-up flash units, the 500 has a contact-shoe for a separate cordless Kodablitz flash unit and a connector socket for flash sources with cord connectors. The Kodablitz unit is cleverly designed so that the plastic cover doubles as the flash shield when the unit is in use.

MOVIE LINE

In the movie line, Kodak offers the greatest focal range of any 8mm motion picture camera available in this country in their new "Electric 8 Zoom Reflex." It ranges from a wide angle of 6.5 mm to a telephoto of 52 mm, a zoom ratio of 8 to 1. At extreme telephoto range, it is recommended that shooting be done on a tripod to avoid wobbly pictures.

The camera features also include an f-1.8 lens with a sensitive cadmium sulfide battery cell located in the lens system so that the electric eye reads only the light coming through the lens. Its reflex finder shows the exact picture area coming through the lens also.

All controls — battery check signal, ASA setting, lens opening, low - light warning — are visible in the viewfinder. There is electric eye automatic exposure with a manual override to permit personal control for special effects. A set of four AA-size batteries will provide electric power for from 10 to 24 rolls of of film. The camera has a drop-in cassette system which gives magazine ease with roll-film economy.

Far less expensive are two new "Escort" 8mm movie cameras, both of which feature fast f-1.6 lenses, one of them a zoom lens with a 3 to 1 ratio (9-mm to 27mm).

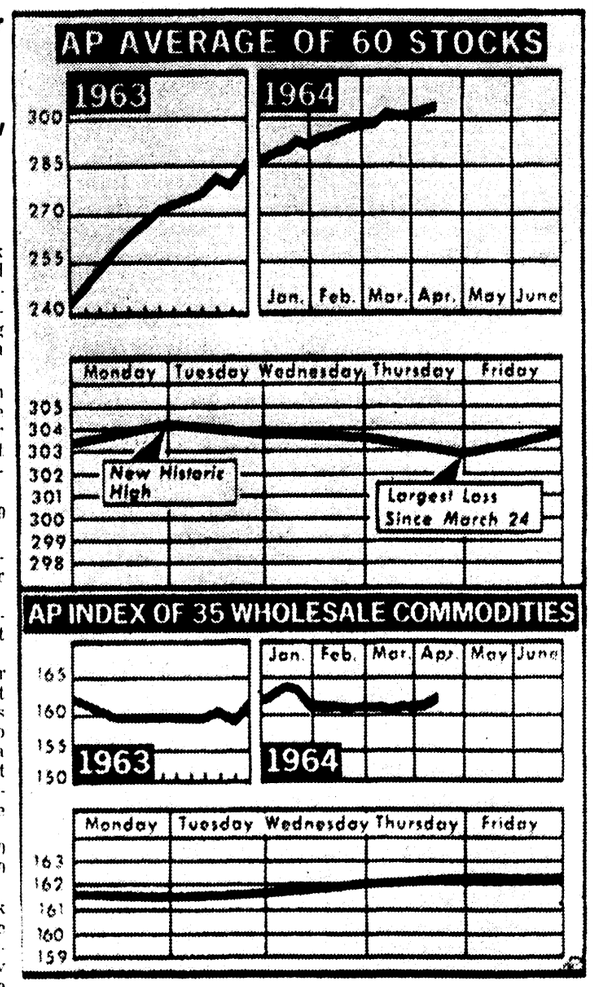
Stocks Steady Despite Rails, Steel Reports



THE ASSOCIATED PRESS average of 60 stocks moved higher for the second straight week, closing Friday at 303.9 from 303.3 a week ago. For the second week in a row the commodity index advanced, closing at 162.1 from 161.6 in the preceding period. Industrials were conspicuous on the upside. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market this week weathered some unsettling news—the indictment of eight steel companies on charges of price fixing and the renewed threat of a railroad strike.

The stock list remained on an even keel. Slight changes in the popular market averages for the week were in conflict, but more stocks advanced than declined.

Of 1,528 issues traded, 729 rose and 620 fell.

Since the market was near its highest level in history at the time the adverse news came, the ability of stocks to digest such news without a wave of selling caused market analysts to comment on the obvious technical strength of the list.

Volume totaled 27,468,360 shares compared with 29,690,790 for the previous week.

Steel production for the week was at a ten-month high. The government reported that consumer credit rose in February by the largest amount if more than four years.

President Johnson's announcement that the rail strike threat had been postponed 15 days provided the basis for a recovery by rail stocks on Friday and a fairly good advance by the over-all market.

The U.S. government bond market rallied smartly last week and closed with its best gain in five months. Corporate bonds fell back, based on The Associated Press average of 60 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Corporate volume on the exchange totaled $48,525,000 compared with $52,607,000 par value the previous week.

Awards Given Employees Of United Gas

More than 60 veteran employees of United Gas from the Monroe area were among the more than 1,200 honored at the company's annual service award programs this week at the general headquarters in Shreveport.

Each employee in attendance had 25 or more years of service with United Gas companies. Fifty who reached their 25th anniversary between July 2, 1963, and July 1, 1964, were presented gold service insignia and watches. Those who marked 30, 35, 40 or 50 years of service during the period received new insignia.

Some 2,000 persons, United Gas employees and members of their families from Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, southern Alabama and northwestern Florida, were present for the occasion. The size of the group made it necessary to hold the event on two days, April 6 and April 9.

N. C. McGowen, chairman of the board of United Gas Corp., who was honored for 50 years of service with the company, was the principal speaker at both dinners. Ed Parkes, president of United Gas Corporation, presided at both events. Parkes has 36 years of service with United Gas.

EIGHT WELLS COMPLETED

Oil, Gas Activity Steadies In Area

Eight wells were completed last week in the Monroe Oil & Gas District and three recompleted as activity steadied after recent gains with the arrival of stable weather conditions.

District Manager Duncan S. Cook's weekly report listed the completions in four parishes — four in Concordia, two in Morehouse, one each in Catahoula and Tensas.

Meanwhile, 20 rigs in nine parishes were actively drilling or testing, located as follows: eight in LaSalle Parish, four in Tensas, two in Concordia and one each in Avoyelles, Caldwell, Catahoula, Franklin, Ouachita and Union.

These recompletions were reported:

The California Company's Pan American Life 1-12, 4933 feet, in section 15-9-10E, the Lake St. John Field, Concordia Parish.

Six wells were plugged and abandoned and there were 60 sites in the district listed as inactive at week's end.

Rail Strike Big Threat To Economy

NEW YORK (AP) — The 38-month upswing in the nation's economy was imperilled this week by sudden renewal of a railroad strike threat.

The threatened walkout was postponed 15 days in a dramatic announcement by President Johnson about 75 minutes before it was to start at 12:01 a.m. Friday.

If it had materialized, disrupting effects swiftly would have halted humming automobile assembly lines, shut down coal mines, crippled some major steel and chemical operations and otherwise braked the economy's brisk pace.

The latest crisis was another chapter in a dispute between unions and railroad management that began in November, 1959, over employe work rules.

It was triggered by a predawn strike Wednesday by 7,200 members of four railroad brotherhoods against the Illinois Central Railroad. White House truce terms called for prompt restoration of service on the Illinois Central.

The world of business and finance was jolted by two other events this week — government charges of a price-fixing conspiracy from 1955 to 1961 against eight leading steel companies, and a clampdown by federal regulators on the New York Stock Exchange.

But there were also some important pluses.

Steel production, continuing a strong climb, reached a rate of 125 million tons a year.

The auto industry roared along at breakneck speed.

The Federal Reserve Board reported a surge in credit buying of consumer goods in February. Consumer credit outstanding jumped $579 million, the biggest gain in four years. Anticipation of tax cut effects on take-home pay, and a consequent raising of purchasing sights, was credited.

The price-fixing indictment by a federal grand jury in New York City was the most far-reaching of the seven antitrust indictments leveled at major segments of steel industry in the last two years.

It alleged that U.S. Steel Corp., Bethlehem Steel Co. and six other large producers joined in secret hotel room meetings to rig charges for "extras" in sale of carbon steel sheets.

Five of the companies issued quick denials, and some promised a vigorous defense against the charges. Edmund F. Martin, vice chairman of second-ranking Bethlehem, said the allegations dealt with "ancient history" and represented government harassment.

Sales of carbon steel sheet ran $3.5 billion last year, accounting for 31 per cent of industry tonnage and 26 per cent of over-all billings of $14 billion. Extras account for about one sixth of the total sales price of sheets, used in auto bodies, household appliances and similar products.

The restrictions affecting the New York Stock Exchange were announced by the Securities and Exchange Commission. They apply to floor trading, direct buying and selling of stocks by an exchange member for his own benefit.

Rigid curbs were proposed by the SEC on floor trading effective July 1. They were acceded to by the stock exchange after exchange officials at first bridled over the severity of the SEC plan, which was relaxed slightly.

The SEC has contended that floor traders benefited from privileges denied the public generally, and their practices represented a vestige of the "private club" days of the stock exchange.

The SEC's stern stand apparently foreshadowed imposition of tightened restrictions on other phases of exchange activity in an outgrowth of the recent investigation of security market auspices.

Newly issued international trade figures tended to support President Johnson's hint of possible stabilization — temporarily — of the U.S. international payments imbalance. Outgo exceeded income by $3.3 billion last year.

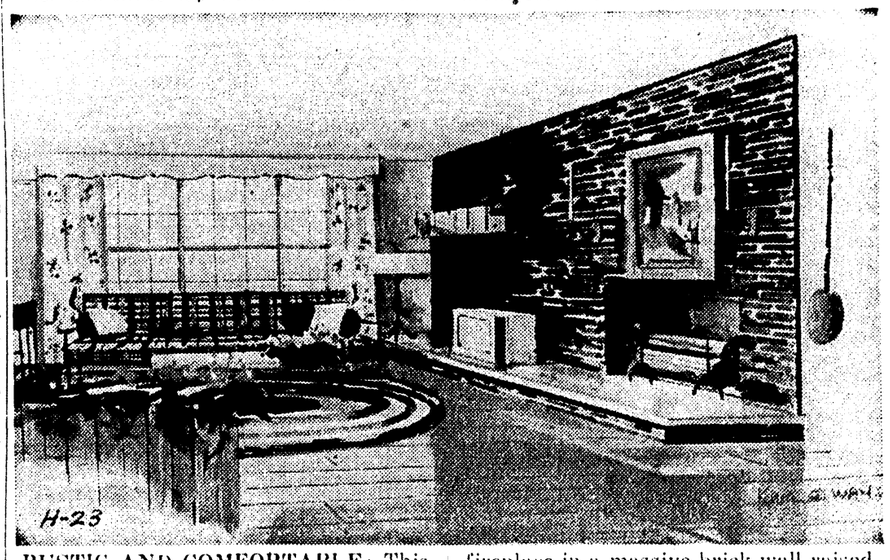
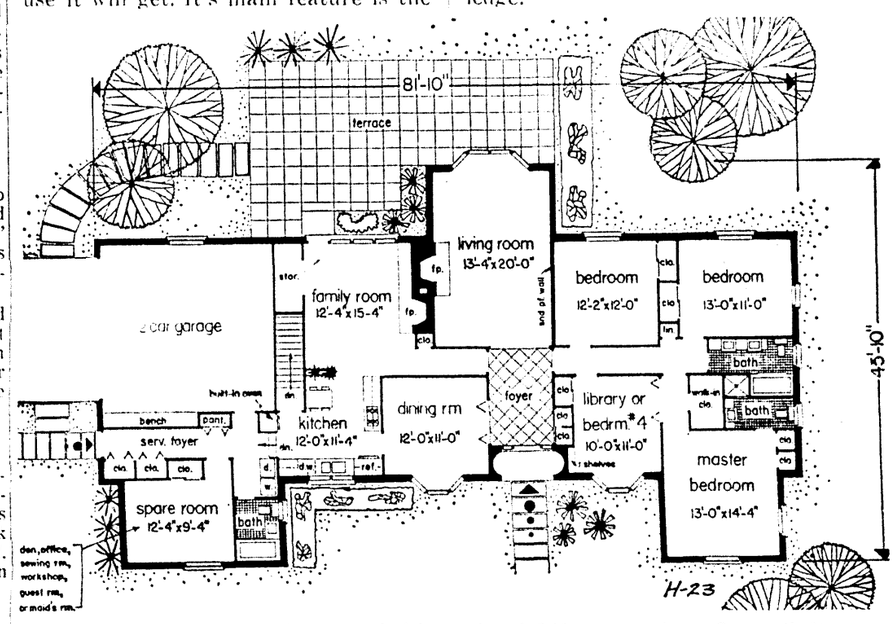
HOUSE OF THE WEEK

This Ranch Home Offers Aura Of Luxurous Living

TRUE COLONIAL: Large double-hung windows with full height shutters, gables and three bay windows, and an enticing recessed front entry highlights this three or four bedroom ranch. The architect is Sammuel Paul.



RUSTIC AND COMFORTABLE: This family room was built for the constant use it will get. It's main feature is the fireplace in a massive brick wall raised off the floor over a continous stone ledge.



FLOOR PLAN: The basic area of this house is 1,980 square feet and the adjoining service wing includes an additional 340 square feet. Over-all dimensions are 81'10" wide by 45'10" deep.

From its handsomely balanced colonial exterior to its formally zoned floor plan, this ranch home has an aura of luxury — but has been scaled down to a size and price that should guarantee its popularity.

For example, enclosed in one of its charming projecting gables (the one to the left) is a service wing composed of a two - car garage, a laundry alcove, a full bath, a spare room, a pantry closet and two other closets for rain gear and what have you, plus a side service entrance, basement entrance and inside garage door.

The result is a self contained housekeeping center located conveniently off the kitchen but separate from the areas of most family activity.

The living room is located in the rear and the kitchen in the front — and up-to-date switch which emphasizes informal over formal living, reflecting a key characteristic of the present day.

Architect Samuel Paul, a man who cherishes the best from the past but is alert to modern living trends, designed the house as H-23 in the House of the Week series.

It's basic area is 1,980 square feet and the adjoining service wing includes an additional 340 square feet. Over-all dimensions are 81' 10" wide by 45' 10" deep.

The exterior is 100 per cent brick and features large double-hung windows with full height shutters, three attractive bay windows, and an enticing front entrance which has niches on each side of the recessed entry which may be used for sculpture, benches, fountains or the like.

Inside the entry is a spacious reception foyer which permits direct access to all three zones of the house — the formal living and dining rooms, the informal family and service areas, and the nicely isolated sleeping wing.

The foyer terminates in the ultra - formal living room, which features a large rear bay and a colonial style fireplace. Sharing the same chimney wall on the opposite side is the more rustic family room fireplace. This one is part of a massive brick wall raised off the floor over a continuous stone ledge.

The family room is built for the constant use it will get. One of its best assets is a large storage closet where toys, games, card tables and all the rest of the clutter can be put away handily.

Hub of the service and family areas is the well proportioned kitchen which features a double-hung window over a double bowl sink overlooking the front yard, a recessed built-in wall oven, an under the counter dishwasher, and eating space.

It includes up to four bedrooms and two full baths. But if that many bedrooms aren't needed the fourth can become a cozy and attractive library with a lovely bay window and built-in-shelving. An optional pair of folding doors would connect it with a foyer in the master bedroom, which occupies the front gable.

In addition there is a spare room in the service wing which has an adjacent bath and complete privacy — making it ideal as a maid's room, guest room, apartment for an in-law, or even a fifth family bedroom.

A full study of this architect-designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan H-23.

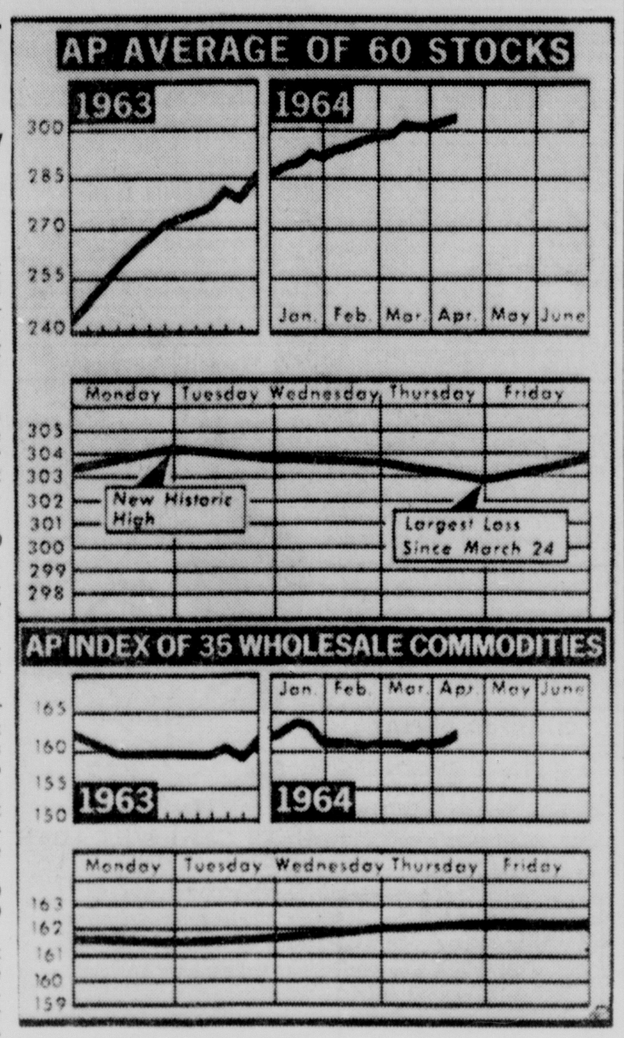
Stocks Steady Despite Rails, Steel Reports



THE ASSOCIATED PRESS average of 60 stocks moved higher for the second straight week, closing Friday at 303.9 from 303.3 a week ago. For the second week in a row the commodity index advanced, closing at 162.1 from 161.6 in the preceding period. Industrials were conspicuous on the upside. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market this week weathered some unsettling news—the indictment of eight steel companies on charges of price fixing and the renewed threat of a railroad strike.

The stock list remained on an even keel. Slight changes in the popular market averages for the week were in conflict, but more stocks advanced than declined.

Of 1,528 issues traded, 729 rose and 620 fell.

Since the market was near its highest level in history at the time the adverse news came, the ability of stocks to digest such news without a wave of selling caused market analysts to comment on the obvious technical strength of the list.

Volume totaled 27,468,360 shares compared with 29,690,790 for the previous week.

Steel production for the week was at a ten-month high. The government reported that consumer credit rose in February by the largest amount if more than four years.

President Johnson's announcement that the rail strike threat had been postponed 15 days provided the basis for a recovery by rail stocks on Friday and a fairly good advance by the over-all market.

The U.S. government bond market rallied smartly last week and closed with its best gain in five months. Corporate bonds fell back, based on The Associated Press average of 60 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Corporate volume on the exchange totaled $48,525,000 compared with $52,607,000 par value the previous week.

Awards Given Employees Of United Gas

More than 60 veteran employees of United Gas from the Monroe area were among the more than 1,200 honored at the company's annual service award programs this week at the general headquarters in Shreveport.

Each employee in attendance had 25 or more years of service with United Gas companies. Fifty who reached their 25th anniversary between July 2, 1963, and July 1, 1964, were presented gold service insignia and watches. Those who marked 30, 35, 40 or 50 years of service during the period received new insignia.

Some 2,000 persons, United Gas employees and members of their families from Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, southern Alabama and northwestern Florida, were present for the occasion. The size of the group made it necessary to hold the event on two days, April 6 and April 9.

N. C. McGowen, chairman of the board of United Gas Corp., who was honored for 50 years of service with the company, was the principal speaker at both dinners. Ed Parkes, president of United Gas Corporation, presided at both events. Parkes has 36 years of service with United Gas.

Oil, Gas Activity Steadies In Area

Eight wells were completed last week in the Monroe Oil & Gas District and three recompleted as activity steadied after recent gains with the arrival of stable weather conditions.

District Manager Duncan S. Cook's weekly report listed the completions in four parishes — four in Concordia, two in Morehouse, one each in Catahoula and Tensas.

Meanwhile, 20 rigs in nine parishes were actively drilling or testing, located as follows: eight in LaSalle Parish, four in Tensas, two in Concordia and one each in Avoyelles, Caldwell, Catahoula, Franklin, Ouachita and Union.

These recompletions were reported:

The California Company's Pan American Life 1-12, 4933 feet, in section 15-9-10E, the Lake St. John Field, Concordia Parish.

Rail Strike Big Threat To Economy

NEW YORK (AP) — The 38-month upswing in the nation's economy was imperilled this week by sudden renewal of a railroad strike threat.

The threatened walkout was postponed 15 days in a dramatic announcement by President Johnson about 75 minutes before it was to start at 12:01 a.m. Friday.

If it had materialized, disrupting effects swiftly would have halted humming automobile assembly lines, shut down coal mines, crippled some major steel and chemical operations and otherwise braked the economy's brisk pace.

The latest crisis was another chapter in a dispute between unions and railroad management that began in November, 1959, over employe work rules.

It was triggered by a predawn strike Wednesday by 7,200 members of four railroad brotherhoods against the Illinois Central Railroad. White House truce terms called for prompt restoration of service on the Illinois Central.

The world of business and finance was jolted by two other events this week — government charges of a price-fixing conspiracy from 1955 to 1961 against eight leading steel companies, and a clampdown by federal regulators on the New York Stock Exchange.

But there were also some important pluses.

Steel production, continuing a strong climb, reached a rate of 125 million tons a year.

The auto industry roared along at breakneck speed.

The Federal Reserve Board reported a surge in credit buying of consumer goods in February. Consumer credit outstanding jumped $579 million, the biggest gain in four years. Anticipation of tax cut effects on take-home pay, and a consequent raising of purchasing sights, was credited.

The price-fixing indictment by a federal grand jury in New York City was the most far-reaching of the seven antitrust indictments leveled at major segments of steel industry in the last two years.

It alleged that U.S. Steel Corp., Bethlehem Steel Co. and six other large producers joined in secret hotel room meetings to rig charges for "extras" in sale of carbon steel sheets.

Five of the companies issued quick denials, and some promised a vigorous defense against the charges. Edmund F. Martin, vice chairman of second-ranking Bethlehem, said the allegations dealt with "ancient history" and represented government harassment.

Sales of carbon steel sheet ran $3.5 billion last year, accounting for 31 per cent of industry tonnage and 26 per cent of over-all billings of $14 billion. Extras account for about one sixth of the total sales price of sheets, used in auto bodies, household appliances and similar products.

The restrictions affecting the New York Stock Exchange were announced by the Securities and Exchange Commission. They apply to floor trading, direct buying and selling of stocks by an exchange member for his own benefit.

Rigid curbs were proposed by the SEC on floor trading effective July 1. They were acceded to by the stock exchange after exchange officials at first bridled over the severity of the SEC plan, which was relaxed slightly.

The SEC has contended that floor traders benefited from privileges denied the public generally, and their practices represented a vestige of the "private club" days of the stock exchange.

The SEC's stern stand apparently foreshadowed imposition of tightened restrictions on other phases of exchange activity in an outgrowth of the recent investigation of security market auspices.

Newly issued international trade figures tended to support President Johnson's hint of possible stabilization — temporarily — of the U.S. international payments imbalance. Outgo exceeded income by $3.3 billion last year.

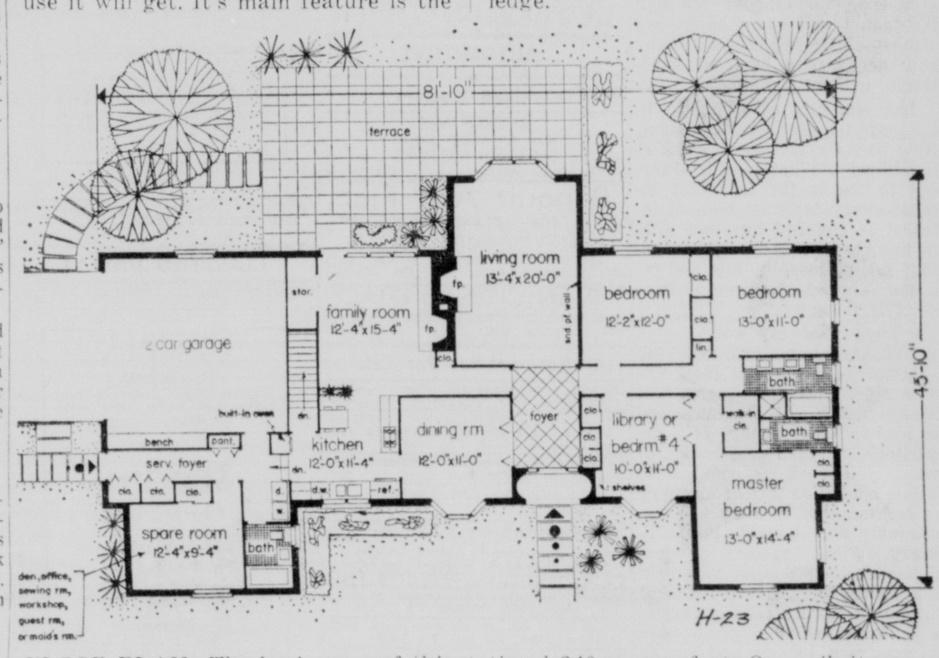
HOUSE OF THE WEEK

This Ranch Home Offers Aura Of Luxurous Living

TRUE COLONIAL: Large double-hung windows with full height shutters, gables and three bay windows, and an enticing recessed front entry highlights this three or four bedroom ranch. The architect is Sammuel Paul.

RUSTIC AND COMFORTABLE: This family room was built for the constant use it will get. It's main feature is the fireplace in a massive brick wall raised off the floor over a continous stone ledge.



FLOOR PLAN: The basic area of this house is 1,980 square feet and the adjoining service wing includes an additional 340 square feet. Over-all dimensions are 81'10" wide by 45'10" deep.

From its handsomely balanced colonial exterior to its formally zoned floor plan, this ranch home has an aura of luxury — but has been scaled down to a size and price that should guarantee its popularity.

For example, enclosed in one of its charming projecting gables (the one to the left) is a service wing composed of a two - car garage, a laundry alcove, a full bath, a spare room, a pantry closet and two other closets for rain gear and what have you, plus a side service entrance, basement entrance and inside garage door.

The result is a self contained housekeeping center located conveniently off the kitchen but separate from the areas of most family activity.

The living room is located in the rear and the kitchen in the front — and up-to-date switch which emphasizes informal over formal living, reflecting a key characteristic of the present day.

Architect Samuel Paul, a man who cherishes the best from the past but is alert to modern living trends, designed the house as H-23 in the House of the Week series.

It's basic area is 1,980 square feet and the adjoining service wing includes an additional 340 square feet. Over-all dimensions are 81' 10" wide by 45' 10" deep.

The exterior is 100 per cent brick and features large double-hung windows with full height shutters, three attractive bay windows, and an enticing front entrance which has niches on each side of the recessed entry which may be used for sculpture, benches, fountains or the like.

Inside the entry is a spacious reception foyer which permits direct access to all three zones of the house — the formal living and dining rooms, the informal family and service areas, and the nicely isolated sleeping wing.

The foyer terminates in the ultra - formal living room, which features a large rear bay and a colonial style fireplace. Sharing the same chimney wall on the opposite side is the more rustic family room fireplace. This one is part of a massive brick wall raised off the floor over a continuous stone ledge.

The family room is built for the constant use it will get. One of its best assets is a large storage closet where toys, games, card tables and all the rest of the clutter can be put away handily.

Hub of the service and family areas is the well proportioned kitchen which features a double-hung window over a double bowl sink overlooking the front yard, a recessed built-in wall oven, an under the counter dishwasher, and eating space.

It includes up to four bedrooms and two full baths. But if that many bedrooms aren't needed the fourth can become a cozy and attractive library with a lovely bay window and built-in-shelving. An optional pair of folding doors would connect it with a foyer in the master bedroom, which occupies the front gable.

In addition there is a spare room in the service wing which has an adjacent bath and complete privacy — making it ideal as a maid's room, guest room, apartment for an in-law, or even a fifth family bedroom.

A full study of this architect-designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan H-23.

Why I Like My Library

(EDITOR'S NOTE: National Library Week observance begins in Ouachita Parish today and a series of letters, penned by prominent citizens on what the library means to them, will be run in the News-Star—World during the week.)

By MACK E. BARHAM
Fourth District Judge

Although I am a recent patron of the Ouachita Parish Public Library, no one could have received more benefit or pleasure from the services offered by the library. You have been most kind to offer me your services and facilities and I want to take this means of expressing to you my sincere apprecation.

Reading is the key to knowledge, whether it be through public education, formal education, or self education. Too many Americans practice a philosophy that education ends at a point; that education belongs to the early life — and is separated and compartmentalized from adult life. Education and learning are only beginning when formal education is completed. I learn more, I seek knowledge for better reasons and I have more fun in seeking knowledge now than in all the years of formal education. Libraries and books are the greatest source for this continuing education. The wonderful things that are in store for users of your library have no ending. It is shameful to waste the knowledge and pleasure which awaits the mind that would inquire.

The beauty of the new books will surprise those who have not been to a public library recently. Books are no longer dull pages of small print. Books are made of fine quality paper, bound in attractive bindings, printed in excellent and readable type. Most books are well illustrated and some books are almost entirely pictorial. Many new books may be used effectively without reading.

The contents of a public library are not static and constant. New books arrive each week at the library. What is still amazing to me is the fact that almost every topic or idea of interest is covered by some title in the library. Cooking, gardening, art, philosophy, law and religion — whatever one desires — it is there.

I know that my own use of the library has not exhausted the sources of material that are available. I think, however, that many people will be surprised to find that the library is a depository for than just books. If what you seek is related to ideas, education, art or any type of communication, then you will probably find it at the public library. Film, music, musical recordings, and even paintings are available for you through the public library. The library is a joy to use, whether you browse on your own, looking and finding what is of interest to you or avail yourself of the services of the librarians who are on duty and who can assist you in finding anything you need. If the parish library lacks the book or service you need, they will be glad to secure it from the State library or from any source that is available to them. I am constantly impressed by the excellent quality and variety of services rendered by the public library.

I could not complete this letter without expressing to all who work in the libraries (at the desk, in the bookshelves, the binding department, etc.) my appreciation and I believe the appreciation of all the people in this community, for their dedicated work and service to make available to all the wonderful keys to knowledge and pleasure which are contained in the public library. May I extend to you every good wish and my appreciation during this week of observance.

POTATO LIQUOR

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Norway wants to expand sales of its sea-aged potato liquor, linnje-aquavit, on the U.S. market. A strong drink, it gets its name from being shipped across the line of the equator and back to Norway before being sold. The rolling sea voyage is supposed to improve the flavor.

Why I Like My Library

(EDITOR'S NOTE: National Library Week observance begins in Ouachita Parish today and a series of letters, penned by prominent citizens on what the library means to them, will be run in the News-Star—World during the week.)

By MACK E. BARHAM
Fourth District Judge

Although I am a recent patron of the Ouachita Parish Public Library, no one could have received more benefit or pleasure from the services offered by the library. You have been most kind to offer me your services and facilities and I want to take this means of expressing to you my sincere appreciation.

Reading is the key to knowledge, whether it be through public education, formal education, or self education. Too many Americans practice a philosophy that education ends at a point; that education belongs to the early life — and is separated and compartmentalized from adult life. Education and learning are only beginning when formal education is completed. I learn more, I seek knowledge for better reasons and I have more fun in seeking knowledge now than in all the years of formal education. Libraries and books are the greatest source for this continuing education. The wonderful things that are in store for users of your library have no ending. It is shameful to waste the knowledge and pleasure which awaits the mind that would inquire.

The beauty of the new books will surprise those who have not been to a public library recently. Books are no longer dull pages of small print. Books are made of fine quality paper, bound in attractive bindings, printed in excellent and readable type. Most books are well illustrated and some books are almost entirely pictorial. Many new books may be used effectively without reading.

The contents of a public libary are not static and constant. New books arrive each week at the library. What is still amazing to me is the fact that almost every topic or idea of interest is covered by some title in the library. Cooking, gardening, art, philosophy, law and religion — whatever one desires — it is there.

I know that my own use of the library has not exhausted the sources of material that are available. I think, however, that many people will be surprised to find that the library is a depository for than just books. If what you seek is related to ideas, education, art or any type of communication, then you will probably find it at the public library. Film, music, musical recordings, and even paintings are available for you through the public library. The library is a joy to use, whether you browse on your own, looking and finding what is of interest to you or avail yourself of the services of the librarians who are on duty and who can assist you in finding anything you need. If the parish library lacks the book or service you need, they will be glad to secure it from the State library or from any source that is available to them. I am constantly impressed by the excellent quality and variety of services rendered by the public library.

I could not complete this letter without expressing to all who work in the libraries (at the desk, in the bookshelves, the binding department, etc.) my appreciation and I believe the appreciation of all the people in this community, for their dedicated work and service to make available to all the wonderful keys to knowledge and pleasure which are contained in the public library. May I extend to you every good wish and my appreciation during this week of observance.

POTATO LIQUOR

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Norway wants to expand sales of its sea-aged potato liquor, linnje-aquavit, on the U.S. market. A strong drink, it gets its name from being shipped across the line of the equator and back to Norway before being sold. The rolling sea voyage is supposed to improve the flavor.

Tourists Join LBJ On Stroll About Grounds

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson interrupted a quiet stroll around the White House grounds Saturday to order the gates opened and a flock of tourists admitted to join him on his trek.

Johnson left his office, headed for lunch, about 2:30 p.m. when, as he later told it, aide Bill Moyers suggested they take a walk.

With a handful of Secret Service agents and assistants in tow, Johnson headed down the asphalt driveway behind the White House. Nearby was a wrought iron gate behind which shouting tourists were massed.

Tourists Join LBJ On Stroll About Grounds

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson interrupted a quiet stroll around the White House grounds Saturday to order the gates opened and a flock of tourists admitted to join him on his trek.

Johnson left his office, headed for lunch, about 2:30 p.m. when, as he later told it, aide Bill Moyers suggested they take a walk.

With a handful of Secret Service agents and assistants in tow, Johnson headed down the asphalt driveway behind the White House. Nearby was a wrought iron gate behind which shouting tourists were massed.

Dear Heloise

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

My ironing board is the kind that is built into the kitchen wall and comes down with the flip of a finger. When we have company and I need extra space to stack dishes or put the vittles on, I pull the board down, put a dry-cleaner's plastic bag over the ironing board, and it's a perfect place to put all the extra things.

Women who do not have the built-in type ironing board could easily put up their regular board, place it against the wall, cover it with a plastic bag and use it for the same purpose.

Moselle

DEAR HELOISE:

A handy idea for people who use powdered detergents, hand cleaners, etc., to clean their hands:

You can save lots of waste and have a much neater bathroom by pouring your cleaner from a sugar container such as you see in cafés!

Mrs. M. J. K.

Good idea! you can also use a plastic salt shaker for this. The kind with the great big holes!

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

We set our garbage can in the center of an old automobile tire. Now the dogs can't tip it over!

The tire can be painted to match the garbage can, or flowers can be planted around it.

H.R.

HONEY POTS

DEAR HELOISE:

When honey gets sugary, just bring a pot of water to a boil and set the jar of honey in it.

Turn the fire off and before long the honey should come back to its original state, with all the grainy, sugary particles melted.

Thomas Bernstein

DEAR HELOISE:

I put clear nail polish well into the eyelets and on the tongues of shoes which have white shoestrings!

This keeps my shoestrings from turning black from contact with the eyelet metal, and the tongue of the shoe doesn't show soil.

L. M.

DEAR HELOISE:

If you are ever in a hurry and can't find your pressing cloth . . . try using paper towels . . . or any kind of paper bag.

Tear off a length of paper toweling and wet it slightly, then place it over the garment. Take your regular iron (not steam) and press the garment lightly. Remove the damp towels and put dry towels over the garment, then press firmly. It will be ready to wear immediately.

Bea Manning

* * *

Be sure that whatever kind of paper towels you use do not contain an "additive." Some paper towels contain chemicals which just might spot your particular fabric. We've never had a complaint on brown paper bags.

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

If you have an empty spool (with a cover) from a half-inch roll of adhesive tape, use it to wind your measuring tape on. Put the cover on and drop it into your sewing basket.

The measuring tape is always easy to find in the basket and it doesn't get tangled up in the miscellaneous items. Keeps both the tape and your basket neat.

Mabel H. Collins

DEAR HELOISE:

We own several apartment houses. Why or how people punch holes in windows and screen doors, I will never know, but here is how we mend them:

Cut a piece of screen, to be used as a patch, a little larger than the hole itself. Ravel some of the wire around the edge of the cut piece. Place the patch over the hole and use a small crochet needle to pull the raveled ends through the wire mesh. The hole scarcely shows.

Earl Derryberry

LACQUERED JEWELS

DEAR HELOISE:

Clear nail polish is wonderful to use on inexpensive costume jewelry. Perspiration cannot get at the metal.

Mrs. Julian Banker

DEAR HELOISE:

I have found that the large rectangular washcloths or finger-tip towels make perfect bibs that really cover up the baby, and are easily washed. Just cut a hole for the neckline and bind it with bias tape, leaving enough tape to tie at the back of the neck.

If you buy the finger-tip towels with fringe across the bottom they are ever so adorable.

Mrs. F. R. Brown

DEAR HELOISE:

I had quite a time with my baby's crib sheets. At six months of age the little darling started pulling the sheet loose from the mattress. So I sewed two one-half-inch strips of elastic across the bottom of the sheet, attaching them to opposite sides. I slipped the elastic under the mattress, and now the sheet stays in place at all times!

D.F.B.

Now, isn't she smart. I wish I had known this twenty years ago!

Heloise

WINDOW WHISKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

When washing outside windows that have many small panes, I use my whisk broom! I first use it dry. This removes most of the dust and accummulated soil. I then go back over the windows with a pail of sudsy water, to which I have added a bit of ammonia, dipping the whisk broom in the suds and scouring the outside of the windows. The whisk broom gets into all those little corners.

I then take my garden hose and rinse the outside of the windows, after which I polish them with newspapers.

Tradition Governs Most Wedding Customs

LANCASTER, Pa. — If all the couples getting married this Summer were to whisper "I do" in unison, they could probably rattle the rafters of St. Patrick's Cathedral!

Why do the altar - bound (about 1,500,000 of them a year in the U. S. A. alone) prefer to take their vows in June? The tradition dates back to the days of Marie Antoinette, when June was the last court month before the hot Parisian Summer — most popular time for gala celebrations. But any June bride married in Marie "Let - them - eat-cake" Antoinette's court had to be willing to forfeit the wedding spotlight to the queen!

In the colonial U. S. A., an invitation to a Winter wedding was almost a request for a guest to take his life into his hands. Icy roads complicated the ever-present danger of Indian attack. A Spring or Fall affair interferred with planting or harvest time. So nuptials were usually scheduled for Summer. June remained the marryin' month.

Today, a January wedding may be just as convenient, but romantic couples prefer the traditional month of brides. As a matter of fact, tradition governs most of the world's wedding customs.

How would you like to meet your mate on your wedding day — for the first time? In many old European families, you'd have no choice. Picture being asked for your hand by a professional match-maker. That's how it's done in China.

In Brittany, traditional match-maker is the village tailor. In Sweden, Pop has the final word, while here, choice of mate is up to the couples concerned (32 per cent of whom are teenagers!)

Traditional wedding gift in Lapland is a reindeer! In poor countries, guests are expected to provide pantry supplies to see a marrying couple through their first few months. Here, a bride-to-be dreams of gleaming silver when she surveys her stack of presents.

Silver has been a symbol of romance for centuries. Miss Sally Wallace, Bridal Consultant for Wallace Silversmiths, tells us, "Because of its color, ancient man associated silver with the moon (that lyrical companion of June and 'spoon'). Alchemists often referred to the precious metal as 'Diana' — Goddess of the moon. To this day, Hindu women wear toe-rings of silver from the time they marry until their husbands die."

Looking into her company's history, Miss Wallace found records which indicate that silver became the popular wedding gift here in the late 19th Century, when silverplate became available at low cost. "It was a gilded age," wrote one historian, and every wedding couple received at least one silverplated tea service.

Today, about $100 million worth of sterling is purchased a year, — much of it for newly-weds. Brides account for 55 per cent of the flatware and holloware sold annually.

If there's a Summer wedding on your social schedule, and you're thinking in Silver, Miss Wallace advises, "Most reputable jewelry and department stores throughout the country maintain a registry of the local brides' choice of patterns in flatware. This is for the convenience of gift-shopping friends and relatives."

Popular gifts in holloware include candelabra, compotes, salt cellars and pepper shakers, sugar and cream sets, tea services, bread dishes, fruit trays and bud vases.

One sterling item frequently found at European weddings but rarely see here, is the chain. When couples in some lands across the sea marry, their hands are tied together with a silver chain, before the ring is placed on the bride's finger. Thus the old expression — "Tying the knot." Ribbon - knotted bridal bouquets and groomsmen's boutonnieres carry out the theme at our weddings.

Color of the bride's costume is also a matter of tradition. Here, of course, the bride wears white. But in China, where white is reserved for mourning, she dresses in red. Superstitious Norwegian girls often choose green for luck (you'd think they'd "Leave it to the Irish"). The colors most popular in Roumania are red and gold.

But regardless of difference in gowns and gifts, in wedding dates and dowries, in rites and rituals, brides the world over have one thing in common — that radiant beauty born of love, joy and dreams of living happily ever after!

GET BUSY, GIRLS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Leap year is upon us and the statisticians have bad news for girls who don't take advantage of its traditions. Using an average marrying age of 22½ for boys and 20 for girls, the charts show a surplus on the distaff side totaling 813,842 in the four years that follow 1964.

Knits Popular For Wardrobe Of Bride-To-Be

The popular versatile, wearable knits are a delight in any woman's wardrobe, but especially so for the bride, with a busy schedule of party-going and the prospects of a honeymoon trip.

This spring, for example knits are newsier and nicer than ever. They blouse so beautifully, right in line with the important blouson silhouette. They take so well to navy blue complemented with brass buttons, that's all a part of the military look for spring.

Double knits will be vying for popularity with boucles that present a terrific textured appearance. Ribbed type knits expecially in the sportier lines promise to please too.

Orlon, acetate, blends, cotton and lightweight wools are used in these stunning new knits — and each is planned with an eye on spring temperatures.

Styles are simply unlimited in these groups. You'll find everything from dressier dresses to the sportiest fashions going — and lots of two-piece outfits and smart suits are to be seen.

Unchanged is that grand quality offered by knits — the neat look that goes through several wearings. Wrinkles, never.

It may be a pun, but there's no doubt about it — knits are a pearl in the fashion world especially this spring!

Bride's Baking Attempt Fails

"Nothing." said the bride. "I made it ouf of flour, sugar, shortening and all the things the recipe called for. Everything but soda. I didn't have any soda, so I used 7-Up."

Wedding Photograph Should Be Made Early

According to a master photographer there are three elements that guarantee the perfection of a wedding photograph: the trend toward natural, rather than stereotyped portraits; vast advances in photographic techniques and today's high fashion wedding gowns, designed for elegance.

But even with all these assurances that the bridal photographers emphasize that portrait-sitting can't be accomplished in a last minute rush.

It takes time for the photographer to arrange lights that capture depth, to balance light against shadow, to show the fabric of the gown, to decide on the focial angle which is most attractive. So, it is recommended that an appointment for a sitting be made as soon as the wedding gown is ready and well before the bride is caught up in the inevitable partying.

Be sure the bodice of your gown fits smoothly so the camera doesn't catch an awkward bunching of the fabric. Be sure your bridal shoes have fashion-pointed toes, since the shoes may very well show.

And in the make-up department, use a liquid base nearest your skin tone. Keep brows arched naturally, have a clean lipstick line, perhaps enlarging it a bit if your lips are thin and don't forget mascara, lightly done, to emphasize your eyes under the bright lights.

Rules Cited For Tipping

NEW YORK — Since tipping can add appreciably to the cost of a wedding trip, it should be allowed for in the early planning stage.

When and how much to tip differs from one city to another and from one country to another. But fortunately, according to Modern Bride magazine, there is a general pattern to rates and customs of tipping.

For individual meals, tipping the waiter 15 per cent of the check is a good rule to follow, more if the service is exceptional. For overnight stays, no tip is necessary for the chambermaid; otherwise, leave $1 per week.

On cruises, you tip cabin and dining stewards about $1 per person a day. For a couple on a fourteen-day cruise, however, the tip would be $30 instead of $28.

At the halfway mark, it's a nice idea to give half of your tip to stewards so they can have it for their shore leave.

DOWRY DEFINED

New Brides Can Now Serve Gourmet Meals

Jokes about brides who cook with a can opener are passe. Commercially frozen foods answer the modern homemaker's need for dishes requiring minimum preparation and giving maximum eating pleasure. But meal planning is not a lost art — rather, meals are now enhanced by larger numbers of food choices offered by frozen foods. With some 600 frozen products available to discriminating people, menu possibilities are unlimited. These are just a few ideas:

DINNER I

Frozen Cream of Shrimp Soup
Frozen Baked Breasts of Chicken
Frozen Green Peas with Celery
Frozen Potato Puffs
Frozen Artichoke Heart Salad
Frozen Biscuits
Strawberry Alaska*

DINNER II

Ham Steak with Frozen Peaches
Frozen Candied Sweet Potatoes
Frozen Green Beans in Butter Sauce
Frozen Corn Muffins
Frozen Apple Turnovers

*Strawberry Alaska using frozen pound cake and frozen sliced strawberries is quick and easy. While still quite frozen, slice cake and cut berries into 4 small blocks. Place cake on a greased floured baking sheet. Top with block of frozen strawberries. Completely cover with meringue (use any pie meringue recipe) and bake in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) for 5 minutes.

ZOOLOGICAL FIREMEN

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI) — C W. Yeats' regular job is to put out fires. But in his off-hours he might babysit with a Komodc dragon or figure out a fair price for a snake. Yeats is a fireman at Station No. 4' in Houston, and is an animal trader in his time off. Periodically, he travels to other cities to make a trade.

A customary day's work in the animal market for Yeats might be to trade off a small tiger for a few medium - size monkeys and a six-foot dragon. Yeats' idea of house guests is a brace of snakes and a group of white rats awaiting purchasers.

Bride Given Suggestions On Living Room Decor

By BETTY PEPIS

Q: I plan to be married soon and would like to know how to decorate the living room. Furniture is maple and all the upholstered pieces have a silver ground. The sofa and a man's chair have a gold design and the lady's chair has orange. What color for walls, draperies and a braided rug? Would milk glass accessories be suitable?

A: Paint walls and woodwork a pale gold and have cafe curtains in the same color. The braided carpet could be an all-over mixture of silver, orange, gold and a touch of apple green. Have the milk glass accessories together with some orange and apple green.

Q: Floor - length draperies in our living room have an all-over design in beige ground with deep reds and an inconspicuous gilt outline. These we must keep. Walls match the beige ground of drapery. All furniture needs reupholstering. This consists of sofa and loveseat, two chairs, a wing chair and an antique cherry wood rocker. We also need a new rug. I do not like pink in the living room but love the new blues and green but I guess this is out of the question with the draperies.

A: Cover sofa and loveseat in beige to blend with walls but deeper and have rug in the same color. Two chairs could be gold, the wing chair a ruby red and the rocker in a blue mist. Pick up this color in small accessories.

Q: What do you suggest for a bedroom that has white French Provincial furniture and walls paneled in pine? The draperies are a yellow-gold.

A: To bring some interest into the room, use a toile du jouy print at the windows, for the dust ruffle and the bedspread cover. The toile should be in a gold or mustard print. Gold hooked or braided scatter rugs would be appropriate as would yellow tole lamps. Select a rich deep red for small accessories.

Q: I need color in my bedroom. It has oyster white walls, a beige rug, and off white curtains. What color for valance and bedspread to give room some life. Also what color lamp shades?

ONE OF THE FIRST decisions a bride-to-be makes is the selection of crystal and china for her future home. Miss Fran Guthrie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Grayson Guthrie, of this city, is shown as she selects her favorite from the many lovely patterns available. Miss Guthrie will wed Ray William Talley on June 27.

Demure Bridal Gown Noted In Paris Fashions

Less noticed among all the other Paris fashions, but definitely there in several salons, was a new kind of bride. Traditionally, couture collections end with a bridal gown, always a gown to end all gowns. These single creations can often set off a whole new trend for the next bridal season, so here comes the demure bride.

In fact, such demureness hasn't been seen since Victorian days. Dresses already being shown for summer weddings reflect St. Laurent's child bride look with dresses that look like baby dresses elongated, and are finished with little caps tied under the chin, or actual bonnets in organza.

There's a "Cranford" look to other bridals, with a skirt slightly back-bustled, an elbow-sleeved bodice double-breasted in little satin buttons, a satin-bowed straw sailor hat. Lace is very much a part of these demure gowns, but fine and ruffled, not heavy or elaborately appliqued.

Tradition Governs Most Wedding Customs

LANCASTER, Pa. — If all the couples getting married this Summer were to whisper "I do" in unison, they could probably rattle the rafters of St. Patrick's Cathedral!

Why do the altar - bound (about 1,500,000 of them a year in the U. S. A. alone) prefer to take their vows in June? The tradition dates back to the days of Marie Antoinette, when June was the last court month before the hot Parisian Summer — most popular time for gala celebrations. But any June bride married in Marie "Let - them - eat-cake" Antoinette's court had to be willing to forfeit the wedding spotlight to the queen!

In the colonial U. S. A., an invitation to a Winter wedding was almost a request for a guest to take his life into his hands. Icy roads complicated the ever-present danger of Indian attack. A Spring or Fall affair interferred with planting or harvest time. So nuptials were usually scheduled for Summer. June remained the marryin' month.

Today, a January wedding may be just as convenient, but romantic couples prefer the traditional month of brides. As a matter of fact, tradition governs most of the world's wedding customs.

How would you like to meet your mate on your wedding day — for the first time? In many old European families, you'd have no choice. Picture being asked for your hand by a professional match-maker. That's how it's done in China.

In Brittany, traditional match-maker is the village tailor. In Sweden, Pop has the final word, while here, choice of mate is up to the couples concerned (32 per cent of whom are teenagers!)

Traditional wedding gift in Lapland is a reindeer! In poor countries, guests are expected to provide pantry supplies to see a marrying couple through their first few months. Here, a bride-to-be dreams of gleaming silver when she surveys her stack of presents.

Silver has been a symbol of romance for centuries. Miss Sally Wallace, Bridal Consultant for Wallace Silversmiths, tells us, "Because of its color, ancient man associated silver with the moon (that lyrical companion of June and 'spoon'). Alchemists often referred to the precious metal as 'Diana' — Goddess of the moon. To this day, Hindu women wear toe-rings of silver from the time they marry until their husbands die."

Looking into her company's history, Miss Wallace found records which indicate that silver became the popular wedding gift here in the late 19th Century, when silverplate became available at low cost. "It was a gilded age," wrote one historian, and every wedding couple received at least one silverplated tea service.

Today, about $100 million worth of sterling is purchased a year, — much of it for newlyweds. Brides account for 55 per cent of the flatware and holloware sold annually.

If there's a Summer wedding on your social schedule, and you're thinking in Silver, Miss Wallace advises, "Most reputable jewelry and department stores throughout the country maintain a registry of the local brides' choice of patterns in flatware. This is for the convenience of gift-shopping friends and relatives."

Popular gifts in holloware include candelabra, compotes, salt cellars and pepper shakers, sugar and cream sets, tea services, bread dishes, fruit trays and bud vases.

One sterling item frequently found at European weddings but rarely see here, is the chain. When couples in some lands across the sea marry, their hands are tied together with a silver chain, before the ring is placed on the bride's finger. Thus the old expression — "Tying the knot." Ribbon - knotted bridal bouquets and groomsmen's boutonnieres carry out the theme at our weddings.

Color of the bride's costume is also a matter of tradition. Here, of course, the bride wears white. But in China, where white is reserved for mourning, she dresses in red. Superstitious Norwegian girls often choose green for luck (you'd think they'd "Leave it to the Irish"). The colors most popular in Roumania are red and gold.

But regardless of difference in gowns and gifts, in wedding dates and dowries, in rites and rituals, brides the world over have one thing in common — that radiant beauty born of love, joy and dreams of living happily ever after!

GET BUSY, GIRLS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Leap year is upon us and the statisticians have bad news for girls who don't take advantage of its traditions. Using an average marrying age of 22½ for boys and 20 for girls, the charts show a surplus on the distaff side totaling 813,842 in the four years that follow 1964.

Knits Popular For Wardrobe Of Bride-To-Be

The popular versatile, wearable knits are a delight in any woman's wardrobe, but especially so for the bride, with a busy schedule of party-going and the prospects of a honeymoon trip.

This spring, for example knits are newsier and nicer than ever. They blouse so beautifully, right in line with the important blouson silhouette. They take so well to navy blue complemented with brass buttons, that's all a part of the military look for spring.

Double knits will be vying for popularity with boucles that present a terrific textured appearance. Ribbed type knits expecially in the sportier lines promise to please too.

Orlon, acetate, blends, cotton and lightweight wools are used in these stunning new knits — and each is planned with an eye on spring temperatures.

Styles are simply unlimited in these groups. You'll find everything from dressier dresses to the sportiest fashions going — and lots of two-piece outfits and smart suits are to be seen.

Unchanged is that grand quality offered by knits — the neat look that goes through several wearings. Wrinkles, never.

It may be a pun, but there's no doubt about it — knits are a pearl in the fashion world especially this spring!

CLOSE CALL

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Patrolman Gerald Halverson is thankful that the pastor of the Open Door Baptist Church doesn't aim at prowlers. Halverson parked his patrol car and walked down an alley to answer a complaint of a barking dog at the parsonage of the church. Suddenly a shot rang out. Halverson scurried back to the street and contacted the Rev. Audrey Corder at the front door of the parsonage. With smoking shotgun in hand, the minister told the policeman he just scared off a prowler by firing the weapon into the air.

HONEYMOON

The word honeymoon came from the term honey mouth." In ancient Europe, the bride and bridegroom were required to drink mead — a kind of wine made from honey. The prescription: drink it for 30 days to assure fertility.

Newlyweds Need Double Duty Furniture

CHICAGO (UPI) — Interior designer Ernest T. Tietgens says young couples furnishing an apartment should look for "double duty" furniture but should not skimp on quality.

"If the couple eventually plans to buy a home, furniture should be bought with that purpose in mind," he said. "A sofa bed is a practical piece of furniture for modern apartments and can be used in the den when a home is purchased."

If an apartment has a tile or fine wood floor, an area rug is a practical investment, he said. It provides the needed warmth and color for an apartment and can fit well to the decorating scheme of a home.

"If a couple wanted to buy carpeting for an apartment I would recommend a neutral shade of 'off - white beige'," Tietgens said. "Since most apartments are small, color should be used as an accent because too much color is overwhelming."

JUNE ANNIVERSARIES

The traditional month of weddings, June is also the anniversary of a host of weddings of last year. One of the nicest sentimental ways for husbands to remember the first anniversary is to send their wives the same flowers they carried on their wedding day.

Tips Help Father Of Bride Avoid Those Bankrupt Blues

NEW YORK (UPI) —Memo to the father of the bride: Is that list of bills facing you beginning to look like so?

If this is the way your list looks (with many more items yet to be figured), take heart! There are "package deals" to save you time, money and lots of other problems.

Mrs. Alexandra S. Potts, the bridal consultant and research analyst who supplied this "average" list, explained that the growing trend today is toward small specialty shops and separate departments in large stores that supply everything for the wedding day in neatly-tied "packages" costing from $500 to $3,000, and up.

Mrs. Potts has been in the bridal field since 1931 and today is editor - in - chief of Modern Bride Magazine. She said that thousands of specialty shops have developed tie-ins with the baker, florist, photographer and jeweler.

"Some concerns even will throw in a limousine for a wedding costing as low as $500," Mrs. Potts said.

"There are more girls today who have the possibility of being a formal bride than ever in the history of the country," said Mrs. Potts. "Twenty-five years ago, this was for just a few."

But getting wed gets increasingly costly, she said. Counting all costs, from the engagement ring and wedding day necessities to the honeymoon and furniture for the first home, a young couple (with Dad's help) may expect to spend over $5,000 — an increase of some 35 per cent in the past eight years, she said.

Mrs. Potts said that proportionately the working girl will spend more on her wedding dress than a society girl. "This is your day," the family says — and Dad often will go into debt to prove it, Mrs. Potts said.

The working girl who spends hundreds of dollars for a wedding dress is not accustomed to going to parties every day of the year, she said. "This is the big event and she must have the best."

"In the case of the society bride, most of the money is spent on the trimmings — the reception, the flowers, the photographs," Mrs. Potts said. "A society girl may spend $5,000 to $10,000 on a wedding but she's apt to spend only $250 on the wedding dress itself." A veil with heirloom lace that's been in the family for generations usually will be used by the society girl on her big day, she said.

Mrs. Potts said that in these days of high - spiraling costs, the man and girl often pool resources to pay the "overall cost of getting married."

"It's not the thing to do," she said, "but in some instances new customs have arisen and this has become quite a trend with some people."

Major appliances, $1,021; living room furniture, $453; dining room furniture, $256; bedroom furniture, $419; floor coverings, $211; linens and blankets, $249; and honeymoon, $447.

"You have to use a barometer to judge the rise in costs," Mrs. Potts said.

COLOR IN HOME

Today's Brides Favor Modern Traditionalism

When a heroine in a popular novel boasted that one of her first wedding gifts was a hammered-aluminum cocktail shaker in the shape of a skyscraper, we knew — even without being told — that the story was set in the 1930's.

There are fashions in wedding gifts, just as there are in clothing. And in both cases, fads quickly become dated and lose their charm. The timeless wedding gift, on the other hand, becomes a cherished family possession.

Gift givers who keep this in mind when choosing presents can be sure their gifts will find a warm welcome. Gifts of a treasure quality, are appreciated more than ever by today's brides. She likes additions to her collections of such possessions as record classics and sterling silver flatware. Fine crystal ceramics and ornaments, paintings and reproductions, interesting art objects are all prized for their beauty and individuality by the knowlegeable bride of today.

Bridal consultants report that young women are reasserting a kind of "modern traditionalism" that adapts the timeless beauty of good design and good taste to twentieth-century living.

In everything from table appointments to furnishings for her new home, the modern bride is keeping one eye on the past; the other on the future. She realizes that it needn't be new to be contemporary, and finds that old traditions can take on a new meaning for her life.

TRADITIONS REVIVED

The wide spread revival of the centuries - old tradition of the bride's parents giving her sterling is an example. This tradition has as much meaning today as it did years ago. Not only is sterling still the standard of quality in tableware, but the graciousness and beauty it contributes to daily living are recognized by the bride as well as her parents as important adjuncts to the new household.

Accessories for the home offer another example. Even if the young couple has chosen modern furniture, they may shop in antique shops for lamps, wall hangings, knick - knacks, and other decorative accessories that will personalize their home. The increasing popularity of blending the old and the new has done away with the store-window rigidity that once characterized the decor of so many new families.

It's the same with table accessories. The bride may have chosen early American china and glassware and sterling in a colonial - classic pattern. But her linens may be as modern as tomorrow in color and feeling. The result is a table with a fresh individuality based on a combination of good design and good taste.

Quality, then, rather than fad or fashion is the criterion used by today's bride for the possessions she'd like for her new home. With her new maturity about what is beautiful, she prefers the real to the pseudo; timelessness to timeliness. This should be good news for gift givers who, traditionally, like to give the bride something lasting to remember them by.

CHANGING NAME

Check with your state's motor vehicle department to learn how much time after marriage you have to change the driver's license to your new name.

PEARL LEGEND

The pearl (a word taken from the Latin perula, meaning pear-shaped, because many are) has been the subject of legend through the ages. Pearls are linked by tradition to brides by the anicent Hindu belief that the deity Krishna brought a beautiful pearl up from the sea and give it to his daughter on her wedding day.

GIFTS ADD UP

Brides buy or receive as gifts about one out of three blenders, coffee makers, electric skillets and clock radios sold. And they're responsible for the sales of better than four out of 10 mixers, toasters, waffle irons, and bedspreads.

HOPE CHEST

Dual-Purpose Silver Helps New Hostess

If there's one thing that every bride can count on with certainty, it's that her home will be a hospitality showcase to a steady stream of guests in the years ahead.

Relatives and friends, old and new, will be sure to beat a path to her door and measure her skill as a hostess. Gleaming silver holloware, therefore, has a place of special importance in her wedding plans and these pieces can help her in her home entertaining by being versatile as well as beautiful.

Silver holloware is more than just elegant designs and glistening patterns — it is a practical helper that can do double, even triple, duty with taste and imagination.

For instance, a single silver bowl can perform as many as a half dozen separate functions; as a flower holder, open vegetable dish, relish dish, for rolls, hors d'oeuvres and as a fruit centerpiece.

Bread trays, gravy boats and vegetable dishes can easily do many more things than their names imply, all adding to the pleasure of the hostess and guests.

Bride's Baking Attempt Fails

"Nothing." said the bride. "I made it ouf of flour, sugar, shortening and all the things the recipe called for. Everything but soda. I didn't have any soda, so I used 7-Up."

Wedding Photograph Should Be Made Early

According to a master photographer there are three elements that guarantee the perfection of a wedding photograph: the trend toward natural, rather than stereotyped portraits; vast advances in photographic techniques and today's high fashion wedding gowns, designed for elegance.

But even with all these assurances that the bridal photographers emphasize that portrait-sitting can't be accomplished in a last minute rush.

It takes time for the photographer to arrange lights that capture depth, to balance light against shadow, to show the fabric of the gown, to decide on the focial angle which is most attractive. So, it is recommended that an appointment for a sitting be made as soon as the wedding gown is ready and well before the bride is caught up in the inevitable partying.

Be sure the bodice of your gown fits smoothly so the camera doesn't catch an awkward bunching of the fabric. Be sure your bridal shoes have fashion-pointed toes, since the shoes may very well show.

And in the make-up department, use a liquid base nearest your skin tone. Keep brows arched naturally, have a clean lipstick line, perhaps enlarging it a bit if your lips are thin and don't forget mascara, lightly done, to emphasize your eyes under the bright lights.

It is best to avoid extravagant hair styles when posing for your wedding portrait.

Rules Cited For Tipping

NEW YORK — Since tipping can add appreciably to the cost of a wedding trip, it should be allowed for in the early planning stage.

When and how much to tip differs from one city to another and from one country to another. But fortunately, according to Modern Bride magazine, there is a general pattern to rates and customs of tipping.

In the United States and Canada, the bellboy gets at least 25 cents a bag, 50 cents in expensive hotels.

He gets 25 cents for bringing ice, delivering a telegram, or any other minor errand.

For individual meals, tipping the waiter 15 per cent of the check is a good rule to follow, more if the service is exceptional. For overnight stays, no tip is necessary for the chambermaid; otherwise, leave $1 per week.

On cruises, you tip cabin and dining stewards about $1 per person a day. For a couple on a fourteen-day cruise, however, the tip would be $30 instead of $28.

At the halfway mark, it's a nice idea to give half of your tip to stewards so they can have it for their shore leave.

DOWRY DEFINED

Around 500 B. C., during the golden age of Greece, the convention of the dowry was established. A man was expected to give his daughter at least one-tenth of his property upon her marriage.

New Brides Can Now Serve Gourmet Meals

Jokes about brides who cook with a can opener are passe. Commercially frozen foods answer the modern homemaker's need for dishes requiring minimum preparation and giving maximum eating pleasure. But meal planning is not a lost art — rather, meals are now enhanced by larger numbers of food choices offered by frozen foods. With some 600 frozen products available to discriminating people, menu possibilities are unlimited. These are just a few ideas:

DINNER I

Frozen Cream of Shrimp Soup
Frozen Baked Breasts of Chicken
Frozen Green Peas with Celery
Frozen Potato Puffs
Frozen Artichoke Heart Salad
Frozen Biscuits
Strawberry Alaska*

DINNER II

Ham Steak with Frozen Peaches
Frozen Candied Sweet Potatoes
Frozen Green Beans in Butter Sauce
Frozen Corn Muffins
Frozen Apple Turnovers

*Strawberry Alaska using frozen pound cake and frozen sliced strawberries is quick and easy. While still quite frozen, slice cake and cut berries into 4 small blocks. Place cake on a greased floured baking sheet. Top with block of frozen strawberries. Completely cover with meringue (use any pie meringue recipe) and bake in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) for 5 minutes.

Silver Pattern Reflects Bride's Personal Taste

It connotes the one household product which most brides collect before marriage and carry with them through all their married life into every home.

And "my silver" means the particular pattern each bride chooses to reflect her own particular tastes more than any other one thing in her household collections.

Today's bride may take her silver into many more different atmospheres than her mother or grandmother, who most likely had two or three homes in the same vicinity and of the same type, except each was a little larger.

The bride of 1964, however, may start out in a modern, garden - type apartment in the Southwest; move to the West Coast to a suburban, informal house, to the East to a Cape Cod house or abroad to an ancient flat before she and her husband settle in the house of their own choice.

With this knowledge of where the future may take her and her husband, the selection of a silver pattern means she must choose one that she feels can be a symbol of her taste through all the years of moving and homemaking in all sorts of backgrounds, as well as love for the pattern itself.

And in some cases, the bridegroom may have a preference for a certain type of silver, sometimes quite contemporary, if not for a specific pattern. Certainly his tastes should be considered most seriously, as much or more so than those of the mother of the bride, who so often exerts her influence strongly on a choice!

Perhaps the bridegroom expresses a preference for the architecturally simple patterns, rather than the ornately decorated floral ones. Among the most striking of these is Reed & Barton's "Dimension," which is boldly plain. It has a knife handle which stands upright when the blade lies flat or lies flat when the blade is placed with its cutting edge upright.

If you and your bridegroom prefer the richness and elegance of the elaborate design, Francis First, which has been one of the favorites in this area for years, chosen by American presidents and state governors as well as an Indian Maharajah, might be a choice.

Bride In Pants Is Newest For Yacht Wedding

Tongue in cheek means money in pocket. And if that isn't a Chinese proverb, Jacques Esterel will make it a French one.

Just to give you a rough idea: an informal bride, complete with short head veil, is shown in his collection wearing a white mandarin linen suit that has pants! "To be worn for a wedding on a yacht on the French Riviera," his salon salesgirl explained.

Mr. Esterel showed "Pier Coats" — which are sleeveless summer linen coats that match bathing suits worn underneath. "For twilight time," he said, "on the boardwalk." There were out-of-bed" pajamas — and we assume that he means the lounging kind. His playsuit tweed trousers have deep V notches cut in front for walking ease and a more feminine look.

Because Esterel moonlights (or should we say "twilights") as a composer of music for the French films, he reveals his theatre sense by showing the smallest, flattest saucer hat in town, just before he sends a model out wearing an enormous black straw pyramid hat. One dress had a side-tied sash that went trailing behind likt a floating train. A pillbix hat had a navy chiffon that went down to the hemline of the dress. He showed a green Chantilly lace coat worn over a white silk dress and has sewn embroidered daisies all over a white linen one. It's all or nothing with Jacques Esterel.

Attendants Gowns Can Echo Wedding Theme

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Q: For my June wedding I'm planning a rather sophisticated sheath gown. I will have only a matron and a maid of honor as attendants. I'm planning their dresses in the same style, but do they have to be the same color? Could you suggest a color combination that's beautifully different?

A: I could suggest many, but when one goes out to shop, one finds oneself limited by what the stores are offering! I can, for example, visualize one attendant in navy lace, the other in pink lace, but can you find it? A rose theme could be beautiful for June, with one in deep pink, the other in yellow, yourself carrying white roses, attendants carrying roses like their gowns. Or, how about an orchid theme? You carry white ones, one attendant is in a violet shade blending with purple orchids, the other in beige carries brown orchids touched with green.

Q: My husband and I will be stationed at a United States Embassy in a warm but not humid climate. What will I need for cocktail parties, teas, informal dinners and formal occasions? I have previously had to entertain only informally, so must buy a ne wwardrobe, and on a tight budget!

A: Good separates are your answer. Thus a single white crepe skirt can take several tops of informal to formal kind that will cover the teas, cocktail parties and informal dinners. I would go to nearest good fashion store, seek advice of better sportswear department, where such lines as Cabana and Arbe Originals are carried. For formal occasions, why not a long crepe or chiffon skirt with which the same formal top (jeweled or sequinned chiffon or crepe) can be worn that you use with the short skirt for dinners and cocktail parties?

Q: For a plane trip to Greece and Israel what kind of clothes would you advise? We will be going in July.

A: Hot, and hot — but dry. Take summer clothing, but of the covered-up kind, as you will be more comfortable with loose sleeves than in sleeveless dresses. Dress-jacket costumes in seersucker, linen and other blends, will do for both countries, and cover occasions when you may want to wear a sleeveless dress with a lot of jewelry as a formal costume. Cotton knits are good, too.

If you have a question concerning fashion, send it to Florence de Santis, in care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self addressed envelope.

WEDDING SECURITY

The word wedding is a reminder of the elaborate financial arrangements that once accompanied marriage. In ancient times the father of the bride paid a "wed" — or security — to the bridegroom's parents to secure the marriage.

LITERATE STATE

BURLINGAME, Calif. (UPI) — California leads the nation in number of high school graduates with about 205,000 in 1963, the National Education Association reports.

Groom Usually Goes Alone To Purchase Ring

The future bridegroom usually goes alone to purchase the ring or rings. This is usually after a lengthy period of window shopping with the bride - elect, when she drops "subtle" hints as to her preference in engagement and wedding rings.

At the time of the actual purchase, the prospective bridegroom specifies the size of stone, type of setting and the price range that he has allowed himself. If the engagement ring is part of a set, then he usually purchases both at the same time. If, however, the ring is a Tiffany setting, or something similar, and will require only a gold band as a wedding ring, then he comes back for the wedding ring at a later date.

ZOOLOGICAL FIREMEN

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI) — C W. Yeats' regular job is to put out fires. But in his off-hours he might babysit with a Komodo dragon or figure out a fair price for a snake. Yeats is a fireman at Station No. 41 in Houston, and is an animal trader in his time off. Periodically, he travels to other cities to make a trade.

A customary day's work in the animal market for Yeats might be to trade off a small tiger for a few medium - size monkeys and a six-foot dragon. Yeats' idea of house guests is a brace of snakes and a group of white rats awaiting purchasers.

June Is Still Favored Month For Weddings

NEW YORK—Marriage is a year 'round business. Though June still leads with a 12.8 per cent of total weddings, annually, it's followed very closely by August with 10 per cent and September with 9.8 per cent.

January, February and March account for a little over 5 per cent each of the year's weddings; April, May and November each have slightly more than 7 per cent. And 24 per cent of all the remaining weddings are divided evenly among July, October and December.

It was estimated that there will be a total of 1,670,000 weddings in 1964.

Plan Wedding Details Early To Avoid Chaos

CHICAGO (UPI) — The last few weeks before the wedding ceremony are crowded with hundreds of details that must be considered to make the wedding run smoothly.

The big decisions, such as what the bride and her attendants will wear, the guest list, place of the reception and when the wedding will take place, are out of the way.

Many books are available for listing presents, including one that contains numbers to be pasted on the gift. The name of the gift given is written in the book opposite the number attached to the present.

This method helps a bride keep an accurate list of who sent what if she sends her thank you notes all at once. Gifts should be acknowledged as soon as possible.

Invitations should be addressed and mailed about three weeks before the ceremony. It's also a good time to have your hair styled and permanented.

All parties and showers should take place two to four weeks before the wedding. Showers should be given by friends, but relatives may give parties.

The engaged couple should visit the florist together. The bridegroom will be responsible for the bride's bouquet, the boutonnieres and the corsages for both mothers. The rest of the flowers are the bride's responsibility.

He should choose gifts for his best man and ushers, plan the honeymoon, arrange for his wedding apparel, act as host for a dinner for his attendants, and give the clergyman's fee to the best man to present after the ceremony.

Housekeeping List Can Be Timesaver

A grocery list can save you money—if you write down what you really need and stick to those items when you're shopping — and in just the same way a housekeeping list can save you time.

Write down what needs to be done every day, every week and every month. Then follow this list.

Letting things slide can result in a major just - before - company cleaning on precisely the beautiful day your carefree husband suggests a drive in the country following your list—and you don't have to be a slave to it of course — can keep your domicile relatively spic and span all the time.

Weekly chores involve more thorough cleaning, laundry, ironing, mending, marketing. Spread these through the week and you might even clean rooms on separate days. A husband, even one whose wife works, doesn't like for her to spend entire evenings hanging around, doing housework.

Monthly jobs are cleaning venetian blinds, washing windows, polishing furniture, waxing floors, cleaning closets and cabinets. Space these apart, too.

Bride Of Today Has Many Aids In Homemaking

A wise Irish bride of not-so-long-ago could pass a tricky test by picking up a broom that had been placed slyly across the doorsill of her cottage by a mother-in-law as a test of her potential as a good housekeeper.

According to the custom, if the neophyte lady of the house stepped across the broom barrier it indicated she was lazy. If she retrieved the broom and put it carefully in a corner, she was greeted with "Cead Mile Failte" — a hundred thousand welcomes — by her new family, for it indicated she was sure to sweep the floors with care.

Today's American bride, fortunately, is not required to provide proof of her homemaking ability. Still, she should know how to keep the floors — and furniture — in an apartment or house clean and bright. Depending on the types of floors and furniture, the following guide from Lucile Bush, director of Johnson's Wax Consumer Service, will help in the choice and use of the proper product:

A liquid buffing wax with a built-in cleaner that removes dirt and soil as it is being applied is recommended especially for wood floors.

Asphalt tile and other resilient flooring can be easily maintained with self polishing waxes that dry to a sparkling shine and do not require buffing. The waxes should be poured in small pools on the floor and spread with light even strokes, using a cloth folded in a flat pad or a long-handled applier. The container should not be shaken prior to use as this will make the liquid foamy and result in a streaked and uneven finish.

Wood furniture may be given a high polish without rubbing if a liquid furniture wax, that contains a cleaning ingredient is used. The wax is spread in thin film over the surface of the furniture with a solf cloth, allowed to dry until a haze forms then simply wiped to a shine. To dust and polish in one operation, use a pushbutton wax that is sprayed on the furniture and wiped immediately with a soft cloth.

Bridal Gowns Most Unchanged Of Fashions

Bridal gowns are perhaps the most conservative of fashions. A trend will stay in for ten years. When a big event does cause change, the new trend is good for another decade.

The last big shifting of gears went on after Princess Margaret's wedding. When the petite princess went down the aisle in that pure, plain gown, you could hear the beads drop all over the bridal market.

Out went miles of lace, pounds of pearls and bugle beads, acres of ruffles. It's still that way, and will be until some other world-famous bride decides she wants all the hoopla back.

Today's bridal gown is a shape. Usually it's high - waisted, has sleeves, and all the fullness and drama are at the back. Newest idea is the cape, fastening high in front, where it is cut short, sweeping out in back into a train.

Embroideries are often placed at new points, such as on sleeves only, on the center panel, or on a court train. Necklines are plain scoops or bateau. The whole idea is the royal bride.

Bride Given Suggestions On Living Room Decor

By BETTY PEPIS

Q: I plan to be married soon and would like to know how to decorate the living room. Furniture is maple and all the upholstered pieces have a silver ground. The sofa and a man's chair have a gold design and the lady's chair has orange. What color for walls, draperies and a braided rug? Would milk glass accessories be suitable?

A: Paint walls and woodwork a pale gold and have cafe curtains in the same color. The braided carpet could be an all-over mixture of silver, orange, gold and a touch of apple green. Have the milk glass accessories together with some orange and apple green.

Q: Floor - length draperies in our living room have an all-over design in beige ground with deep reds and an inconspicuous gilt outline. These we must keep. Walls match the beige ground of drapery. All furniture needs reupholstering. This consists of sofa and loveseat, two chairs, a wing chair and an antique cherry wood rocker. We also need a new rug. I do not like pink in the living room but love the new blues and green but I guess this is out of the question with the draperies.

A: Cover sofa and loveseat in beige to blend with walls but deeper and have rug in the same color. Two chairs could be gold, the wing chair a ruby red and the rocker in a blue mist. Pick up this color in small accessories.

Q: What do you suggest for a bedroom that has white French Provincial furniture and walls paneled in pine? The draperies are a yellow-gold.

A: To bring some interest into the room, use a toile du jouy print at the windows, for the dust ruffle and the bedspread cover. The toile should be in a gold or mustard print. Gold hooked or braided scatter rugs would be appropriate as would yellow tole lamps. Select a rich deep red for small accessories.

Q: I need color in my bedroom. It has oyster white walls, a beige rug, and off white curtains. What color for valance and bedspread to give room some life. Also what color lamp shades?

ONE OF THE FIRST decisions a bride-to-be makes is the selection of crystal and china for her future home. Miss Fran Guthrie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Grayson Guthrie, of this city, is shown as she selects her favorite from the many lovely patterns available. Miss Guthrie will wed Ray William Talley on June 27.

Demure Bridal Gown Noted In Paris Fashions

Less noticed among all the other Paris fashions, but definitely there in several salons, was a new kind of bride. Traditionally, couture collections end with a bridal gown, always a gown to end all gowns. These single creations can often set off a whole new trend for the next bridal season, so here comes the demure bride.

In fact, such demureness hasn't been seen since Victorian days. Dresses already being shown for summer weddings reflect St. Laurent's child bride look with dresses that look like baby dresses elongated, and are finished with little caps tied under the chin, or actual bonnets in organza.

There's a "Cranford" look to other bridals, with a skirt slightly back-bustled, an elbow-sleeved bodice double-breasted in little satin buttons, a satin-bowed straw sailor hat. Lace is very much a part of these demure gowns, but fine and ruffled, not heavy or elaborately appliqued.

JUNE ANNIVERSARIES

The traditional month of weddings, June is also the anniversary of a host of weddings of last year. One of the nicest sentimental ways for husbands to remember the first anniversary is to send their wives the same flowers they carried on their wedding day.

Tips Help Father Of Bride Avoid Those Bankrupt Blues

NEW YORK (UPI) —Memo to the father of the bride: Is that list of bills facing you beginning to look like so?

If this is the way your list looks (with many more items yet to be figured), take heart! There are "package deals" to save you time, money and lots of other problems.

Mrs. Alexandra S. Potts, the bridal consultant and research analyst who supplied this "average" list, explained that the growing trend today is toward small specialty shops and separate departments in large stores that supply everything for the wedding day in neatly-tied "packages" costing from $500 to $3,000, and up.

Mrs. Potts has been in the bridal field since 1931 and today is editor - in - chief of Modern Bride Magazine. She said that thousands of specialty shops have developed tie-ins with the baker, florist, photographer and jeweler.

Secretaries, technicians, and college graduates all have begun to lean on these package deals for a formal wedding with all the trimmings.

"Some concerns even will throw in a limousine for a wedding costing as low as $500," Mrs. Potts said.

"There are more girls today who have the possibility of being a formal bride than ever in the history of the country," said Mrs. Potts. "Twenty-five years ago, this was for just a few."

But getting wed gets increasingly costly, she said. Counting all costs, from the engagement ring and wedding day necessities to the honeymoon and furniture for the first home, a young couple (with Dad's help) may expect to spend over $5,000 — an increase of some 35 per cent in the past eight years, she said.

Mrs. Potts said that proportionately the working girl will spend more on her wedding dress than a society girl. "This is your day," the family says — and Dad often will go into debt to prove it, Mrs. Potts said.

The working girl who spends hundreds of dollars for a wedding dress is not accustomed to going to parties every day of the year, she said. "This is the big event and she must have the best."

"In the case of the society bride, most of the money is spent on the trimmings — the reception, the flowers, the photographs," Mrs. Potts said. "A society girl may spend $5,000 to $10,000 on a wedding but she's apt to spend only $250 on the wedding dress itself." A veil with heirloom lace that's been in the family for generations usually will be used by the society girl on her big day, she said.

Mrs. Potts said that in these days of high - spiraling costs, the man and girl often pool resources to pay the "overall cost of getting married."

"It's not the thing to do," she said, "but in some instances new customs have arisen and this has become quite a trend with some people."

Major appliances, $1,021; living room furniture, $453; dining room furniture, $256; bedroom furniture, $419; floor coverings, $211; linens and blankets, $249; and honeymoon, $447.

"You have to use a barometer to judge the rise in costs," Mrs. Potts said.

COLOR IN HOME

CLOSE CALL

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Patrolman Gerald Halverson is thankful that the pastor of the Open Door Baptist Church doesn't aim at prowlers. Halverson parked his patrol car and walked down an alley to answer a complaint of a barking dog at the parsonage of the church. Suddenly a shot rang out. Halverson scurried back to the street and contacted the Rev. Audrey Corder at the front door of the parsonage. With smoking shotgun in hand, the minister told the policeman he just scared off a prowler by firing the weapon into the air.

HONEYMOON

The word honeymoon came from the term honey mouth." In ancient Europe, the bride and bridegroom were required to drink mead — a kind of wine made from honey. The prescription: drink it for 30 days to assure fertility.

Newlyweds Need Double Duty Furniture

CHICAGO (UPI) — Interior designer Ernest T. Tietgens says young couples furnishing an apartment should look for "double duty" furniture but should not skimp on quality.

"If the couple eventually plans to buy a home, furniture should be bought with that purpose in mind," he said. "A sofa bed is a practical piece of furniture for modern apartments and can be used in the den when a home is purchased."

If an apartment has a tile or fine wood floor, an area rug is a practical investment, he said. It provides the needed warmth and color for an apartment and can fit well to the decorating scheme of a home.

"If a couple wanted to buy carpeting for an apartment I would recommend a neutral shade of 'off - white beige'," Tietgens said. "Since most apartments are small, color should be used as an accent because too much color is overwhelming."

Today's Brides Favor Modern Traditionalism

When a heroine in a popular novel boasted that one of her first wedding gifts was a hammered-aluminum cocktail shaker in the shape of a skyscraper, we knew — even without bing told — that the story was set in the 1930's.

There are fashions in wedding gifts, just as there are in clothing. And in both cases, fads quickly become dated and lose their charm. The timeless wedding gift, on the other hand, becomes a cherished family possession.

Gift givers who keep this in mind when choosing presents can be sure their gifts will find a warm welcome. Gifts of a treasure quality, are appreciated more than ever by today's brides. She likes additions to her collections of such possessions as record classics and sterling silver flatware. Fine crystal ceramics and ornaments, paintings and reproductions, interesting art objects are all prized for their beauty and individuality by the knowlegeable bride of today.

Bridal consultants report that young women are reasserting a kind of "modern traditionalism" that adapts the timeless beauty of good design and good taste to twentieth-century living.

In everything from table appointments to furnishings for her new home, the modern bride is keeping one eye on the past; the other on the future. She realizes that it needn't be new to be contemporary, and finds that old traditions can take on a new meaning for her life.

TRADITIONS REVIVED

The wide spread revival of the centuries - old tradition of the bride's parents giving her sterling is an example. This tradition has as much meaning today as it did years ago. Not only is sterling still the standard of quality in tableware, but the graciousness and beauty it contributes to daily living are recognized by the bride as well as her parents as important adjuncts to the new household.

Accessories for the home offer another example. Even if the young couple has chosen modern furniture, they may shop in antique shops for lamps, wall hangings, knick - knacks, and other decorative accessories that will personalize their home. The increasing popularity of blending the old and the new has done away with the store-window rigidity that once characterized the decor of so many new families.

It's the same with table accessories. The bride may have chosen early American china and glassware and sterling in a colonial - classic pattern. But her linens may be as modern as tomorrow in color and feeling. The result is a table with a fresh individuality based on a combination of good design and good taste.

Quality, then, rather than fad or fashion is the criterion used by today's bride for the possessions she'd like for her new home. With her new maturity about what is beautiful, she prefers the real to the pseudo; timelessness to timeliness. This should be good news for gift givers who, traditionally, like to give the bride something lasting to remember them by.

CHANGING NAME

Check with your state's motor vehicle department to learn how much time after marriage you have to change the driver's license to your new name.

PEARL LEGEND

The pearl (a word taken from the Latin perula, meaning pear-shaped, because many are) has been the subject of legend through the ages. Pearls are linked by tradition to brides by the anicent Hindu belief that the deity Krishna brought a beautiful pearl up from the sea and give it to his daughter on her wedding day.

GIFTS ADD UP

Brides buy or receive as gifts about one out of three blenders, coffee makers, electric skillets and clock radios sold. And they're responsible for the sales of better than four out of 10 mixers, toasters, waffle irons, and bedspreads.

HOPE CHEST

Dual-Purpose Silver Helps New Hostess

If there's one thing that every bride can count on with certainty, it's that her home will be a hospitality showcase to a steady stream of guests in the years ahead.

Relatives and friends, old and new, will be sure to beat a path to her door and measure her skill as a hostess. Gleaming silver holloware, therefore, has a place of special importance in her wedding plans and these pieces can help her in her home entertaining by being versatile as well as beautiful.

Luckily, there is a wide variety of these much wanted silver gifts that add the right sparkle to every table and household.

Silver holloware is more than just elegant designs and glistening patterns — it is a practical helper that can do double, even triple, duty with taste and imagination.

For instance, a single silver bowl can perform as many as a half dozen separate functions; as a flower holder, open vegetable dish, relish dish, for rolls, hors d'oeuvres and as a fruit centerpiece.

A silver water pitcher is wonderful for iced drinks, a cocktail mixer, and even serves as an ideal vase for long stemmed flowers.

Bread trays, gravy boats and vegetable dishes can easily do many more things than their names imply, all adding to the pleasure of the hostess and guests.

Attendants Gowns Can Echo Wedding Theme

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Q: For my June wedding I'm planning a rather sophisticated sheath gown. I will have only a matron and a maid of honor as attendants. I'm planning their dresses in the same style, but do they have to be the same color? Could you suggest a color combination that's beautifully different?

A: I could suggest many, but when one goes out to shop, one finds oneself limited by what the stores are offering! I can, for example, visualize one attendant in navy lace, the other in pink lace, but can you find it? A rose theme could be beautiful for June, with one in deep pink, the other in yellow, yourself carrying white roses, attendants carrying roses like their gowns. Or, how about an orchid theme? You carry white ones, one attendant is in a violet shade blending with purple orchids, the other in beige carries brown orchids touched with green.

Q: My husband and I will be stationed at a United States Embassy in a warm but not humid climate. What will I need for cocktail parties, teas, informal dinners and formal occasions? I have previously had to entertain only informally, so must buy a ne wwardrobe, and on a tight budget!

A: Good separates are your answer. Thus a single white crepe skirt can take several tops of informal to formal kind that will cover the teas, cocktail parties and informal dinners. I would go to nearest good fashion store, seek advice of better sportswear department, where such lines as Cabana and Arbe Originals are carried. For formal occasions, why not a long crepe or chiffon s'.irt with which the same formal top (jeweled or sequinned chiffon or crepe) can be worn that you use with the short skirt for dinners and cocktail parties?

By the way, this "American" style of good separates is usually much admired abroad.

Q: For a plane trip to Greece and Israel what kind of clothes would you advise? We will be going in July.

A: Hot, and hot — but dry. Take summer clothing, but of the covered-up kind, as you will be more comfortable with loose sleeves than in sleeveless dresses. Dress-jacket costumes in seersucker, linen and other blends, will do for both countries, and cover occasions when you may want to wear a sleeveless dress with a lot of jewelry as a formal costume. Cotton knits are good, too.

If you have a question concerning fashion, send it to Florence de Santis, in care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self addressed envelope.

WEDDING SECURITY

The word wedding is a reminder of the elaborate financial arrangements that once accompanied marriage. In ancient times the father of the bride paid a "wed" — or security — to the bridegroom's parents to secure the marriage.

LITERATE STATE

Groom Usually Goes Alone To Purchase Ring

The future bridegroom usually goes alone to purchase the ring or rings. This is usually after a lengthy period of window shopping with the bride - elect, when she drops "subtle" hints as to her preference in engagement and wedding rings.

At the time of the actual purchase, the prospective bridegroom specifies the size of stone, type of setting and the price range that he has allowed himself. If the engagement ring is part of a set, then he usually purchases both at the same time. If, however, the ring is a Tiffany setting, or something similar, and will require only a gold band as a wedding ring, then he comes back for the wedding ring at a later date.

Silver Pattern Reflects Bride's Personal Taste

If you are a bride-to-be, one of the words you are becoming the most familiar with is silver.

It connotes the one household product which most brides collect before marriage and carry with them through all their married life into every home.

And "my silver" means the particular pattern each bride chooses to reflect her own particular tastes more than any other one thing in her household collections.

Today's bride may take her silver into many more different atmospheres than her mother or grandmother, who most likely had two or three homes in the same vicinity and of the same type, except each was a little larger.

The bride of 1964, however, may start out in a modern, garden - type apartment in the Southwest; move to the West Coast to a suburban, informal house, to the East to a Cape Cod house or abroad to an ancient flat before she and her husband settle in the house of their own choice.

With this knowledge of where the future may take her and her husband, the selection of a silver pattern means she must choose one that she feels can be a symbol of her taste through all the years of moving and homemaking in all sorts of backgrounds, as well as love for the pattern itself.

And in some cases, the bridegroom may have a preference for a certain type of silver, sometimes quite contemporary, if not for a specific pattern. Certainly his tastes should be considered most seriously, as much or more so than those of the mother of the bride, who so often exerts her influence strongly on a choice!

Perhaps the bridegroom expresses a preference for the architecturally simple patterns, rather than the ornately decorated floral ones. Among the most striking of these is Reed & Barton's "Dimension," which is boldly plain. It has a knife handle which stands upright when the blade lies flat or lies flat when the blade is placed with its cutting edge upright.

Another is the Diamond pattern designed by Gio Ponti, the Italian whose signature in many designs is this shape. The angled and ridged handles in this pattern reflect sparks like the fire of a diamond in candlelight. These modern designs contrast with elaborately patterned china and glass or blend with simple Colonial styles, as well as the contemporary furnishings.

If you and your bridegroom prefer the richness and elegance of the elaborate design, Francis First, which has been one of the favorites in this area for years, chosen by American presidents and state governors as well as an Indian Maharajah, might be a choice.

Bride In Pants Is Newest For Yacht Wedding

Tongue in cheek means money in pocket. And if that isn't a Chinese proverb, Jacques Esterel will make it a French one.

Just to give you a rough idea: an informal bride, complete with short head veil, is shown in his collection wearing a white mandarin linen suit that has pants! "To be worn for a wedding on a yacht on the French Riviera," his salon salesgirl explained.

Mr. Esterel showed "Pier Coats" — which are sleeveless summer linen coats that match bathing suits worn underneath. "For twilight time," he said, "on the boardwalk." There were out-of-bed" pajamas — and we assume that he means the lounging kind. His playsuit tweed trousers have deep V notches cut in front for walking ease and a more feminine look.

Because Esterel moonlights (or should we say "twilights") as a composer of music for the French films, he reveals his theatre sense by showing the smallest, flattest saucer hat in town, just before he sends a model out wearing an enormous black straw pyramid hat. One dress had a side-tied sash that went trailing behind likt a floating train. A pillbix hat had a navy chiffon that went down to the hemline of the dress. He showed a green Chantilly lace coat worn over a white silk dress and has sewn embroidered daisies all over a white linen one. It's all or nothing with Jacques Esterel.

Plan Wedding Details Early To Avoid Chaos

CHICAGO (UPI) — The last few weeks before the wedding ceremony are crowded with hundreds of details that must be considered to make the wedding run smoothly.

The big decisions, such as what the bride and her attendants will wear, the guest list, place of the reception and when the wedding will take place, are out of the way.

Many books are available for listing presents, including one that contains numbers to be pasted on the gift. The name of the gift given is written in the book opposite the number attached to the present.

This method helps a bride keep an accurate list of who sent what if she sends her thank you notes all at once. Gifts should be acknowledged as soon as possible.

Invitations should be addressed and mailed about three weeks before the ceremony. It's also a good time to have your hair styled and permanented.

All parties and showers should take place two to four weeks before the wedding. Showers should be given by friends, but relatives may give parties.

The engaged couple should visit the florist together. The bridegroom will be responsible for the bride's bouquet, the boutonnieres and the corsages for both mothers. The rest of the flowers are the bride's responsibility.

The bridegroom should have a check list of his own for the last few weeks before the wedding.

He should choose gifts for his best man and ushers, plan the honeymoon, arrange for his wedding apparel, act as host for a dinner for his attendants, and give the clergyman's fee to the best man to present after the ceremony.

Housekeeping List Can Be Timesaver

A grocery list can save you money—if you write down what you really need and stick to those items when you're shopping — and in just the same way a housekeeping list can save you time.

Write down what needs to be done every day, every week and every month. Then follow this list.

Letting things slide can result in a major just - before - company cleaning on precisely the beautiful day your carefree husband suggests a drive in the country following your list—and you don't have to be a slave to it of course — can keep your domicile relatively spic and span all the time.

Daily tasks include preparing meals and cleaning the kitchen, making beds, tidying rooms.

Weekly chores involve more thorough cleaning, laundry, ironing, mending, marketing. Spread these through the week and you might even clean rooms on separate days. A husband, even one whose wife works, doesn't like for her to spend entire evenings hanging around, doing housework.

Monthly jobs are cleaning venetian blinds, washing windows, polishing furniture, waxing floors, cleaning closets and cabinets. Space these apart, too.

Bride Of Today Has Many Aids In Homemaking

A wise Irish bride of not-so-long-ago could pass a tricky test by picking up a broom that had been placed slyly across the doorsill of her cottage by a mother-in-law as a test of her potential as a good housekeeper.

According to the custom, if the neophyte lady of the house stepped across the broom barrier it indicated she was lazy. If she retrieved the broom and put it carefully in a corner, she was greeted with "Cead Mile Failte" — a hundred thousand welcomes — by her new family, for it indicated she was sure to sweep the floors with care.

Today's American bride, fortunately, is not required to provide proof of her homemaking ability. Still, she should know how to keep the floors — and furniture — in an apartment or house clean and bright. Depending on the types of floors and furniture, the following guide from Lucile Bush, director of Johnson's Wax Consumer Service, will help in the choice and use of the proper product:

A liquid buffing wax with a built-in cleaner that removes dirt and soil as it is being applied is recommended especially for wood floors.

Asphalt tile and other resilient flooring can be easily maintained with self polishing waxes that dry to a sparkling shine and do not require buffing. The waxes should be poured in small pools on the floor and spread with light even strokes, using a cloth folded in a flat pad or a long-handled applier. The container should not be shaken prior to use as this will make the liquid foamy and result in a streaked and uneven finish.

Wood furniture may be given a high polish without rubbing if a liquid furniture wax, that contains a cleaning ingredient is used. The wax is spread in thin film over the surface of the furniture with a soft cloth, allowed to dry until a haze forms then simply wiped to a shine. To dust and polish in one operation, use a pushbutton wax that is sprayed on the furniture and wiped immediately with a soft cloth.

Bridal Gowns Most Unchanged Of Fashions

Bridal gowns are perhaps the most conservative of fashions. A trend will stay in for ten years. When a big event does cause change, the new trend is good for another decade.

The last big shifting of gears went on after Princess Margaret's wedding. When the petite princess went down the aisle in that pure, plain gown, you could hear the beads drop all over the bridal market.

Out went miles of lace, pounds of pearls and bugle beads, acres of ruffles. It's still that way, and will be until some other world-famous bride decides she wants all the hoopla back.

Today's bridal gown is a shape. Usually it's high - waisted, has sleeves, and all the fullness and drama are at the back. Newest idea is the cape, fastening high in front, where it is cut short, sweeping out in back into a train.

Embroideries are often placed at new points, such as on sleeves only, on the center panel, or on a court train. Necklines are plain scoops or bateau. The whole idea is the royal bride.
